NE dairy stresses finances

HARTFORD, CT — The general mood of dairy farmers attending the annual meeting of the Northeastern Dairy Conference was rather dreary, according to Fred C. Webster, conference secretary. Webster said, the farmers and various dairy representatives perceive the challenge their industry faces, but are not optomistic because they can't see the light at the end of the tunnel yet. No resolution is in sight.

Over 175 persons from the dairy industry, mostly farmers, were in attendence for the two day conference held here Tuesday and Wednesday at the at the Parkview Hilton. The conference focused on marketing and operating alternatives, and the possible effects of Township hits 'snowstorms'

LANCASTER — Again, Manheim Township in Lancaster County, is asking the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and PennDot to get together and prevent those "summer snowstorms" along major highways.

As it did last year, the township commissioners "strongly urge and vigorously request" the Secretary of Agriculture and his Noxious Weed Control Commission to get rid of the Canada Thistle in the rights-of-way of Rts. 30, 222 and 283.

Take your PIK-erosion or conservation

Area farmland has been graced with recent above-average precipitation, which has helped replenish subsoil moisture. But too often, heavy rainfalls can turn a blessing into a burden as valuable top soil is carried off fields. Photo shows a small waterfall gushing off a Bucks County field. Now, as PIK idles a good bit of land, it provides an ideal time to install some conservation measures.

LANCASTER — Wondering what to do with those idle acres created by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Payment-in-Kind (PIK) program?

Since the idle acres will most likely come from the farmers' poorest land, there is concern about the impact the program will have on conservation.

Elwood Hatley, Penn State agronomist, said that farmers should take a positive approach to the program by making improvements in the land while it is out of production.

He advised planting a legume like red or sweet clover to improve the nitrogen levels in the soil and at the same time prevent erosion. A legume like clover would add as much as 100-200 pounds of nitrogen

What is price of ag safety?

UNIVERSITY PARK — What is the going price tag on ag safety these days?

Pennsylvania and other states may have to answer that question this year if federal budgetary intentions go through as planned.

And, it's altogether possible that in some states ag safety programs, which in Pennsylvania has featured such things as farm rescue training for firemen and ambulance personnel, may be appreciably affected.

The concern centers around the Federal Government's intentions to drop the specific budget item which has been earmarked for ag safety since the mid-70's. The budget item has totaled just over $1 million nationally, which amounts to about $20,000 for each state.

Even with this flat, but certain budget item for ag safety, the programs have been eroded over the years by inflation and higher costs.

But now, the Federal Government wants to lump ag safety into the overall formula funding for each state. This is ag funding which is based on a formula that includes such things as number of farms, total rural population, etc.

The only trouble is that the government wants to keep formula funding at last year's levels. And, as Dean Samuel Smith of Penn State's Ag School explains, that really amounts to a seven percent cut in funds due to inflation and other rising costs.

So, with ag safety included in formula funding, it would mean

Roundup of current ag legislation from Harrisburg

Ag development remains in study group

HARRISBURG — The Ag Development Authority Bill is still being held in special study committee to further define the financial aspects of the bonds required to fund the bill.

This study committee of the House Ag and Rural Affairs Committee is scheduled to meet again on Thursday to review the financial aspects of the bill.

Present at the Thursday session are expected to be bonding experts who have worked on arrangements for similar authorities in a number of other states.

It is expected that the bill may come out of committee about mid-April.

Proposed cruelty to animals bill rears its head in the Senate again

HARRISBURG — A proposed cruelty to animals bill has reared its head again in the State Senate.

Senate Bill 367, which was introduced by Sen. Edward Early, D-Allegheny County, on Feb. 23 has been referred to the Judiciary Committee.

The bill, which resembles proposed legislation which died in committee last year, provides for penalties for cruelty to animals.

The bill would make it a summary offense – misdemeanor of the third degree – to engage in various activities concerning fowl and other livestock.

Activities covered under the proposed bill include:

–Selling, bartering or giving away baby chickens, ducklings or other fowl, under one month of age, or rabbits under two months of age, as pets, toys, premiums, or novelties or to color, dye, stain or otherwise change their color or to

Senate passes Clean/Green 2-acre splitoff

HARRISBURG — The State Senate last week unanimously passed the amendment to the Clean and Green Act 319 which provides for a one-time split-off of two acres of land for farm retail markets.

The bill has now gone to the House and will be discussed by the House Committee on Agriculture and Rural Affairs at a meeting on Tuesday.

The amendment to Act 319 provides for excluding up to two acres of land from the provision of Act 319 for the purpose of commercial sales of agriculturally related products without triggering a tax rollback on the

Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, March 31
Report supplied by USDA

MARKET COMMENT: Prices unchanged to higher, carton egg movement remains active in most quarters as dealers fill retail outlets in anticipation of heavy holiday buying. Early indications are that most dealers are satisfied with movement, but did not quite come up to holiday expectations and some carryover expected. Retail features are centered on large at 59-69, mostly 69 cents. Floor stocks of extra large and large are fully sufficient and orders are being met. Medium to regular but overall a little long for current needs. Jumbos and smalls tight in most quarters. Availability of offerings has increased for deliveries next week. Undertone steady.

A Extra Large 70-76; A Large 69-71; A Medium 61-63.

Eastern Pa. & N.J. Poultry

Thursday, March 31
Report supplied by USDA

MARKET COMMENT: Prices unchanged offerings of live are fully sufficient for plant needs. Bookings are now being scheduled three to four weeks in advance. One plant continues not to operate while others are down this Friday and next Monday. Undertone steady.

Prices Paid at Farm: Light Type Hens: 7½-8 cents, mostly 8 cents.

F.O.B. plant: 10 cents.

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, March 31
Report supplied by USDA

MARKET COMMENT: Ready to cook movement on whole birds remain mixed. Some plants report good movement, while others find business as fair and somewhat disappointing. Parts are much the same position as whole birds. Several plants good committments for next week arrivals. Slaughter schedule fairly heavy today but handful of plants are scheduled to be down Friday and an occasional plant is not operational Monday. Large supplies fully adequate at desirable to occasionally heavier than desired weight. Undertone firm but cautious.

Today's L.T.L. asking prices on U.S. Grade A at 42-45 cents.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva (000).

Estimated 3/31 18.35; Actual 3/24 16.40; Actual 3/29 17.68; Average Weights 3/29 4.45; 3/22 4.34.

MOYER'S OFFERS RELIABILITY

In 1982 Moyer's Hatched over 10 million chicks - the most in their 36 years history. We think that's very significant. During the last several years molting practices have jumped from less than 10% to around 50%. National hatch of pullets chicks is off 15%. Commercial broiler profitability challenges have depressed that market as well.

In spite of this economic climate Moyer's growing customers have given them a sincere vote of confidence. Moyer's has a line-up of the best DeKalb brown & white egg layers as well as commercial broiler strains. This combined with the Moyer's name standing for reliability and customer satisfaction has made them the largest hatchery offering both layers and broilers in Pennsylvania. We are honored to have you our customers give us this distinction. Thank you!

courteously, efficiently, and when you need it.

Delivering feed is not a nine-to-five fair weather job. Your livelihood depends on timely feed deliveries, and we spare no effort to get your delivery to you when you need it. To hold delivery costs down, we maintain our own staff of experienced and trained mechanics, and we buy diesel fuel and other operating supplies in bulk quantities at the most reasonable cost.

Pennfield's driver program is unique in the feed industry. In addition to comprehensive and frequently tested driving skills, our drivers have training in customer relations, materials handling, and proper care of equipment.

Pennfield has earned a leadership position in the development and use of safe, cost-effective maintenance and delivery programs. But the real test of our skills and our service comes when our driver pulls up to your feed bin.

We feel our reputation is in good hands.

Omaha Cattle

Thursday, March 31
Report supplied by USDA

As compared to previous week's close. Slaughter Steers and Heifers ended the week 2.50-3.50 higher. Cows fully steady. Bulls steady.

A strong demand, fostered by modest terminal receipts and shortened packer inventories boosted fed cattle prices to their highest levels since July, 1982. Support was also provided by advance on carcass and boxed beef markets and the week's trade closed on a very strong note. Overall finish not too attractive with many cattle still carrying considerable amounts of mud. Early week snowstorms complicated the situation, both on receipts and the condition of livestock.

Steers comprised 48 pct of the week's receipts; Heifers 34 pct; Cows 8 pct; Feeders 8 pct. Four day receipts 7368; week ago 7459; last week 9489.

STEERS: At the close, two loads reputation fed Choice, few Prime 2-4 near 1300 lbs. 69.25. Scattered loads and part loads Choice 2-4 1050-1250 lbs. 66.50-68.00, mostly 67.00-68.00, with those at lower end of price range usually carrying considerable mud. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 1000-1250 lbs. 65.00-67.00. Few Good 62.50-64.50. Load Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 near 1250 lb. Holsteins 58.00.

HEIFERS: Two loads reputation fed Choice, few Prime 2-4 near 1000 lbs. 67.00. Scattered loads and part loads Choice 2-4 925-1050 lbs. 64.50-66.00 mostly 65.00-66.00. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 900-1025 lbs. 63.50-64.50. Few Good 61.00-63.00.

Average of LS 214 detailed quotations for 900-1100 lb. Choice Steers 66.30; 1100-1300 lbs. 67.68. Average cost Steers 66.27, average weight 1146 lbs; as compared 64.07 and 1137 lbs. a week ago. Average cost Heifers 64.12, average weight 989 lbs.; as compared 61.63 and 999 lbs. a week ago.

COWS: High Cutter, Utility and Commercial 1-3 42.00-46.00, high dressing to 47.25. Canner and Cutter 39.00-42.50.

BULLS: 1-2 1100-1800 lbs. 47.00-53.00.

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

(In case you're curious about the heading, "Ramblections," it's a combination of the words -- ramble and recollections. I once was an ag rambler of sorts throughout the United States and Canada. From time to time, I'll reflect on these ramblings and other recollections from long ago on a hilly farm in southeastern Northampton County. The ramblections will be used at those times that I don't feel particularly profound. This is one of those times.)

Spring brings a return of the sights, sounds and smells of agriculture that eventually result in the tastes of farming's bounty. Things like the smell of freshly turned earth and the sounds of barnyard offspring romping off into the pasture for the first time.

Likewise, Spring activates the senses like no other time of the year. It gets the blood pumping again and an itch develops that only work out in an open field will cure.

I recall a few years back when my senses were especially activated by agriculture in two separate sections of the country. One in Texas and the other in Oregon.

Down in the Texas Panhandle in Deaf Smith County, there's a town called Hereford. And believe me, it's appropriately named. I spent three weeks in Hereford, which is located on the fringes of the High Plains. I arrived on a cool, comfortable Sunday night. Tired from the day-long travel, I went straight to the motel and bed.

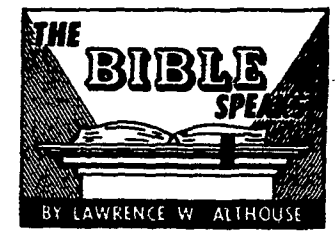
The next morning I awoke to a rather muggy, hot day and strolled outside. Something in the steamy air hit me like a slap in the face. Hereford is ringed by feedlots that are more heavily populated than the most congested city here in the Northeast.

After a couple of days, I finally asked one of my new Texan acquaintances if the local residents ever got accustomed to the heavy aroma in the air. "What aroma?" he asked. "That's no aroma; that's the smell of pure money, son."

And across the country in the Willamette Valley of Oregon, my sense of taste was equally piqued by agriculture. There, acre after acre of mint is grown and harvested much like alfalfa. It is blown into a metal, sealed forage wagon of sorts. The mint is steam-distilled right in the wagon and out comes the pure mint extract that goes as flavoring into toothpaste and many other things.

A seed farmer in the valley, who also grew mint, asked me if I had ever tasted the "real thing." Put a little on your finger tip and taste it, he said. I missed the emphasis he had placed on the word, little. Well, I dipped my finger in and got a good taste. That lick really shook up the taste buds and for days everything I ate or drank had a mint taste.

Now, when Spring stirs the ag senses these two ramblections come back to mind -- the feedlots of Hereford, Tex. and the mint of Corvallis, Ore.



RECOGNIZING THE RESURRECTION

April 3, 1983

Background Scripture: Acts 9:1-31; 22:1-21; 26:1-23; I Corinthians 15:3-11.

Devotional Reading: I Corinthians 15:1-11.

At first glance, it seemed the planners of the Uniform Lesson Services had made a strange choice of scriptural passages for Easter Sunday. Why hadn't they chosen a ressurrection passage from one of the four gospels? But as soon as I read the selected background passages from the Book of Acts, I realized that the choices were not strange at all, but highly appropriate.

In his fine book, Jesus Lord and Christ (Harper), one of my former seminary teachers, Professor John Knox, makes the observation that when we read Paul's letters in the New Testament we are likely "to be struck by what would appear to be an almost complete lack of interest in the words and acts of Jesus." The reason, suggests Knox, is not that the Apostle was totally unfamiliar with Jesus' words and deeds, but that he attached much greater importance to knowing the Risen Lord.

"WHO ARE YOU, LORD?"

We can easily understand why Paul was more concerned with the Christ he encountered on the Damascus Road than the Jesus who was known and remembered by the disciples who had followed Jesus in his ministry. It was Paul's experience of the Risen Lord on the Damascus Road that transformed his life and Christianity as well. This doesn't mean that the words and deeds of Jesus are not important - they have spoken to, won and inspired millions - but ultimately it is our own experience of the Christ in our lives that is the only basis for a life continuously committed to his service. If the resurrected Christ had been experienced only on Easter Sunday, the whole nature and meaning of the Good News of Jesus Christ would be drastically changed.

So the essence of Christianity consists, not in acknowledging that on Easter Sunday Christ arose from the tomb, but that the Risen Lord can be experienced in our lives today as the source of our strength and faith. The resurrection must be a continuing experience in the world if it is to really mean anything to us.

This may secretly disturb a lot of people who believe they have never really experienced the Risen Lord themselves. But the problem is, not that they have not encounted Christ, but that they have failed to recognize his presence in their lives. Some people have dramatic Damascus Road experiences: visions, voices, moments of ecstacy, etc. But that is not the only way we encounter the Risen Lord. Even Paul was unsure and in midst of his Damascus Road experience, he asked: "Who are you, Lord?"

THE STILL, SMALL VOICE

Sometimes we encounter the Risen Lord in his words and deeds, sometimes in the words and deeds of another person. Sometimes, he speaks to us in the still, small voice of conscience. Sometimes, as we gaze at a great work of religious art, he communicates with us, if we permit him to do so. Sometimes it is in a crust of bread we receive from another or give to another that we hear him say to us, "This is my body..."

We need to learn to recognize the resurrection in our lives.

To Evaluate Winter Wheat Topdressing

During this season of the year many farmers ask the question, does winter wheat need fertilizing? According to Extension agronomists, topdressing with fertilizer may or may not be a good idea. There are several things that should be considered before making the decision.

In the first place, do not topdress winter wheat with a fertilizer that contains nitrogen if the wheat is to be overseeded with clover or alfalfa. Nitrogen causes heavy growth of wheat which may smother out the new seeding. Now, the winter wheat fields that have come through the winter looking thin, should be topdressed. Use only a straight nitrogen fertilizer, such as urea. Topdressing winter wheat with phosphate or potash fertilizers have not given any increased wheat yields.

Apply the nitrogen fertilizer in early spring at the rate of 30-40 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre.

To Plan For Oat Planting

I know some farmers are considering the use of feed oats for planting this spring, but this may not be a good idea. Feed oats may contain quackgrass, bindweed and other weed seeds. Planting feed oats will generally result in lower yields. You also have the problem that any weed seeds planted will be a problem for years to come. Keep in mind that high quality seed is the smallest part of producing a crop. So, saving a few cents by using inferior or weedy seed doesn't make much sense.

On the other hand, home grown seed of varieties proven successful on the farm can be cleaned, treated and planted if the germination is 80 percent or better. You can use the old "Rag Doll" germination method where you place the seed between two pieces of burlap – roll it and keep it moist and warm. Then count the seeds that germinate against the total and determine the percent germination.

To Increase Pasture Production

One of the best ways to improve your permanent pasture is to apply lime and plant food, practice rotational grazing and clip them regularly. This is quicker, cheaper and involves less risk than tearing up the old sod and reseeding. Most permanent pastures have sufficient seed of desirable grass species. The only thing they need is a little tender loving care and the opportunity to grow, and to recover from grazing pressures. Thus, fertility and rotational grazing are very beneficial. The more paddocks you have, the better it is. If your acreage is limited for your size herd, restrict the amount of time cattle and livestock are permitted to graze. Don't let them trample the grass unnecessarily by allowing them to roam freely over the pasture while not grazing. After a paddock has been grazed, it can be clipped to control weed growth and to keep the grass young and nutritious.

Now is the Time

This is also a good time to apply fertilizer and necessary herbicides, while allowing the grass to recover prior to being grazed again.

To Control Soil Erosion

Think about the impact of one raindrop on barren soil. In its own scale that raindrop is like a bomb, tearing soil into tiny fragments, tossing them in the air and gouging a crater in the earth. Now on our scale, one raindrop is insignificant, but raindrops come in the billions and together they play a key role in soil erosion.

These tiny bombs break soil into pieces small enough to be carried away in water runoff. And this kind of runoff erosion is becoming a serious problem for all. This erosion is washing away our most fertile and productive farmland ... that translates to higher food costs ... not to mention the costs of filtering and treating polluted water.

Good soil management methods can reduce erosion by 100 times or more. In one University experiment, mosquito gauze was suspended over part of a barron field. In the uncovered portion soil erosion was 100 times more than under the gauze. No, we can't cover fields with gauze, but we can encourage new conservation tillage methods that leave a vegetative cover to act like a gauze. We all need to work together to conserve this precious resource ... our soil.

Snowstorms

In addition to Secretary Hallowell, the township is sending a score or more copies of a resolution passed this week to local and state officials in their effort to get rid of the thistle in the rights-of-way.

It's the summer snowstorms of thistle seed from the rights-of-way that drift into and infest the adjoining land of farmers and property owners.

The resolution calls for control measures to be instituted this year to check the spread of "breeze-wafted seeds."

State 'push' coming next year

HARRISBURG — A Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture spokesman said this week that PennDot would be performing measures similar to last year concerning Canada thistles.

The spokesman said:

"They plan to try some new control techniques and substances this year and then make an all-out push for eradication next year.

HIGHER YIELDS WITH SIDEDRESSING!

Let Andgrow Fertilizer sidedress your corn with an experienced driver and our new HYBOY sprayer. The Hyboy is equipped with drop nozzles to dribble the fertilizer along the row. Wheels and nozzles can be adjusted to any row width.

ASK SOME WHO HAVE PROVED IT!

"I used the same amount of nitrogen on both parts of one field. I broadcast it all on one part and split the application on the other. We sidedressed the corn under good conditions with 1" of rain the same day...I feel sidedressing definately paid."

—Franklin County Farmer

"I sidedressed about ten acres of my corn this year. What I expect to do next year is to do a lot more sidedressing and use more nitrogen. I know it paid and paid big."

4-H leaders attend training

4-H volunteer leaders from across Berks County attended a training session for organizational leaders in the Agricultural Center. 4-H leaders attending were Nancy Plushanski and Dolly Bare, Berks County Rabbit & Cavy Club; Dick Remp, Berks County Sheep & Lamb Club; John & Linda Ahn, Tilden Community Club; Bob Sattazahn, Stouchsburg 4-H Club; Arlene Rebman, Rehrersburg Adventurers 4-H Club; Sonne Shorley, Cider Saddles 4-H Club; Caroll Kopfer, Fleetwood 4-H Club; and Sharon Brahmstadt, Seeing Eye Puppy Club.

Richard S. Kauffman, 4-H Coordinator, conducted the session which covered the duties of the organizational leader in a 4-H club. Kauffman explained that the leaders are the key link in a 4-H club. Their duties include reporting, organization; coordination of other leaders' and members' activities; recruitment; planning the yearly program; informing members of county, state, and regional 4-H events; and maintaining a communication link with the county 4-H office.

Lanc. Holstein Club takes tour

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Holstein Club visited outstanding purebred herds in Columbia County as part of the Club's annual tour, Thursday. Eighty-three persons participated in the bus tour. Five farms were included in the tour this year, each with a unique attraction.

First stop was Mun-Cre Farms, owned by Lester Poust. The club examined Lester's herd that has a BAA over 107 with 12 excellent cows. Lester's favorite cow, Mun-Cre Elevation Misty, is the foundation cow of the herd with 92 points and 36,604 milk, 4.2 percent and 1532 fat.

Paul and Wayne Ritter, of Ritter Ridge are in partnership with their mother, Hilda. The Ritter brothers took the tour through their new 96 tie stall barn. The barn's design is unusual, with a 15-foot peak ceiling, that provides improved ventilation especially during hot summer months.

Touring farmers were fascinated with a two-month-old calf that had been born prematurely in January. Because the calf weighed only 25 pounds at birth, Mrs. Ritter brought it into her home and has nurtured the calf to a present weight of 85 pounds. She bottle nursed the calf every two hours to start, keeping the calf in a child's playpen. Mrs. Ritter now grinds up Calf Manna in her blender and mixes it in the calf's milk. She said the calf lays next to the family dog and is paper trained.

Next stop on the tour was Fra-Jan Holsteins, owned by Frank Jurbala. The Jurbalas farm on only ten acres, buying all their feed from local farmers at harvest time. Jurbala feeds high moisture shelled corn three times a day, baled hay five times a day, and top dresses the ration with bean meal and mineral mix. The herd average is more than 21,000.

The group was then hosted by Dennis Wolff. See Wolff feature story for more details of his operation. The Wolff's own Pen-Col Farms, a progressive farm that is actively involved in embryo transfer and international marketing of cattle and embryos. Wolff presently has 130 heifers pregnant by ET. The Wolff's retail 90 percent of their milk through a store on the farm and another in Bloomsburg.

The last farm stop was the Dick Yule farm. Yule is also working with ET and exporting embryos. The group saw Yule's favorite cow, a young Pete daughter out of an Astronaut dam. She is a three-quarters sister to the Ace bull, and milked 89 pounds per day as a two year old.

A ham and turkey dinner put on by the Greenwood United Methodist Church, completed the tour, leaving the group very satisfied with day's events.

Save fuel costs in tillage

UNIVERSITY PARK — Because Pennsylvania farmers use almost half of their tractor fuel for tillage, alternative methods of tillage can have a noticeable effect on farm fuel usage, as well as save time, labor, and machine wear. According to Jim Garthe, Penn State Extension agricultural engineer.

Three basic ways to cut waste in tillage operations are combining tillage operations, eliminating some operations, and no-till.

Any of those methods also will help reduce soil compaction because of fewer trips across the field.

In order to combine tillage operations, you can pull a piece of secondary tillage equipment behind your plow. That is, if your tractor is big enough. Chisel plows require about 30 percent less power than moldboard plows, so chances are that you might have a chisel plow that doesn't load your tractor near its capacity.

Other possible combinations to consider when doubling up on implements are: disk and apply herbicide or fertilizer; plow and plant, or plow and inject ammonia; plant and apply fertilizer or herbicide.

Adding a piece of secondary tillage equipment saves fuel two ways – the tractor runs more efficiently because it's operating closer to its rated capacity, and one or more trips through the field are eliminated.

Always be careful however, not to overload your tractor. This can cause costly breakdowns and shorter engine life.

Eliminating some tillage operations and the number of trips across the field can also save on your tillage fuel bill.

Depending on the condition of your soil and what kind of stubble is in the field, moldboard plowing is not always necessary. Garthe says that sometimes it is possible to save energy by not plowing as deeply or possibly not plowing at all.

Also, one application of herbicide can do the work of two or three cultivations.

No-till is becoming more popular in Pennsylvania, now accounting for nearly 50 percent of corn, 15 percent of forages, and 10 percent of small grain crops grown in the state.

Not only can no-till save up to 80 percent of tillage fuel costs, it cuts soil and water loss because weeds, stubble, and vegetation are left on the surface of the soil, protecting it from being blown or washed away and less water is lost to evaporation.

The Systems Approach of Hershey Equipment lets you put it all together

Today, profit minded poultry, swine, and grain producers must think in terms of an automatic system.

"System thinking" can help you plan away problems before you begin, or it can help you automate away problems you now have.

Hershey Equipment Co. is geared to provide all components of the system including equipment, plumbing, electrical and building. This will assure that the pieces will fit together to form a profitable system.

Looking into ag's high tech crystal ball

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Advances in agricultural research and technology will play an increasingly larger role in the life of farmers, a U.S. Department of Agriculture research official said today.

"American agriculture will continue to be one of the large users of high technology in the years ahead," said Terry B. Kinney, Jr., administrator of USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Kinney cited such technologies as genetic engineering, computer modeling, satellite forecasting and laser beams.

"All of these and future technological developments," he said, "will lead to payoffs to farmers by making agricultural production more economical and efficient."

One of the most important challenges facing agricultural research, said Kinney, is to help find solutions to the problems of soil erosion, water losses and competition for water use. One of the new technologies for erosion control, he said, involves laser-guided machinery for leveling large areas of cropland to minimize soil and water runoff.

Soil, Water Research

He listed a few developments in soil and water research:

— Computer systems (1) help rangeland managers predict water runoff, soil erosion, yields and livestock production; (2) monitor and forecast the rate of soil erosion and the soil's ability to produce crops; (3) determine how slopes of a watershed will erode following stripmining by heavy equipment (4) help farmers select effective conservation tillage practices.

— Satellite data will lead to more accurate predictions of freezes and floods.

— Irrigation systems such as (1) cablegation, a new, energy-saving, automatic surface irrigation system can help growers who need a low-cost alternative to sprinkler systems; (2) a semi-automated pipe irrigation system can increase water application efficiency; (3) subsurface trickle irrigation already has yielded 13 to 31 tons more per acre of tomatoes than those irrigated by furrow systems.

— Experiments link removal of crop residues to reduction in corn and soybean yields.

Among studies aimed at improving the quality of crops and production efficiency are:

— Development of a nationwide computer network that will provide information exchange on germplasm for such crops as cotton, alfalfa, beans, fruits, nuts, forage grasses and legumes.

Genetic Engineering

— Research in genetic engineering can (1) regenerate mutuant plants from tumor cells, which then can be regenerated into leaves and roots that carry the new gene; (2) recombinant DNA technology can alter the genetic material of wheat to enhance the quality and quantity of other crops as well; (3) increase soybean yields by improving nitrogen-fixing bacterial that extract nitrogen from the air for use by plants as fertilizer; (4) conduct experiments on newly discovered DNA plasmids in corn land sorghum that may lead to new disease resistance in improving these crops; (5) develop future disease-resistant hybrids from two new corn breeding lines from Central American wild corn.

— Development of sex attractant phermones against important pests of cotton, tobacco, corn, and velvet and western beans.

— Chemical, cultural and crop rotation practices control wild oats in wheat, barley, sunflower, soybeans and other crops. This already has resulted in a $500 million annual increase in farm income.

Animal Production

In animal production, current studies include:

— Vaccine research seeks, (1) a new combination vaccine that controls the more virulent strains of Marek's disease in chickens; (2) control of pseudorabies, a herpes disease that can cause 100 percent mortality in young swine, and parvovirus infection, which causes significant losses from reproductive failures; (3) an antibody that is an important first step to a vaccine against coccidoiosis, which costs the nation's poultry producers almost $300 million a year.

— A new synthetic control kills fire ants, a major pest of farm animals.

— Controls are sought for bluetongue disease, a serious viral infection of sheep, cattle, goats and wildlife.

Dairy Efficiency

— Research will improve dairy production efficiency by (1) development of a computerized dairy herd management system to diagnose mastitis, which causes about $2 billion in annual losses; (2) determining energy and feed requirements for crossbred cows based on genetic potential for mature size and milk production; (3) a cheese-yield-milk-pricing system that will allow dairy porducers to improve the fat and protein content of milk to raise their earnings.

Studies in food processing and consumer services include:

— New cold treatment technology for citrus, strawberries and cherries to replace fumigation with ethylene dibromide on some commodities. These measures can help assure continuation of the $200 million U.S. export market for these commodities in Japan.

— A rapid microwave treatment for producing salmonella foods in bagged corn-soy-milk blends.

— Development of standards and analytical methods to keep mold toxins out of cereal foods, milk and animal feeds.

— A new detection system for pest infestation of fruits, vegetables and meats in packages and travelers' baggage entering the United States.

Human Nutrition

Among current human nutrition studies are:

—Use of a new multi-element analyzer that can simultaneously analyze as many as 16 minerals and trace elements in one food sample.

— Experiments showing effects of fiber-rich diets on hormonal balance and as preventatives of bone disease.

— Procedures for determining vitamin K deficiency in the elderly.

— Research on the relationship between chromium deficiency and imparied glucose tolerance.

From these research projects, and many others, said Kinney, innovative and revolutionary new technologies will come to American farmers through USDA's Agricultural Research Service, the state Agricultural Experiment Stations, the Cooperative Extension Services at state universities and USDA's Extension Service.

Feeder pig show, sale on April 16

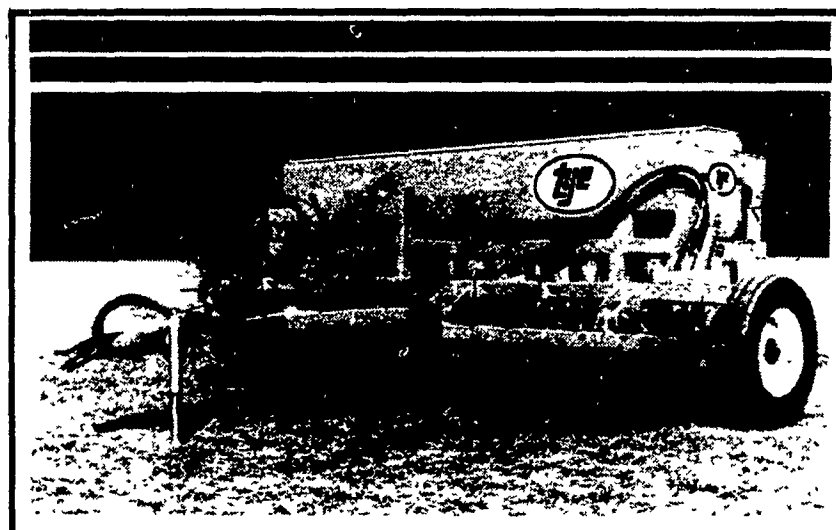
FELTON, Del. — A feeder pig show and sale is scheduled for Saturday, April 16, at Carroll's Sale Barn in Felton, Del. The event is sponsored by the Delaware Pork Producers Association and the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service.

The show is open to producers who are consigning pigs to feeder pig sales in Delaware, Maryland and Pennsylvania. Pigs must have Delaware or Maryland tags, however. These are available from the state veterinarian's office in Dover or from the Sussex County extension office in Georgetown, Delaware.

The event starts with check-in and weighing of pigs from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. Judging begins at 9:15 a.m. There are two weight divisions – 41 to 50 pounds, and 51 to 60 pounds. Prizes of $50, $25 and $15 will be awarded to the top three pens in each division. An entry consists of six pigs per pen. Producers may enter one pen in each weight division.

The sale takes place at 11 a.m. This will be a good opportunity for FFA and 4-H club members to buy pigs for the 1983 Delaware State Fair hog shows. A training session for 4-H and FFA members will begin at 9 a.m. in the sale barn.

For more information and entry forms, contact Richard Fowler, University of Delaware extension livestock specialist at 738-2505. Entries must be in by April 8.



Introducing Tye's New 10 Foot Stubble Drill™

The convenient 120-inch planting width complements the Tye line, which includes the 80-inch Pasture Pleaser® and the 160-inch Stubble Drill™. Tye's end wheel, pull-type design allows small tractors to perform large planting jobs.

The new model is equipped with the same performance proven planting system that is standard on Tye Stubble Drill™ and Pasture Pleaser® models—1. Heavy-duty tapered roller bearing coulter assemblies 2. Internally fluted seeders 3. Front delivery double-disc openers and 4. Press/depth control wheels

The new drill has fifteen openers with 8-inch row spacing and is driven by a center spring-loaded drive coulter, similar to the popular Tye Pasture Pleaser®. Options include: ★ Choice of coulter blades to match the jobs to be done, ★ Wide variety of press/depth control wheels, and ★ Legume attachment.

E-Town Fair seeking $2000 for livestock building roof

ELIZABETHTOWN — The Elizabethtown Fair Association is seeking $2,000 in pledges for the roof on a second permanent building at the Elizabethtown fairgrounds.

Fair sponsors already have pledged funds for materials to construct the 30-by-100 foot structure, which would be used to house livestock.

If funds for the metal roofing materials are pledged by the next fair board meeting on Thursday, April 14, at 8 p.m. in the agriculture room at Elizabethtown Area High School, the agriculture department's structures class can begin construction. Students would undertake the project as a learning experience, as they did with the Agricultural Exhibit Hall at the fairgrounds.

The new building would be designed for expansion of 10 feet on each end to an ultimate size of 50-by 100 feet, and would be completed by fair week, which runs Aug. 30 to Sept. 3.

Fair board president William Erikson noted that individuals and businesses have helped provide for premiums and awards through the sponsorship and patron drive. "Now we want to see whether area civic groups will sponsor this portion of the fair," he said.

"For the fair to succeed, we need broad-based support. This project would help the fair for years to come," Erikson said, adding that tent rental for the same size structure for a week would cost $1,200.

In other business, the fair board is lining up activities for fair week. Two of last year's favorites-arm wrestling and garden tractor pull-will be repeated.

Also being considered are a Battle of the Bands, one-day horse show, draft horse pull, sharp-shooting contest with bow and arrow, and tug-of-war between fire companies, service organizations, or any other kinds of groups.

Erikson invites interested persons to call him at 367-1521, ext. 226, with reaction to these suggestions, or any other ideas.

"We can use the fair to promote or showcase talents of area residents," he noted.

Between now and April 14, the board is putting final touches on the fair booklet, and wrapping up the sponsorship and patron program. Those still interested in becoming sponsors or patrons should call any board member.

Committee chairmen have been named as follows: dairy cattle, Bob Brandt; beef cattle, Harold Musser; sheep, Karen Wolgemuth; swine, Larry Mullen; dairy goats, Gary Bingaman; rabbits, Al Martin; tractor pull, Gilbert Martin; food and game stands, Dave Kramer; and agricultural and non-agricultural commercial exhibitors, Jim Hershey and Dave Kramer.

Funds are now being sought for a roof on a planned permanent livestock building at the Elizabethtown Fairgrounds. The structure will aid youthful exhibitors, such as Sheldon Heisey, shown with Wilmer Kreider, Willie the Butcher, at last year's sale of market hogs.

Anyone who wants to serve on a committee should notify these chairmen. Also, any of last year's exhibitors who want to make changes in the fair booklet should contact committee chairmen by the April meeting.

The fair board has decided to dedicate the 1983 fair booklet to Elizabethtown residents Richard and Kay Deckard for their outstanding community service and service to the fair. They are moving to Atlanta in late spring/early summer.

As board treasurer for many years, Deckard designed a computer program for the E-town Fair, making it one of the few computerized fairs in the state. His wife, Kay, served as board secretary for a number of years.

"This is the board's way of showing its appreciation," Erikson said.

The marketplace fair will again be held in the Brethren in Christ fellowship hall adjacent to the fairgrounds.

Chairmen for that part of the fair are forage crops, Becky Wivell; vegetables, Beverly Geesy; home and dairy products, Martha Gerber; needlecrafts, Mim Kauffman and Alma Espenshade; eggs, Sara Myers; fruit and nuts, Sara Myers; floral, Muriel Saylor, arts and crafts, Pat Drybred; and group exhibits, Pat Drybred.

The fair board has signed a contract with a new ride company, Thompson Ride Co. of Altoona, to provide the 1983 fair with bigger and better rides.

Food and game stands and commercial exhibit space are going quickly so contact Jim Hershey or Dave Kramer for reservations.

ET spells 'European trade' for Dennis Wolff

BY TRISH WILLIAMS

MILLVILLE — As part of its annual tour Thursday, the Lancaster County Holstein Club visited Pen-Col Farms, and examined the purebred Holstein herd owned by Dennis Wolff. Recieving tour groups is nothing new to Pen-Col Farms, Wolff sometimes hosts several groups a week. The popularity of his herd and farm extends the bounds of the state and the country, some of his cattle's offspring and embryos are in demand in Europe as well. The demand is the result of good management, knowledge of the purebred cattle industry and years of work to develop marketable trait and production characteristics in the cattle.

Dennis (Denny) Wolff's parents, Christian and Pearl, were once residents of Lancaster County. They moved from Quarryville to Millville over thirty years ago. Their farm has been a growing enterprise since the move, and many changes have been made to improve the operation. Two nearby farms were acquired and a retail dairy store was built.

Originally the Wolff's were Guernsey breeders but made the transition to Holsteins in 1972 when they became serious about merchandising their cattle, and Denny and his wife, Lois, became partners in the business with his parents. Denny and Lois are gradually buying out the parent's share of the business, and now own all the cattle and equipment. They have their own family of four children coming up. The children, Elizabeth, Corey, Benjamin, and Timothy, are still young and have not yet started working on the farm, but will get their chance soon enough, said Wolff.

A total of 500 acres are farmed, with 200 acres in alfalfa, 200 acres in corn and 100 acres in pasture and grass. The herd recieves a ration of haylage, corn silage, high moisture shelled corn and soybean oil meal.

Wolff has expanded his herd to a total of 400 head, 130 are cows the remaindor are young stock. The reason for the small proportion of cows to young stock is Wolff's extensive use of embryo transfer in his breeding program, thereby generating more offspring from his cows.

The rolling herd average is 18,000 pounds of milk and 700 pounds of fat. Twenty-five of the cows are classified as excellents, 19 as good plus and 65 as very good, leaving no room for slackers in the 97 tie stall barn. Wolff credits much of the success of his operation to hard working, conscientious employees. Clyde and Teena Fuoss, are the herdspersons who see to the care, feeding and milking of this outstanding herd.

A great deal of exacting detail is demanded of the Fuoss's because of the complications brought about by the embryo transfer work. Health care must be closely monitored, points out Wolff, making the Fuoss's indispensible to the operation.

Wolff and the Fuoss's do all the preparation of the donor cows and recipients. Hormone injections must be properly timed to assure the synchronization of the recipient with the donor.

Flushing of embryos is done every two weeks on the average, although there is no set schedule. So there is constantly certain cows that need to be closely watched. On the average 60 flushes are performed each year, but that number tends to grow each year.

Bill Pettit, D.V.M., of Vincentown, N.J., flushes the embryos from the donor cows and implants them the same day into recipient heifers. The flushing procedure is performed in the tie stall barn. Embryos are implanted into heifers in a specially equipped ET room on the heifer farm where Wolff lives.

"Basically we have three options of what to do with the embryos," said Wolff. "We can implant them here, we can freeze them, or we can export them fresh."

Very few of the embryos are sold presently in the United States, because of the relative expense compared to buying live animals. But ET has opened up a new market in Europe for the Pen-Col bloodlines. The genetic superiority of the Holsteins in the United States is in demand in Europe, but because the cattle in the United State are not blue tongue free, shipment of live cattle to European Common Market countries is very complicated and expensive. Live cattle are generally first shipped to Cananda, quarantined there for six months, blood tested and then shipped on to Europe.

ET allows direct shipment to Europe, eliminating a great deal of the expense. The embryos are put in a test tube of fetal calf solution, and a generally carried by a veterinarian in a specially designed vest, which maintains them at body temperature. Wolff markets 95 percent of his embryos and cattle to Europe through American Marketing Service (AMS), of Richmond, Va.

" We started out exporting in a small manner," Wolff explained. "We were unaware of what it was going to develop into. We began working with AMS on an order of bulls for Russia, which was a very commercial order. The pedigree

York Agent Smith to retire in mid-July

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — John T. Smith, York agricultural extension agent for the past 31 years, announced to a crowd of over 200 attending the extension's 66th annual banquet last Friday evening that he will retire in mid-July.

Smith's retirement announcement, and the tributes it generated from York's three county commissioners, left many in the audience at Avalong Farm's Restaurant with misty eyes.

Commissioners William McKinley, Jay Bair and Robert Bowers praised Smith's work in York County, after having learned just a few days prior to the meeting of his retirement plans. With his customary humor, the senior county agent noted that the time had come for him to tend to his own neglected backyard at home.

The announcement by Smith capped an evening of recognition for outstanding accomplishments by individuals in extension-related acitivities.

A check for $1,000 went to 4-H'er David Detter for his 1981 national win in the project area of wood science. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Detter, Old Carlisle Rd., Dover. A graduate of Dover High School, Detter attended Northwestern Preparatory School and is an early candidate to the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado.

Eight 1982 4-H state winners were recognized by 4-H agent Roxanne Price. The eight York winners represented a fourth of the state's total 33 winners who took part in the Chicago national 4-H Club Congress.

Those honorees were Bill Wise, beef; Mark Ebaugh; Kathy Bricker, food conservation and safety; Mike Welsh, petroleum power; Bob Livingston, commodity marketing; Bob Haskins, wildlife and fisheries; Susan Janney, science and Mark Loughran, electric.

Two special awards went to individuals in the home-economics field.

Beatrice Ballard, a former activities director of the York Crispus Attucks center, won the state association home economist's regional award given to individuals who uphold the home-ec ideals, without being an extension home economist.

Through her leadership activities with York's black community, Beatrice Ballard was instrumental in establishing food, nutrition and educational programs for both black and white adults and youth in the center city area.

When she retired at age 65, Mrs. Ballard volunteered her services to the York Recreation Commission, and continues to include nutrition and 4-H programs at the recreation center. She's served for six years on the Extension's advisory committee and works with numerous community organizations.

A Nittany Lion statuette was presented to York extension home economist A. Joan Lamberson in recognition of a national honor she received in October, 1982.

Mrs. Lamberson was named a distinguished service award winner by the National Associaton of Extension Home Economists during their convention in Missouri. That honor was based on her work in the areas of family living, housing and food and nutrition. She has been with the York extension offices for 21 years.

A plaque of thanks went to York insurance executive Arthur Glatfelter from the York 4-H advisory council, presented by chairman Pat Hogg.

Glatfelter made rural youth work history when he purchased FFA'er Annette Walter's winning Farm Show steer, and then donated the animal back to the 4-H and FFA programs for additional fund-raising. Over $38,000 has been generated for York County youth through Glatfelter's donation.

Guest speaker for the evening program was the Rev. James Tipton of Gettysburg Theological Seminary.

Thanks to Glatfelter

Arthur Glatfelter, who was instrumental in raising over $38,000 for York County 4-H and FFA in through purchase and donation of Farm Show champion steer, receives plaque of appreciation from Pat Hogg, head of the York 4-H advisory council.

Presidents cite Smith

John T. Smith, center, York Extension agent who announced he plans to retire after 31 years, is thanked for his many years of service by Stanley Brown, left, outgoing Extension president; and newly-elected president Robert Rebert.

Detter gets check

David Detter is awarded $1,000 check for his 1981 national 4-H win in wood science. Making presentation is York 4-H agent Roxanne Price.

There are new forage crops on horizon

PEORIA, ILL. — Doubtful oil reserves and supplies, rising fuel costs, pressures to reduce the farm cost-price squeeze and, most importantly, an urgent need to preserve this Nation's resource heritage, soil and water.

These are real forces causing U.S. farmers, ranchers, and agricultural scientists to re-evaluate forage crops – grasses and legumes – and the agronomic practices that affect them. When managed properly, forage pasture and range plants do more to preserve soil and water and maintain soil productivity than any other crops, says Gerald E. Carlson, program leadedr for forage and range research, USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Producers and researchers know that dairy cattle and meat animals can convert forages to food products from land that is often highly erodible and not suitable to many cultivated food and feed crops, he continues. This conversion not only produces food, otherwise unavailable, but also reduces loss of soil through erosion that now averages five tons or more an acre annually on much U.S. cropland.

They realize that production of forages, particularly legume forages and range grasses, may require less fuel and fertilizer, two costly ingredients of production, than other U.S. crops, Carlson says. They know also that bacteria on the roots of legume forages convert nitrogen from the soil atmosphere to a form the legume plants can use, and that some of the nitrogen is carried over in the soil for ensuing crops in a planned rotation.

For these reasons, ARS scientists are improving forage pasture and range species through research, often in cooperation with State agricultural experiment stations. This is done largely through plant breeding and selection and such other practices as improving cropping systems, tillage and seeding methods, and nitrogen fixation. Here are a few representative examples from studies on major forage pasture and range crops during the 1970's and 1980's, in various parts of the Nation.

A team of federal and state scientists at St. Paul, Minn. is redesigning alfalfa in basic research for use as an annual to enhance its value in crop rotations, potentially one of this nation's best tools for maintaining soil productivity. Alfalfa was chosen, the scientists say, because it is the most widely grown U.S. forage legume, occupying nearly one-tenth of all U.S. cropland, and it is efficient in fixing nitrogen for plant use. The new alfalfa, expected to be available to growers in the late 1980's, also could be grown in some areas where land is now fallowed, plowed and left idle for a year. Such a vegetative cover would help prevent water and wind erosion of exposed land

A major goal of the team is an alfalfa for use as an annual crop that, besides providing feed for livestock, will leave 150 pounds of nitrogen an acre for the following year's corn crop when plowed down. In limited field tests to date, the team has increased grain yields by 11 percent as a result of added nitrogen provided a corn crop following an experimental alfalfa grown as an annual.

A team of scientists at Tifton, Ga. has developed a new hybrid bermudagrass, Tifton 44, that is so nutrition-rich that, as a cattle feed, it could add millions of pounds of beef a year to the marketplace. Cattle eating Tifton 44 have averaged daily weight gains that are 10 percent higher than beef gains on Coastal bermudagrass, the most widely used productive pasture grass in the South.

Tifton 44 is also more winterhardy than Coastal and can be grown throughout a 500-mile strip of land running from the South Atlantic States to Central Texas. Bermudagrass is a long-lived perennial with a vigorous spreading habit. It establishes a thick ground cover and rooting system that is noted for superior protection against losses of soil and water.

Reed canarygrass may move up on the forage popularity charts because of a new low-alkaloid strain soon to be available to growers. Gordon C. Marten, ARS agronomist, found in studies at St. Paul, Minn. that lambs grazing the new strain, MN-76, gained 0.26 pounds per head per day while lambs on such older varieties as Vantage gained 0.18 pounds and Rise, 0.15 pounds per day. Reed canarygrass is widely adapted particularly in the northern half of the United States for wet pastures and for waterways. It also does well on upland soils. However, it has not been widely accepted by farmers because of its alkaloid content, low palatability, and problems with diarrhea. Only 3 percent of the lambs grazing MN-76 exhibited diarrhea in the 2-year pasture tests.

Scientists are determining more suitable cropping systems for legumes and breeding to improve legumes that are better adapted to acid soils, so common to the Northeast. This includeds birdsfoot trefoil, ladino clover, and red clover – all of which produce nitrogen from soil atmosphere to enhance plant growth.

Dairy scientist H. J. Larsen, University of Wisconsin, Madison, found trefoil-grass haylage (or silage) at least equal to alfalfa-grass haylage. Trefoil is grown on more than a million acres in the northeastern United States where soils are too wet for alfalfa. In the Wisconsin studies, dairy cows on the trefoil-grass haylage averaged 2.2 pounds more milk daily having 0.1 percent more butter fat. Some of the increase is attributed to higher grain intake by cows on the trefoil-grass haylage.

Agronomist Gordon C. Marten, ARS, St. Paul, Minn. tested lambs on a pasture system including birdsfoot trefoil and found they gained 23 percent more than lambs on alfalfa-grass pasture. The increase in meat produced more than offset the lower lamb carrying capacity an acre of trefoil.

Dairy nutritionist H. R. Conrad, Ohio State University, Wooster, found that ladino clover can make a good partner for alfalfa. Overseeded in alfalfa, ladino helped Advanced Design Makes The Difference!

As feed enters the loading hopper and into the stainless steel mixing drum the mechanical beam scale system weighs all ingredients to the pound for the precise diet your herd needs. The tilted rotating drum and stainless steel mixing paddles create a tumble-mix effect that quickly blends the feed ingredients in 1 to 3 minutes Due to the tilted position of the mixing drum, the feed is moved to the rear of the mixing chamber where the return paddles scoop the feed into the return auger The return auger then moves the feed to the loading end of the mixing drum where the tumble mix cycle is repeated To unload the blender no reverse rotating of the mixing drum is necessary Simply tilt the discharge deflector control to the unload position The feed is then deflected from the return auger into the discharge chute for quick unloading. The stainless steel construction of the mixing drum and mixing paddles resists unwanted forage material from building up inside the mixing chamber and insures a long rust free operating life. Bolt together construction allows for quick installation of the blender into existing feed rooms without widening doorways or removing standing walls Few moving parts along with standardized components allows for easy lubrication and quick maintenance; all critical for a successful T.M R feeding system supply protein for lactating dairy cows. The nutritionist used rotational grazing to keep the forages in the vegetative stage and thus prevented them from going to seed. The pasture produced 1,600 pounds of crude protein per acre, and the cows averaged 50 pounds of 4-percent milk a day without supplemental protein.

Forage specialist R. R. Seaney, Cornell University, Ithaca, says red clover has gained ground since the introduction of more persistent and disease-tolerant varieties: Arlington, Florex, and Redland, as examples. They produce one year longer than older varieties, have bred-in resistance to northern anthracnose, and often will outperform alfalfa on poorly drained soils.

Block seeks ag ed aid

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sec. of Agriculture John R. Block has asked all state governors to support a national project keyed to educating elementary and secondary school students about the role of agriculture in the national economy.

During a National Agriculture Day ceremony held at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Block mailed a petition to the 50 governors explaining the educational project and asking the governors to endorse the project. The petition was already signed by seven former secretaries of agriculture.

"When I contacted the secretaries – Brannon, Benson, Freeman, Hardin, Butz, Knebel and Bergland – and sought their support, they gave it willingly," Block said. "This is one issue on which we are in complete accord – the cricital importance of educating our young people about the role of agriculture in the national economy."

Secretary of Education Terrel H. Bell joined Block in promoting support for the agricultural education project.

The project, known as "Agricultural in the Classroom," is a cooperative endeavor involving representatives of farm and agricultural organizations, educators, state departments of agriculture and education and USDA.

Guided by a 16-member national task force, "Agriculture in the Classroom" is already operating in 17 states.

WE HAVE THE DEWORMER THAT BEATS TBZ® PASTE. NEW TRAMISOL® GEL.

TRAMISOL CATTLE ANTHELMINTIC GEL

Tramisol® levamosile Gel is the most potent dewormer ever packed in a tube. It gets all 9 major cattle worms at a single dosage level. TBZ® paste gets only 7 with two dosage levels. Tramisol Gel also gives you more doses per tube than TBZ, yet the tube is smaller and easier to handle than a TBZ paste tube. In short, new Tramisol Gel is what you'd expect from us. The best.

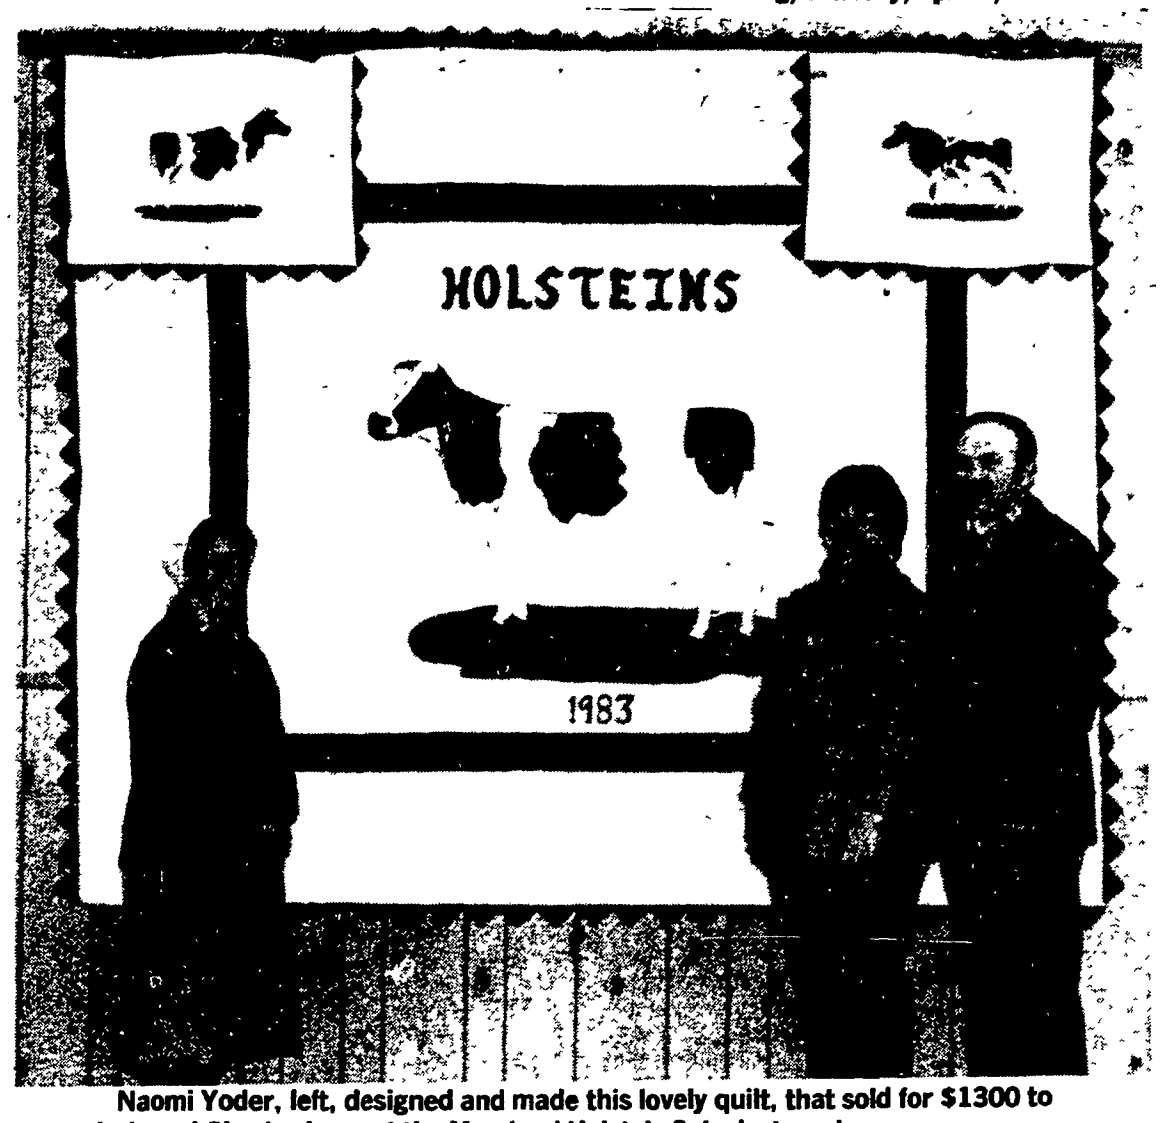
Holstein quilt sells for $1300

To kick off the Maryland State Holstein Sale in Grantsville, Garrett County, a beautiful handmade black and white Holstein quilt was auctioned off. Charles Iager of Fulton, Md., paid $1300 for the lovely.

The quilt's maker, Mrs. Naomi Yoder of Cherrie Kreek Holstein Farm, Oakland, Md., will add Iager's farm prefix "Md-Maple Lawn" to the quilt before she ships it down to the Iager family.

Charles and wife Judy were chairmen of last year's State Convention and Sake held in their native Howard County. Judy is a Maryland editor of Southeastern Holstein News, and she helped to cover this year's convention and sale.



Naomi Yoder, left, designed and made this lovely quilt, that sold for $1300 to Judy and Charles lager at the Maryland Holstein Sale, last week.

FFA competes in sports

LEBANON — The Cedar Crest FFA along with four other chapters, participated in a county FFA basketball tournament held March 1 at the Elco Middle School. Cedar Crest was defeated in the third game by Annville-Cleona who later went on to win the first place trophy.

The Cedar Crest Young Farmers won a five-game volleyball series over the Cedar Crest FFA on March 3. The Young Farmers took the series three to two with the fourth game deciding the title.

UEP calls for value-added PIK program

DECATUR, Ga. — United Egg Producers has reacted to egg producers writhing from increased feed costs and called upon the Administration to enact an export PIK program for value-added commodities.

UEP Chairman Ed Houston, Lumber City Egg Marketers, Lumber City, Ga., congratulated Ag Secretary John Block in the apparent success of the Payment-in-Kind (PIK) acreage diversion program but noted the adverse ramifications of the increased feed costs on the livestock industries.

Feed grains have recently risen $10 to $30 per ton. Houston noted that this increase was the result of market anticipation of substantial farmer participation. "Because the egg industry, like other agricultural producers, are coping with large surpluses, this increased cost cannot be recovered through higher prices to consumers," said Houston.

Houston reminded Secretary Block that egg producers have been unable to recover costs for some time and that this feed price rise translated into an additional expense to egg producers from 2 cents to 5 cents per dozen. Houston added that egg producers, through UEP, have petitioned for relief from the illegal trade practices by the EEC and have provided a proposal for USDA implementation of an export PIK program for value-added agriculture commodities like eggs.

UEP President Al Pope repeated this appeal for an export PIK program, noting that current inequities underscore the need for sound, well-thought-out agricultural farm policy that will benefit all aspects of agriculture. UEP has proposed a coalition of commodity groups to work with the Administration in achieving this goal. UEP has announced its intentions of working with other livestock groups in developing a means for the Administration to enact an export PIK program utilizing value-added products.

Wolff

requirements were not very great and the price was about the same as here. But AMS became familiar with our herd and we became familiar with their export service. It has just continually grown over the years."

Knowledge of the purebred Holstein industry has done much to advance the growth of his European market.

"We feel the main value of our cattle are the number of cattle we have with high indexes," claimed Wolff. "It has been our bread and butter the last four to five years. They are the cows the bull studs in this country will mate and buy bull calves from and that foreign countries want bull calves from."

Keeping that in mind and the requirement for high butterfat test by European buyers, Wolff has tailored his breeding program toward high TPI and PDM bulls. There are now six cows in his herd with an index over 2000 M. He uses bulls with a high PD for fat when planning matings targeted at the European market, bulls such as Very, Jemini and Spirit. Because buyers in Hungary have a preference for red Holsteins, Wolff has recently purchased an outstanding red Holstein cow for flushing.

Over the last four years, Wolff has exported over 100 bulls to France, and sold 50 bulls into A.I. service in the United States. His bulls and embryos have also been sold to bull studs in Spain, Russia, and Hungary. Despite his relatively large volume of European trade, he still has not made the trip himself, but hopes to in the future.

Through ET, Wolff was able to prove a valuable young cow, indexed at 2580 +M, free of mule foot. It was thought she might be a carrier of mule foot, so she was bred to Wayne Spring Fond Apollo, a carrier of the mule foot. She was flushed and the embryos were implanted in recipient heifers. Sixty days after implanting, the fetuses were aborted by a veterinarian and examined for mule foot. The fetuses' hooves were cloven, proving the cow to be free of mule foot. The cow was bred back to Browncroft Jetson, the highest PD milk bull in the breed. She freshened last week, giving birth to what Wolff believes will be his most valuable bull calf ever. See the accompanying photo.

Calves are housed in kennels and hutches until they are three months old, then they are trucked over to the VPI double slope heifer barn, where heifers are grouped by age. At 12 months of age the heifers are transferred to a free stall barn, where they stay until they are implanted. Almost all the heifers are implanted rather than bred.

First and second calf heifers are bred back artificially and not flushed, in order that they establish a calving interval and lactation records. Then if their pedegree and production records are worthy of ET they are flushed as a four year old. A favorite with tour groups is Inka Whirlhill Pabst Della, an 18 year old cow. Della has a lifetime record over 300,000 pounds of milk, and is part of the herd foundation. Wolff has sold 12 of her sons into A.I. service in the United States, and exported six others. She still is being flushed.

Wolff has several cows, like Della, that he says he will continue to flush without allowing them to carry a calf for a full gestation, as long as they respond to flushing. He has one cow he has been flushing for three years without calving. Flushes on individuals are a minimum of sixty days apart.

Wolff sells his milk to his parents, who operate the two retail milk stores. One store is located on the farm, the other is in Bloomsburg. The two stores process and sell 3500 gallons of milk per week, as well as cream, orange juice fruit punch and drink. Mary Steinruck has been responsible for processing for 13 years, and has learned the likes and dislikes of her customers.

Knowing and responding to the preferences of buyers has been the key to successful marketing at Pen-Col Farm.

The ET room in the heifer barn has facilities for implanting ten heifers at once, allowing an entire flush to be implanted immediately.

Ephrata YF wins tourney

QUARRYVILLE — Ephrata Young Farmers emerged as champions among the 14 teams that competed in the regional volleyball tournament at Solanco High School on Tuesday.

The runnerup team was the Garden Spot YF, of New Holland, Tied for third were the Penn Manor and Solanco Young Farmers. The 14 competing teams came from Young Farmer chapters in Lancaster and York counties.

Members of the championship Ephrata team include Earl Stauffer, Rick Pfautz, Clark Stauffer, Neil Crouse, Kevin Smoker and Dennis Saylor.

The top two teams will now move on to competition at the Pa. YF Summer Convention at Mifflinburg on July 8 and 9.

Lancaster Co. planners oppose Narvon Mine dump

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Planning Commission this week unanimously expressed its strong opposition to the proposed location of the hazardous waste dump at the Narvon Mine.

"The Planning Commission wishes to state its strong opposition to locating the facility at Narvon in Lancaster County," a letter signed by Nancy M. Puffer, Commission chairman, stated.

"Furthermore, the Planning Commission urges the Solid Waste Advisory Committee to oppose the proposal and to include this letter in its comments to the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources."

A comment by one of the Commission members, Donald A. Stollenwerk, apparently went to the heart of the widespread long-range opposition that has developed to the proposed facility.

"I'm wondering if I've come to the conclusion that burial of our waste, particularly hazardous waste, is not a proper land use no matter where it occurs."

The Commission said it had received letters of comment from 273 citizens, 12 organized groups and three industries. Only four citizens and the three industries expressed support for the proposed facility.

The Planning Commission said that it supports recycling and reuse of hazardous waste but recognizes that incentives are not presently in place to encourage this.

The Commission also stressed that the state must take the lead in reviewing the entire Comonwealth concerning waste dispopsal.

"A need exists to comprehensively review the entire state of Pennsylvania to identify areas where disposal sites will have the least environmental and social impacts," the commisssion said.

"The Planning Commission believes that this must be undertaken by the State, with extensive citizen, industrial and local government input, before individual sites are approved."

The Planning Commission said it opposed the proposed dump at Narvon for five reasons. In essence, these reasons include:

(1) Possible unforeseen pollution of surface or ground water in the area, which is largely agricultural and rural residential in nature.

(2) Inadequate access to the site, which is proposed to generate high volumes of truck traffic.

(3) Probability of pollution migration from the site that would likely increase as time went on.

(4) The proposed land use is incompatible with the existing rural residential and agricultural land use of the area.

(5) Adverse impact on tourism, the Amish culture and agriculture in Lancaster County.

Chile gets grain credit

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sec. of Agriculture John R. Block has announced approval of a $144.5-million package of blended credit and commerical credit guarantees for Chile.

Block said the credits will provide for the sale of about 700,000 tons of U.S. wheat and 300,000 tons of U.S. corn.

The package consists of $31 million in blended credit for the purchase of 200,000 tons of wheat and $113.5 million in guarantees under the regular credit guarantee program for the purchase of an additional 500,000 tons of wheat and 300,000 tons of corn.

Block said the package will enable Chile to increase its total grain imports above earlier planned levels.

Under the Commodity Credit Corporation bleded credit program, interest-free direct credits under the export credit sales program are blended with government-guaranteed bank credits under the export credit guarantee program.

ASCS sets '83 rates

WASHINGTON, D.C. — County loan and purchase rates for 1983-crop corn, wheat and sorghum were issued today by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Everett Rank, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said some adjustments of county and state rates have been made to reflect such factors as prices received by farmers, production and consumption trends and transportation costs.

Rank said county rates for corn are based on the national average loan and purchase rate of $2.65 per bushel announced earlier. The 1983 national rate for corn is 10 cents per bushel above the 1982 level, he said. Premiums were eliminated for corn with low moisture content, with a low percentage of broken kernels or foreign material. The discount was increased for heat damage and discounts for moisture now start at 14.01 percent moisture. These changes were made to bring premiums and discounts for corn into line with market conditions, Rank said.

Rank said the rates for wheat are based on the national average rate fo $3.65 per bushel which is 10 cents above the 1982 rate and are based on No. 1 grade wheat.

Rank said copies of the rates are available from the cotton, grain and rice price support division, USDA-ASCS P.O. Box 2415 Washington, D.C. 20013.

$2100 tops Devereux bull sale

By SYLVIA COOPER

DOWNINGTOWN — The first Missing Link Sale held by Devereux Soleil Farms, Saturday, here, copied the weather by getting off to a sunny start with a top price of $2100 for a yearling Black Angus bull. D S Band 169 998 went to Joel Colvin and son Robert of West Chester.

The bull was one of 30 purebred Black Angus bulls offered to breeders in the private treaty sale managed by Conrad Grove of Devereux Soleil. Of the bulls offered, only 16 actually sold with an average price of $1175.

"I was pleased the sale went as well as it did considering it was the day after the Penn State sale," Grove said.

All of the bulls offered for sale were pre-priced according to the results of the 140 day pinpointer performance test done earlier on the farm. From the data, they were able to select the fastest growing and most efficient bulls to offer for sale.

A Beef Performance Symposium was held prior to the sale.

Profit of testing

Less Burdette, Penn State, said that beef breeders should be buying bulls with above average performance tests because most improvement in the hed comes from the bull, no the maternal line.

Performance tests give a basis to compare the growth rate during the year and enable one to select animals with high average daily gain, Burdette said.

An advantage of performance testing is that beef breeders can identify cows to cull on the basis of performance of their offspring.

Conrad Grove, manager of Devereux Soleil Farms, left, and Joel Colvin, West Chester, stand behind the top selling Angus bull a the first Missing Link Sale.

Speakers at the Beef Symposium are from the left, Harold H. Harpster, Chester D. Hughes and Les Burdette. The importance of performance testing was the main topic of the Symposium.

Additionally, they can identify the most promising replacement heifers entering the breeding herd.

According to Burdette, a performance test definitely tells how that animal's offspring will perform, whereas pedigree oriented breeders can only predict the worth of a bulls offspring.

Buying bulls

Harold H. Harpster, Penn State, advised beef breeders to enroll in an organized testing program so that records will be available for bull buyers.

Of purchasing tested bulls, Harpster said that beefmen should look for high records with ratios over 100 or above the average. Other important considerations at buying time include a check for soundness, acceptable conformation and both a good sire and dam in the pedigree.

If good records are kept, Harpster said, one can select for increased yearling weight and weaning weight as well as compare the bull with his herdmates.

Harpster said that a large sized animal may not necessarily be as efficient as a smaller bodied animal.

It is economically important to select bulls for efficiency, but "it is difficult to accurately measure and make a fair comparison among animals," Harpster said. Differences in the efficiency between animals may occur as a result of the ration being fed, the environment, the animal's capacity for intake and frame size.

Harpster said that animals are usually compared unfairly, at different times during their growth cycle, accounting for some of the difficulties in measuring efficiency.

Chester D. Hughes, Lancaster Extension Agent explained the performance pedigree and how it is read.

"THE EXECUTIVE" 8085 SERIES II

Computer Controlled Dairy Feeding System

- Program Each Cow to receive the amounts of feed as compared to production.
- Easy To Operate
- Simple Installation

Efficient feeding = Higher PROFITS

Group feeding is costly and inefficient. To maximize your profits, you've got to supply each cow with the exact amount of feed she needs to maintain her milk production level. The computerized Selective Feeder Executive 8085 System lets you do just that. It's so effective, most dairymen find the system pays for itself in reduced feed bills and increased production in less than a year!

It's simple

You determine a daily feeding allowance for each cow by programming the computer to dispense a certain amount of feed during each 6, 8 or 12 hour cycle. You choose a unique ration for each animal by mixing supplement and base rations with the computer.

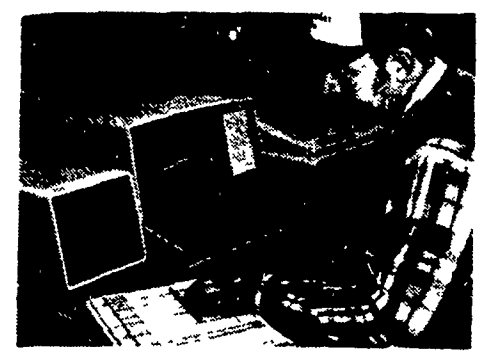
- Each cow wears an inexpensive, reliable identification tag.
- Cows can feed at any feeding station.
- Feeding auger automatically stops when cow steps away.
- Each cow receives only the amount of feed you have programmed for it.

Money-saving management tool

You can get a printout from the Executive 8085 at any time. Each printout gives you the valuable feed management information:

- Amount of feed programmed for each cow
- Amount of feed dispensed to each cow, this cycle
- Amount of feed dispensed to each cow, this month
- Summary of previous cycle.

You can quickly spot problem cows by asking the computer to print out all cows not eating 75% of their programmed ration.



Total herd management system

For a total dairy management system, connect your Selective Feeder System with our Zenith Farm Management System. Readouts are available in your office on the Zenith computer. Optional software programs allow you to integrate health, breeding, production and feeding management programs in one computer system.

Pa. Holstein Assn. launches milk promotion

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE — June Dairy Month restaurant promotions and supermarket samplings of dairy specialty products head the list of Pennsylvania Holstein Association's dairy promotion efforts now in planning.

State Holstein members wrapped up their February convention in Erie with a mandate to focus the efforts of the organization on dairy promotion. Goal of the long-range promotion project is to involve each of the 49 county Holstein clubs, and ideally, each of the overe 6,000 member families, to become involved in dairy promotion at state, county, and personal levels.

At their meeting on March 18, the Holstein Association's state promotion committee members suggested a broad range of promotional projects for consideration, but emphasized that county groups should work closely with the already-established local princess and promotional committees.

Initial thrust of the Holstein associations project is to put milk promotional materials in hundreds of sit-down restaurants across the state for June Dairy Month.

A kick-off series of area Holstein meetings for county club leaders, and dairy princess committee heads, will be underway by late April. Included in the program will be a brief background on the milk marketing structure in Pennsylvania, current pormotional programs now in use by the Atlantic Dairy Association, and a how-to session on the June restaurant promotional effort, with appropriate materials available.

Special materials designed for the restaurant campaign will tie in with the highly-successful Atlantic Dairy Association's "Milk. It's Fitness You Can Drink." promotion. Table tents, menu clip-ons and place mats are among the material possibilities suggested for use in the restaurant campaign.

Promotion committee members saw the restaurant campaign as one that could be expanded into some type to recognition program to those establishments that serve all real dairy foods.

Already available are printed cards, to be left with a meal tip, that either praise a restaurant for the use of real products, of if limitations have been served with a meal, suggest that real dairy products would be preferred.

Shopping mall promotions, billboard advertising and the purchase of radio time by county clubs are othere suggestions. Radio spots are already taped, and Holstein clubs can add their own sponsorship announcement if they purchase air time on local radio stations.

Billboard materials, on the fitness theme, are available free of charge to clubs that may be interested in leasing space from advertising firms, or constructing billboard space on their own farms. Local advertising and sign ordinances should be checked first by groups considering this type of roadside advertising.

Four billboard designs around the fitness promotion are available, featuring swimming, racquetball. biking and aerobics themes. A $25 tagging fee is charged to add the sponsoring organization's name to the billboard display.

The "Better Body Book" is a promotional hand-out available to Holstein clubs that can be distributed to local health clubs and aerobics classes. Geared to the fitness trent that is sweeping the country, the "Better Body Book", copyrighted by the Atlantic Dairy Association, includes diet and exercise information, including menues and recipes.

Milk handling in local school districts remains a concern of the promotion committee. Posters on keeping milk cold in cafeteria settings are available, free of charge, from the state Department of Agriculture.

Serving of milkshakes with school lunchs, to encourage the consumption of both dairy products and the balanced lunch, is under study. A very successful milkshake program is already in place in several Maryland county school districts, and personnel in charge of running that program are eager to share their milkshake handling methods. Further details are available from the Holstein office at State College.

Holstein members are encouraged to be in close touch with their local schools, provide programs on dairying to students, and serve as hosts for school field trip farm visits.

Stressing the concern that farmers too often "talk to themselves," promotion committee members suggest that farmers said county Holsteins clubs become active in civic groups such as the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary, Lions and similar service organizations, offering dairy-oriented programs whenever possible.

With the show and fair season approaching, clubs are encouraged to use such settings as still another outlet for reaching out with promotional materials. Signs, dairy food samples and promotion efforts can help customers relate to the tie between the animals on exhibit and the dairy products they purchase while shopping.

An assortment of materials some free of charge, most sold at cost, are available on both the current fitness theme and general dairy promotion.

Fitness theme items include milk tanker decals, litterbags, bumper stickers billboard materials the "Betty Body Book." "Real-Seal" lapel pins, pencils and pencil sharpeners, rulers, key chains, cow-shaped cookie cutters, bumper stickers, antique two-gallon milk bottles and milk pitchers.

Price lists for these materials are available from county dairy princess committee chairmen or from the Atlantic Dairy Association's office at 355 N. 21st Street, Suite 203, Camp Hill, Pa., 17011, telephone 717-763-4854.

Young farmers learn dairy policy at IMPCO seminar

LANCASTER, PA — Pressures to dismantle the dairy price support system are growing because "the dairy surplus situation makes us so vulnerable," commented Susan Fridy, legislative representative for National Milk Producers Federation, at an Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative seminar.

"The dairy industry has to present a united plan to Congress that will solve the dairy surplus," Fridy told the 28 Young Cooperators. She estimated surplus dairy stocks will cost the Commodity Credit Corporation $2.4 billion this year.

Seminar speakers pointed out that legislative contact is a necessity. Nat Cushman, Agri-Mark director, provided insights into developing a political action committee (PAC). Cushman noted that PACs give organizations political identity, can consolidate small contributions from constituents and aid in keeping legislators in touch with farm programs.

Cushman stressed that Agri-Mark's PAC is a voluntary association for collecting and distributing contributions to political candidates. When asked if so many agricultural PACs were necessary, Cushman pointed out that general ag associations often support policies that vary from the dairy industry's stand, making specialized groups important.

In other comments, Robert M. Dever, business manager and treasurer of Inter-State, said the implementation of the 50-cent assessment on April 16 will be "the result of cooperatives' and dairy leaders' inability to work together to solve the surplus problem."

He noted that the assessment program would provide approximately $60 million a month towards offsetting the costs of the price support program, adding that Inter-State producers alone would pay $1 million into the program each month. The 65-year-old cooperative marketed more than 2.4 billion pounds (279 million gallons) of milk in 1982.

THIS WELL-BUILT MANURE TANKER SPREADS AN EXCELLENT PATTERN ON YOUR FIELDS

Because this well-built manure tanker from WIC shoots the discharge slurry up, and baffles the spread down, you get an even coverage pattern on your fields. Better than most makes and models, we think.

In addition, the adanced design allows you to do the job with very few moving parts on the spreader. Gravity settles the slurry into the fan. The fan blows the slurry over the top of the spreader in a 6" pipe and out the back. So simple you know the unit will be easy to maintain.

So while this well-built manure tanker comes to you under a new name, you still get the same excellent spread pattern on your fields. Write for special prices now in effect and model information to US Agri-Systems, 3053 Barren Rd., Oxford, Pa. 19363, or phone 301-398-2948.

PDA calls surplus food meeting for April 13

HARRISBURG — Public officials and nonprofit organizations involved in the distribution of surplus food commodities are being invited to Harrisburg for an April 13 meeting to assess the impacts of recent state and national developments on the distribution program.

State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell said the meeting was scheduled by the state and federal Departments of Agriculture to discuss administrative changes, program expansion and recent federal legislation.

Andrew P. Hornsby, Jr., Administrator of the MidAtlantic Region of the USDA's Food and Nutrition Service will join with state officials in conducting the meeting. Hornsby and his staff will identify alternatives and clarify federal requirements at that time.

"Many public officials and charitable, nonprofit organizations have expended tremendous volunteer efforts during the 15-month Special Dairy Distribution. Through their assistance, Pennsylvania is a national leader in distribution of cheese and butter to needy citizens," Hallowell said.

"However, recent developments, including President Reagan's announcement to expand these programs and federal legislation will have a significant impact on future efforts. This meeting has been scheduled to provide officials and agencies with information and to give them a forum for questions on their involvement with the program," he said.

The President on March 22 announced that the program would be expanded to include limited quantities of rice, cornmeal and non-fat dried milk, commodities which do not require refrigeration. That same day, Congress passed legislation further expanding commodities that can be distributed and allocating $50 million to fund storage transportation costs.

"In the past several weeks, USDA has begun allocating cheese and butter on a state-by-state basis due to processing delays," Hallowell said. "We have not yet been advised of Pennsylvania's monthly allocation, but we will continue and expand the distribution program wherevere possible.

"To do so, it is essential that all agencies involved, from the local volunteer through the USDA, understand the needs, the problems and the potential solutions," he said. "Our goal, and the reason for the April 13 meeting, is to insure that every possible step is taken to provide these surplus commodities to the needy citizens of Pennsylvania with as little confusion as possible.

"I am pleased that USDA has agreed to join with us in the meeting, and to work with us in the meeting and to work with us in adapting the program for the future," Hallowell said.

nature packs your haylage with nutrition.

By the time your haylage gets to the bunk, much of the nutritive value may be lost. That's why innovative farmers use CROP-SILE. It's a low-cost combination of stabilizers, antioxidants and flavors that locks in the fresh-cut benefits of high-moisture crops. Besides the added feed value and greater palatability, CROP-SILE also works to curb excessive fermentation, oxidation, waste, shrink and heat build-up. CROP-SILE can make a big difference in your returns.

The results are in terms of added feed appeal, greater feed value at feeding time and higher feed efficiency.

Make sure you save the nutritious crop you worked so hard to grow. Get CROP-SILE. It will help keep nature's nutrients in your haylage.

DALLASTOWN — York County Pork Producers met last Saturday at Blymire's Church for their annual dinner and meeting.

Program for the evening included a film presentation on the hog disease mycoplasma pneumonia and speaker Dr. Dean Snyder, a veterinarian who works closely with the pork industry.

Dr. Snyder cited two factors that most greatly affect feed utilization and efficiency in a production operation. Management is the first, and included the total environment in which the animal lives, as well as the capability of the working equipment within the feeding setup.

Disease is the second greatest factor affecting hog production efficiency, and Dr. Snyder told pork producers that vet costs now run approximately one dollar per hog per year.

At least a dozen feed additives are on the market, approved for use by the Food and Drug Administration. According to the veterinarian, all are proven effective for disease control and will result, if used properly, in economic gains.

Their use, he noted, should be viewed not as a cost, but rather as an investment.

However, Dr. Snyder emphasized that all antibiotics are not the same, not even those drugs closely related in makeup. Each has a particular purpose. and any producer incorporating them into a feeding program must be knowledgement of which antibiotic works for each problem.

He added that antibiotics only kill bacteria, and do not "cure" disease. Once the treatment has eliminated the bacteria, it is the animal's body that actually cures itself. To prevent disease problems, an antibiotic must be present in the tissue before any bacteria arrive there.

Ash rust treatment given

NEWARK, Del. — Last year's outbreak of rust disease has many owners of ash trees wondering how they can protect these tall shade-givers from further injury this season.

Ash rust is a disease caused by a fungus—Puccinia spanganioides. When green and red ash trees are affected by this condition, their leaves become distorted and leaf stalks swell. The yellow spores of the fungus are produced in small cup-like structures over the swollen leaf areas.

University of Delaware extension plant pathologist Bob Mulrooney says the disease caused considerable leaf loss among many ashes last spring to find out how they can help their trees recover, or protect them from further injury.

"I recommend you fertilize last year's victims now with a 10-6-4 grade fertilizer," the specialist says. "Apply a pound of fertilizer for each inch of trunk diameter. Punch holes in the ground 6 to 8 inches deep every 2 feet around the drip-line of the tree and distribute the fertilizer equally in them.

"Most years I don't feel it's economically feasible to spray for ash rust," he says. "But there may be situations where spraying might be considered." In these cases, he suggests spraying with maneb or zineb at budbreak, and twice more at 10- to 14-day intervals. This may give some control.

The proposed bill exempts the transportation of live poultry in crates, so long as not more than 15 pounds of live poultry are allocated to each cubic foot of space in the crate.

–The bill sets limits on the amount of work that a horse, mare (?), mule, ox or any other animal may do in a day or week. The limits are 15 hours in any 24-hour period, or 90 hours in any one week.

And even if animals are worked less than those limits, that work can not violate laws against cruelty to animals.

–Persons may not knead, beat or pad the udder of any cow or allow cow to go unmilked for a period of 24 hours or more or enhance the appearance or size of the udder.

–Or may not muzzle any calf less than six weeks old to prevent its taking nourishment and thereby relieving the udder of a cow.

–Persons may not crop or cut the ears of dogs and to show cropped dogs, the cutting must be done by a vet and the owner have a certificate to this effect or a certificate of registration from a county treasurer showing the cutting was done before the bill became effective.

–Also, it would be illegal to shoot, maim or kill any antwerp or homing pigeon or detain or trap any such pigeon which carries the name of its owner.

Ag development

A number of farm groups are calling for public hearings on it.

In other ag related bills, Sen. Noah Wenger has introduced a bill to remove the eight percent ceiling on the stock dividends of farm cooperatives.

Wenger said that his bill, Senate Bill 471, would help cooperatives compete more effectively in financial markets so they can maintain or improve their services to farmer members.

A similar bill has been introduced in the House. At first, its dividend limits were tied to U.S. Treasury bonds, but this limitation has since been removed because current money market conditions would further impede the dividend level.

entire tract. Only the two acres would be subject to reassessment and tax roll-back. The commercial activity would have to be operated by the landowner or his beneficiaries who are defined as Class A for inheritance tax purposes.

The amendment, contained in Senate Bill 380 passed the Senate by 48-0.

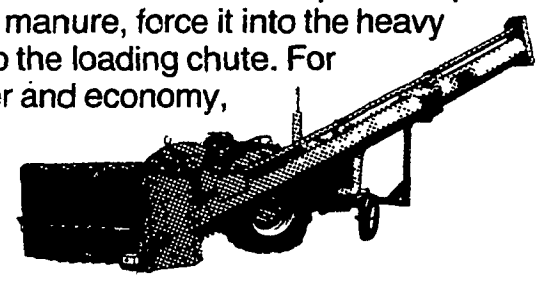
You can bet on the spread from Hedlund-Martin

Equipment to solve your manure handling problems.

Save your time and money by using machinery designed to bridge the gap between liquid and solid manure handling:

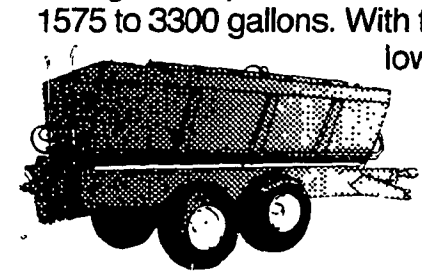
The Equalizer

Loads manure too thick to pump and too thin to bucket. Powerful blades in the scoop break up the most crusted manure, force it into the heavy auger, and up the loading chute. For loading power and economy, there's nothing like the Equalizer.



The Vanguard

Hauls liquid and semi-solid manure fast, up to 600 gallons per minute. Capacities range from 1575 to 3300 gallons. With the Vanguard you get a low cost-to-capacity ratio, low maintenance, and extra heavy construction for years of tough use.



The Scavenger II

The ultimate machine to handle all your manure, year 'round. Handles liquids, semi-solids, pen or pack, even frozen manure. It unloads faster and uses less horsepower than a flail spreader. The Scavenger II is built with heavy duty chain drive and rugged construction throughout. You'll get an even spread up to 50 feet wide. Your first glance will tell you the Scavenger II is unlike any spreader you've ever seen.

Purina gives open house details

LANCASTER — John R. Block, Secretary of Agriculture, will deliver the keynote address at the Grand Opening of Ralston Purina Company's new Lancaster, Pennsylvania Chow feed manufacturing facility.

More than 3,000 agriculture-oriented people from the area are expected to attend the grand opening which begins at 10 a.m. William M. Jones, Presient of Purina's Agri Products Group, and other Company officials will serve as hosts. Several Pennsylvania elected officals and local dignitaries will also be on hand.

Block is scheduled to speak at about 11:30 a.m.

Purina's new state of the art mill was completed in January and has a production capacity of 150,000 tons of feed per year. Grand opening ceremonies will be held at the mill located just west of Lancaster on U.S. 30-exit at Centerville.

Secretary Block is expected to comment on his recent trip to Europe and will also discuss the current prospects for improvement in the farm economy.

Tours of the new facility, live animal displays, Purina product demonstrations, entertainment and lunch will also be provided.

FRUIT TREES

It's not too late...

To order your fruit trees for this year's planting. Write or call today for our 1983 catalog to M. Worley Nursery, Rt. 1, York Springs, PA 17372, phone 528-4519 or 528-4434.

We'll be selling our quality fruit trees at the Green Dragon Farmer's Market, April 8, 15, 22, and 29. If you live in the area and order 5 days prior to one of the above dates we can, at your request, bring your order along for you to pick up.

Look for us also at the Roots Farm Market, April 5, 12, 19, and 26.

THIS IS THE BEST WAY TO PUT UP YOUR HAYLAGE CROP - HERE'S WHY:

1 Better light reflectivity. The light gray Madison Vibra-Cor® staves reflect light 2½ times better than dark blue — and better than any other stave. Result: Less temperature fluctuation in the structure.

2 Better insulation value. Concrete is a much better insulation material than steel! And the unique Vibra-Cor® design makes a Madison stave better than any other concrete stave. Result: Your Madison provides lowest possible temperature variations.

3 Less expansion and contraction. The real key to top quality haylage. Less heat transfer. Less "breathing." A better atmosphere for a perfect feed — no matter how much the weather fluctuates.

4 The best unloader. Laidig. Madison helped develop it and knows it inside and out. So your new Nutri-Matic was designed to make the most of this remarkable unloader that's been called "the best there is"!

5 Greater Capacity. Because a Madison Nutri-Matic® 20'x70' measures 20 feet inside diameter and 70 ft. high = 21,980 usable cu. ft. You get what you paid for. Not 19' 7" x 64'4" = 19,372 usable cu. ft. in a blue silo. Madison Nutri-Matic 20x70' gives you 446 tons of storage vs 314 tons in a 20x70 blue silo.

6 Better Service. Ask a Madison Nutri-Matic owner. For over 65 years, Madison service people have been building a reputation for dependable service. On call 24 hrs. every day.

7 Lower Maintenance. No breather bags to replace. The Laidig unloader is backed by our professionally trained servicemen. We provide Madison and Laidig service schools for our owners. No wonder Madison Nutri-Matic owners have the lowest maintenance costs of any bottom unloading structure.

When you're ready to add a bottom unloading structure to your feeding program look at all of the structures available. When you have, call us. We'll take it from there.

PIK

to the soil and build soil tilth and texture.

Hatley cautioned farmers against over-spending for seed and fertilizer when establishing the stand, since they won't be able to sell the crop due to regulations of the PIK program. He recommends controlling weed growth and using enough seed to close the canopy of the crop to prevent runoff.

"If the previous crop was corn," Hatley said, "the presence of Atrazine residues would prevent short-term legumes and grasses from germinating." In such a case he recommends planting sorghum or sudan grass, although this crop isn't common in the county.

Spotty growth of weeds, like Johnsongrass, should be controlled at this time, Hatley said, in order to prepare the land for cultivation in the future.

Tom Johnston, Lancaster County Soil Conservation Service Director, advised that farmers plant a mixed crop of grass and legume. The grass would be less likely to allow erosion than a solid legume crop because of its thicker root system.

"Soil tests of the land in the PIK program are practical at this time," Johnston said. "They allow the farmer to improve his soils over a longer period of time."

After August 31, PIK designated land can be grazed. For farmers wishing to establish a permanent pasture, he recommends they consult the SCS office to plan the change.

Johnston said that this is a good time to update the conservation plan and implement various conservation measures. Contouring, sod waterways, terraces and drainage systems are a few alternatives open to farmers with erosion problems.

Ag safety

that it would have to compete with other ag programs for funding. States would have to recut the funding pie and establish priorities for various items, including safety.

How that may affect ag safety specifically would depend on each state and how much importance is placed on that effort.

And what does ag safety include? Let's look at Pennsylvania as an example.

Here are some of the efforts under the direction of Dennis Murphy, Penn State Extension Safety Specialist, that are familiar to farmers:

There's the safety demonstrations and displays staged each year at Ag Progress.

And, the county programs held in conjunction with Farmers' Associations or Extension, including tractor, machinery and toxic gas safety.

Farm accident rescue has been a particular effort in recent years. This program familiarizes volunteer firemen and ambulance personnel with farm equipment, including shutting it off and extricating trapped victims.

Murphy also collects farm accident data and maintains the only statewide figures on types and locations of farm accidents.

In other states. these and other similar programs are included in the safety programs.

And, these could be the programs that may feel the effects of the planned change in federal funding for agriculture.—DA reduced dairy income on various segments of the industry.

Milton Hallberg, ag economist at Penn State addressed the conference on Wednesday on the effect of reduced dairy income on the Northeast. Hallberg is part of research team that recently investigated the subject by analyzing 1850 actual farms in New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont. He presented the results of the study and their implications.

He reported the cash cost of producing a hundred weight of milk ranged from $5 to $15, signifying that there is room for efficiency improvements on some of our dairy farms.

"Interestingly enough a number of the smaller dairy farmers have little or no debt," said Hallberg. "The smaller farmer is not necessarily in more financial difficulty than is his larger counterpart under sharply reduced milk prices."

"Those farmers using good management techniques and modern technology, located on the more productive soils, large enough to take full advantage of scale economies, and surrounded by other dairy farmers on good roads will have a competitive advantage," Hallberg indicated. "The smaller farms at some distance from other farms and at the margin of bulk tank routes will face stiff challenges."

Hallberg voiced concern over a dwindling infrastructure to serve dairy farmers, as a result of dairy farms becoming more disperse. Transportation costs will increase causing a trend to fewer processing plants. He said that processing plants that have expanded to handle the current surplus, may be financially stressed when there is a reduced supply because they have generated too much excess capacity.

Keynote speaker, Kenneth Farrell, of Resources for the Future, spoke on the role of imports and exports. He said that the basic problem in trying to increase exports is that the surplus is not limited to the United States and that existing trade agreements with friendly countries limits our marketing ability abroad.

David Hume, of M. E. Frank, Inc., stated that the marketability of dairy products abroad is further limited by lower world market prices, caused in part by the subsidy of dairy products in the European Economic Community. To increase exports, said Hume, we need to be more aware of what the foreign market wants. There is not much demand for salted butter abroad, but that butter can be made into a more marketable cheese product.

A European view of the dairy market was given by Stephen O'Connor of the Waterford Cooperative Society in Ireland. O'Connor claims the EEC has a larger surplus problem than the United States, with a 20 percent surplus compared to our five percent. Non-fat dried milk is now being 'recycled' into animal feed in Europe, and subsidized exports are being shipped to Russia in order to move more milk. The EEC has a policy of trying to move out the surplus rather than store it.

Steven Kerr, protege to Congressman Jeffords, addressed legislative matters. He said that Congress is flooded now with legislation and that the proposed dairy legislation is not a top priority, nor does the dairy industry stand in the best light with Congress at this time. He said he believes it will be difficult to get any dairy legislation through

Pittard gets Pennfield post

LANCASTER — John S. Pittard has been appointed processing superintendent for Pennfield Farms Poultry, a division of Pennfield Corporation. The poultry plant, located in Fredericksburg, processes and packs fresh poultry products for distribution in Pennsylvania, New York, and other major metropolitan areas.

A native of Atlanta, Ga., Pittard received his B.S. in Poultry Science from the University of Georgia. He was formerly employed as first processing superintendent at Spring Valley Foods, Heflin, Ala., where he began as cutup supervisor, and later was appointed department manager of receiving, picking, and eviscerating.

He and his wife Myra, and son Jason, reside in Mt. Aenta.

Montgomery offers no-till planter

NORRISTOWN — The Soil Conservation Service in Montgomery County is aiding farmers who want to try No-Till farming this year," says Stephen Hill, soil conservationist. The Montgomery County Conservation District is sponsoring the use of a John Deere Max Emerge Corn and Soybean No-Till Planter. The cost is $9 an acre to the farmer.

"We have a lot of interest in the planter," says Hill. "We have 15 farmers who have committed 250 acres to no-till who have never done it in the past. Most of the interest has come from dairy farmers who just don't have the time in the spring.

"No-till will help to get the corn in early enough so as not to miss spring rains and early growth," says Hill.

Most areas have only a few days to get corn planter, or face yield loss. According to the Pennsylvania State Agronomy Guide, it may be as high as 1 bushel per acre per day past this ideal planting time.

"Our major goal in promoting this program is to increase farmer productivity, and in the process, reduce soil erosion up to 95% in some fields," says Hill.

"Although most fields will benefit by no-till, a further evaluation of the area may dictate the use of other measures, such as waterways, terraces, and drainage of wet areas, all of which the engineering, layout, and proper installation are assured to the farmer by the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) at no cost", explains Hill.

Farmers or landowners interested in no-till or conservation practices may contact the Soil Conservation Service at 1725 Markley St. Norristown. Phone 279-1178, or the Montgomery County Conservation District, One Montgomery Plaza, Norristown, Phone 278-3618.

ECI Soft Design INFLATIONS

NEW 16R2EB REPLACEMENT FOR Bou-matic

These quality points prove ECI's superiority

ECI Soft Designs are scientifically designed and field tested to bring you the finest inflation on the market. A true cow-comfortable cushion top assures

- Complete freedom of milk flow
- Reduced 'squawking' due to air leaks
- Reduced fall offs
- Reduced ring around the teat
- And the shell seal folds up for easy assembly and still maintains a positive, tight seal.

16R2EB CROSS SECTION

There's an ECI Soft Design Inflation made for virtually every milking machine.

Easter means springtime, and. . .

Springtime means lambing season at the Lewis farm

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

Easter brings the promise of new life, and springtime exemplifies this promise through the awakening of nature. One of the true rites of spring in agriculture is lambing, with lambs depicted in Easter pictures and candy as fluffy, adorable creatures, full of fun and easy to love. In reality, they are exactly that - fluffy, cute and sure to win over young hearts.

Thirteen-year-old Ellen Lewis is participating in this spring tradition, with her 4-H project ewes giving birth to a total of 10 offspring. At lambing time, it is important to be nearby to assist with the lambing and to make sure that the newborns get their first drink of colustrum from their mother to get them off to a good start.

Ellen explains, "Sometimes they need help to learn to know how to care for their lambs." Of course, if there are problems, some lambs become bottle-fed lambs to make sure they prosper.

Ellen has been a member of the Lancaster County 4-H Woolies Club for three years, but has shown animals in just the last two years. She used her first year of membership as a time of learning and becoming acquainted with what was expected of her as a 4-H member.

Her learning paid off well, and in just two years of showing. Ellen has accumulated many awards and lots of useful experience. Last year she won first place with her project book, largely on the basis of an excellent, detailed story. In her first year she had grand champion Hampshire at the Manheim Farm Show, reserve champion at the 4-H round-up and reserve champion at Farm Show. She says, "I did well. I didn't know what I was doing, so to me I look so dumb now."

Nevertheless, the experience in the show ring paid off and gave Ellen an encouraging start on her 4-H career. She admits, "I was kind of scared the first time I had to show. I was a little nervous about it because I never did it before."

Ellen lives on a 12-acre farm with her parents, George and Lorraine Lewis, 606 Stony Battery Road, near Salunga. She had always grown up around animals and says she chose sheep for her 4-H project because "I had always wanted a lamb when I was little."

When the Lewises decided to purchase a 4-H animal they turned to Clyde and Dorothy Brubaker on the Harrisburg Pike, well-known local breeders of Hampshire sheep. They chose Hampshires because of the availability of good stock through the Brubakers and also because, as Ellen puts it, "They are good, all-purpose sheep."

The Brubakers not only supplied them with good sheep, they also supplied them with lots of encouragement and support. In Ellen's first open show she was positioned close to Clyde who encouraged her throughout the class. Ellen recalls, "The junior show was much easier."

In her second year of showing, Ellen expanded her project animals to four, and this year with the birth of the additional lambs, she hopes to be showing even more animals. She plans to keep at least one of the rams which were born so that she can show in group classess such as pen of lambs and breeders' flock.

Showing is a lot of fun, but it is also hard work. Ellen estimates that it takes about 3½ hours to wash, trim out the bellies, hand clip and card a sheep to get it ready for the show ring. The work of preparing the animals is divided. Ellen's mother Lorraine points out, "It is a family project." Ellen and her mother wash the animals and Ellen and her father clip and finish them. The first year of showing, the leaders give 4-H'ers lots of assistance, but this year Ellen is looking forward to taking over more of the clipping herself.

The work of caring for her small flock on a daily basis is divided between Ellen and her father. George feeds them in the morning and Ellen does the chores after school.

Later in the spring, Ellen will begin the work of getting the show animals ready for showing. After halter breaking them, she walks them so they get acquainted with her and used to handling. While market lambs must be exercised to help them develop properly, Ellen walks her lambs just to work with them. She uses the fields around her home to walk them, but has also become a familiar sight in the nearby housing development. She says people express surprise when they see her lambs on a halter, but she adds that some shows require a halter, while some prohibit it. In any case, she says she feels more confident when she is using a halter. "I used it the first year I showed," she says.

Ellen's first 4-H project, Annabelle, became not only a family favorite, but also something of a celebrity. Because of her nice disposition, Annabelle traveled twice to Park City as part of the Farmer's Association promotion and was in the church Christmas pageant. She also appeared on WGAL (with Ellen) on its Rise and Shine program. It was almost as if Annabelle had learned the nursery rhyme, "Mary had a Little Lamb," and was living it out with Ellen, because she did follow Ellen wherever she went.

In fact, Annabelle was so cooperative that Ellen still uses her to encourage new sheep as she works with them. Annabelle knows just what to do and the others will follow her lead.

Ellen points out that each lamb has a different personality or characteristic, and must be treated as an individual in preparing them for their showing debut. Not all are as pleasant as Annabelle, and one of Ellen's even earned itself the nickname "Dumbelle" because of its stubbornness.

Enthusiastic about belonging to 4-H, Ellen is especially happy with an animal project. She says, "You have to be responsible to care for them. It is good experience."

She has expanded her 4-H involvement by working out with the livestock judging team, although she is not yet old enough to become a member. "That gives you self-confidence, and you learn to speak because you must give reasons in front of the judge." She says it is one of her goals to become a judging team member. She learns about other animals as well, since they must evaluate all kinds of livestock. In fact, since she's been working with the livestock team, Ellen thinks she'd like to have a steer as a project, but she has not yet convinced her parents of that.

A further expansion of her horizons came when she entered the Ladies Lead Line competition this past year at the encouragement of her mentor, Sarah Fleener. Ellen said, "You are judged on the way you present the sheep, on the outfit, and the way you present yourself. It was a good experience. You model your outfit on a platform and you have to remember to smile at the judges." Ellen's outfit was 100 percent wool which her mother sewed for her. They also covered a halter with matching fabric. Out of the 22 competitors, Ellen was the youngest, but finished sixth. She says, "I would like to do it again."

Ellen feels she has grown through her 4-H projects, saying, "I like to go to shows and see how they are judged differently in different places. You learn something different at each show. I meet a lot of different people from other schools. It also gives you self-confidence." Her mother adds, "In just a few years' time she has gotten to know a lot of new people."

Going to a surburban junior high school like Centerville where Ellen

(Turn to Page B4)

Annabelle was Ellen's first 4-H animal, and quickly became a favorite of the family and the community. Now her twin offspring will become part of Ellen's Hampshire flock, and soon Ellen will be breaking them to lead as she prepares for the 1983 show season.

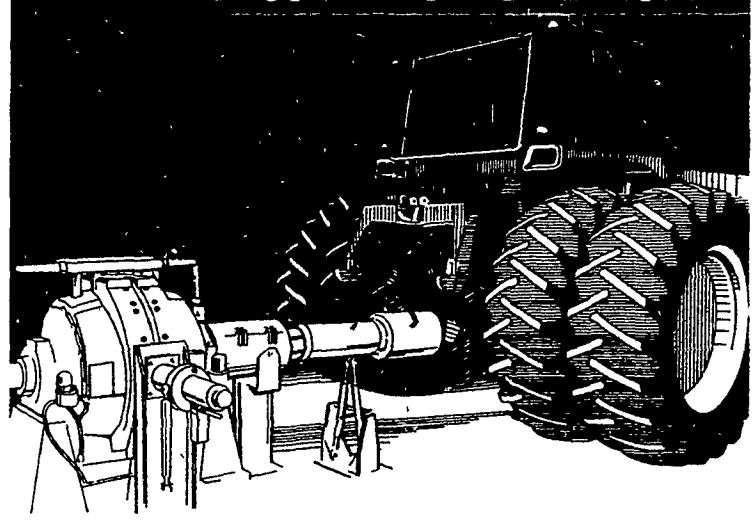
Homestead Notes

These are a few of the ribbons and silver trays Ellen has won for her outstanding 4-H work in the two years she has been showing her Hampshire sheep. She says she learn at each show, and enjoys meeting the many people she encounters as she shows her 4-H animals.

Ellen and her ewe Annabelle did a little window shopping through Park City Mall during Farm City Week. But what Ellen was really shopping for were curious shoppers who wanted to know more about farming and the sheep business. She found plenty.

NEW 100-190 HP TRACTORS...

JOHN DEERE SETS NEW PTO FUEL EFFICIENCY RECORD IN OFFICIAL TESTS



The John Deere 4850 is the most fuel-efficient big tractor you can buy. It now holds the record for PTO-measured fuel efficiency: In official tests at rated engine speed, the new 4850 bested every current production tractor of 100 horsepower or more. (Actually it's the most fuel efficient tractor over 65 hp currently available.) The record? Take your choice: 17.47 horsepower hours per gallon or .399 pounds of fuel per horsepower hour. But the 4850 wasn't alone in turning in an improved PTO fuel efficiency. All five of our 100- to 190-hp tractors are more fuel efficient than their predecessors. Across the line, they average 10 percent better on overall PTO fuel efficiency. Stop in for the full story.

John Deere 5- and 8-hp riding mowers help keep your lawn and your budget in trim

John Deere riding mowers are an easy and economical way to take the legwork out of lawn work. Climb aboard and see how enjoyable mowing jobs can be.

Choose from four models. The 5-hp 65 with 28-inch cut; the 8-hp 68 with 30-inch cut and recoil or electric start; and the 8-hp 68 with 34-inch cut and electric start.

Each model is "human engineered" with cushioned seat, color-coded controls, roomy operator's area and wide nonslip footrests. Triple-safety starting guards against accidental starts. A welded steel frame provides added durability.

The 65 Rider has a gear-drive 3-speed transmission; 68 Riders have a 5-speed in-line transmission that lets you clutch and shift on the go. Cutting heights adjust easily, from 1 to 3 inches on the 65 and from 1 to 4 inches on the 68.

To give your lawn a manicured look, a 6½-bushel rear bagger is available for use with the 30-inch 68 Rider.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

A daffodil is a symbol of hope, of spring.

A daffodil is a symbol of the Easter promise of eternal life.

The first spring we lived here on the farm, I was overjoyed to discover that the long bank that bordered the back yard was almost bursting with daffodils.

They were mostly those old-fashioned, early, double-bloom types, and had obviously been there quite a long time, probably planted by the farmer's grandmother who had lived here many years ago.

Rugged and enduring, those bulbs would send up the earliest blooms of the season, often waving their fluffy yellow heads in the biting wind, jutting out of a covering of late winter snow.

Over the years, the look of the yard was changed. Lightning destroyed the ancient walnut tree, and willows took over the empty spot. Pine, forsythia, pussywillow and perennial borders are now a familiar part of the landscape.

But while many have been moved, others shared, some lost and some replaced with newer varieties, descendants of those old-fashioned daffodils still poke their green shoots up through the ground each spring, and color the first yellow tones in the flower beds.

Like their hardy ancestors, they defiantly bloom despite ice, freezing rains, chilling winds and those occasional late, wet snows.

To me, those daffodils are Nature's symbol of the Easter promise.

Like our faith, sometimes they lie dormant, forgotten, ignored in the overpowering rush of our day-to-day lives.

But always their promise is there, if we just take time to look. Dig into the soil, at any season, and that cluster of bulbs will still be there, ready to burst forth with fresh new life when their proper time comes.

Daffodils multiply best when divided, spread around, shared with others, and given an occasional boost of nourishment. But left alone, untouched for years, they'll gradually grow so think, dwelling within themselves, that they will no longer bloom and bring beauty.

Aren't we the same if we neglect to share, to spread around, the Easter promise of renewed life?

Like the daffodils, we need to multiply the Easter promise by dividing and sharing it with others, planting its enduring beauty and nourishing it with periodic feelings of love.

May your Easter be abundantly blessed with daffodils.

is in eighth grade means that there are not many other students showing animals. Does it cause a problem? "Some kids can't imagine showing, but they don't make fun of me," Ellen says. "When my friends are here after school they help me feed the sheep."

The school has cooperated in excusing her for shows where she is an exhibitor, and Lorraine says that teachers have always expressed an interest in how well she does when she shows.

Ellen says she doesn't have any problems doing her school work along with her other responsibilities, but she says that invariably she has a test on the day after a 4-H meeting. She presently serves the club as assistant secretary.

Ellen plays the violin in the junior high school orchestra, and is active in the Junior Historians at her school. She also is busy with the Chickies United Methodist Church youth group in Mount Joy.

the Woolies Club now has about 35 members, having grown in the last three years since it broke away from the Red Rose Baby Beef Club of which the sheep projects were once a part. There seems to be an ever increasing interest in having sheep as a project, and Ellen speculates that it may be because, "You can start when you are younger." She explains that the sheep do not quickly outgrow the 4-H'er as larger animals do. Lorraine points out that lambs can also be transported in cars, if necessary, eliminating the need to own or rent a truck.

Sarah Fleener says sheep are also less expensive to keep them the larger project animals and can be kept on smaller sized farms, which makes them attractive to children other than farm children.

Ellen feels she has been successful with her sheep projects at least in part because of her father's philosophy that "If you're going to do something, you should do it right." Consequently, the whole family is learning about the sheep, and learning to handle them correctly and to show them properly.

Ellen has progressed in her knowledge about sheep, to the point where she can sit in the ring and know which animals are going to do well. "You check out the other sheep as soon as you get to a show," she says.

With her good start, Ellen will probably be one of those that other people check out as strong competition. This Spring's lambing season is one of many that she will experience as she continues to expand her Hampshire breeding flock.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

One morning this week it was 30 degrees and quite windy and didn't seem a bit like spring. I expect it will take a while for my sugar peas to come up even if I did plant them on March 17. The next few days were rainy and the Conestoga River was bank full and quite muddy. But on my kitchen counter sat a bunch of forsythia blooms and through my windows I saw robins hopping around in the meadow. Little Johnny Jump-Ups, similar to a small pansy, bloom at the edge of my garden and I picked some for the table.

My scallions or green onions are long and slender and the few weeks that I left in the garden all winter are starting to grow too. Everyday we have dandelion salad-this way I can weed the yard and have a fresh salad too.

A bird has chosen my front door as a good site for a nest-at least I think that is why I find a pile of twigs and dry grass laying on the mat twice a day. Of course it comes and goes so quietly that I never see it as we have a blind door.

The other Sunday afternoon, when I walked into my kitchen, I noticed a small hissing sound. At first it didn't bother me too much but when it continued I decided we must find its origin. When my husband shut off the water supply, it stopped. What to do? Surely not rip up the floor and with it my beautiful linoleum as there is no basement under our new kitchen.

My husband was kind enough to think of another way to solve the problem. He broke through the foundation and the plumber was able to climb in and replace the copper pipe. The iris bed that I had to dig up is now retarded but that's a small price to pay in order to save my floor.

Easter's delicious feast

Although lamb has enjoyed increased popularity as an Easter dish, ham remains the favored dish for this springtime holiday.

For your enjoyment this Easter, we have included below several variartions on that old favorite, ham. Try a ham casserole, or ham salad sandwiches for a less formal feast.

Or, if you're looking for something entirely new to serve this Easter, why not try the Gourmet Pot Roast? It's down-home goodness everyone can enjoy.

Also included are several side dishes that will enhance any main dish.

Whatever your serve and however you celebrate tomorrow, we wish you Happy Easter!

Savory Ham Slice

SAVORY HAM SLICE

1 smoked fully-cooked ham slice
1 small onion, finely chopped
1 can tomatoes
1 T. sugar
1/4 t. thyme

Grease large frying-pan with ham fat. Panbroil ham slice slowly, turning occasionally, 15 to 20 minutes, until lightly browned and thoroughly heated through. Remove to hot platter and keep warm. Add onion to pan drippings and cook slowly 2 to 5 minutes. Add tomatoes and break into small pieces. Add sugar and thyme and cook slowly 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve sauce with ham slice.

QUESTION — Does anyone have a recipe for the famous rum cake that is so popular for wedding cakes now? It's a very tender and moist cake and would be a great change from the regular, dull white cake. Can anyone help?

Jane Traverso
Cockeysville, Md.

ANSWER — For Donna Lencoski of Latrobe who requested a recipe for pumpkin cookies that taste like pumpkin pie is the following recipe submited by both Mrs. Leon Martin of New Providence and Paula DeBlock of New Hampton, N.Y.:

PUMPKIN PIE SQUARES

Step 1:
1 c. sifted flour
1/2 c. quick-cooking rolled oats
1/2 c. brown sugar, firmly packed
1/2 c. butter

Step 2:
1 one-lb. can pumpkin
1 (13 oz.) can evaporated milk
2 eggs
3/4 c. sugar
1/2 t. salt
1 t. ground cinnamon
1/2 t. ground ginger
1/4 t. ground cloves

Step 3:
1/2 C. chopped nuts
1/2 c. brown sugar
2 T. butter

Combine ingredients of Step 1 in mixing bowl, mixing until crumbly. Press into ungreased 13x9x2 inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Combine Step 2 ingredients; beat well. Pour into crust. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Combine Step 3 ingredients; sprinkle over pumpkin filling. Return to oven and bake 15 to 20 minutes or until filling is set. Cool in pan and cut into two-inch squares.

GOURMET POT ROAST

4 lb. beef pot roast, round or blade bone
3 T. flour
1 t. salt
1/2 t. whole thyme
dash of pepper
1/4 c. butter
2 medium onions, sliced
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 c. dry red wine
3 medium potatoes, pared, and quartered
6 to 8 medium carrots, pared and cut into 3-inch pieces
1 can condensed cream of celery soup
3/4 c. dairy sour cream

Trim excess fat from roast. Combine flour, salt, thyme and pepper; coat meat with mixture. In a Dutch oven, large skillet or roasting pan, melt butter. Slowly brown meat on both sides. Add onion, garlic and 1/2 c. wine. Cover tightly and simmer slowly 1 hour 30 minutes. Arrange potatoes and carrots around roast. Combine soup and remaining 1/2 c. wine; pour over meat and vegetables. Cover and cook an additional 1 hour more or until meat and vegetables are tender. Remove meat and vegetables to heated platter. To prepare gravy: Stir sour cream into sauce remaining in pan and heat to serving temperature. Do not boil. Spoon some of gravy over meat and pass remainder.

FRENCH FRIED EGGPLANT

1 large eggplant
1/2 c. fine dry bread crumbs
1 t. salt
1/8 t. pepper
1 egg, beaten
lard for deep fat frying

Cut eggplant lengthwise in slices 3/4 to 1 inch thick, pare and cut in strips 3/4 to 1 inch wide. Combine crumbs, salt and pepper. Dip eggplant in egg and dredge in seasoned crumbs. Fry, a few strips at a time, in hot deep fat 5 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove to absorbent paper and keep hot.

Banana Muffins

HAM-CHEESE POTATO SOUP

1 can condensed cream of potato soup, undiluted
1 c. light cream
3/4 c. milk
1 c. shredded Mozzarella cheese
1 pkg. thinly sliced smoked ham, diced

Combine all ingredients in a medium-sized saucepan. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly until cheese is melted and soup becomes hot about 10 minutes. Do not boil.

BANANA MUFFINS

1 pkg. wild blueberry muffin mix
1/2 c. mashed ripe banana
1/4 c. packed brown sugar
1/4 c. chopped nuts
1/2 t. ground cinnamon

Prepare muffin mix as directed on package, except, decrease milk to 1/4 c.; stir banana into egg-milk mixture. Mix brown sugar, nuts and cinnamon; sprinkle over batter. Bake until brown, 15 to 20 minutes.

Cream Cheese Peanut Butter

1/4 lb. margarine
1/2 lb. cream cheese
2 boxes powdered sugar
1/2 t. salt
1/2 t. vanilla
1 1/2 c. peanut butter
8 oz. chocolate chips
1/3 bar parrefin

In mixing bowl, cream first 6 ingredients until smooth, then shape into eggs. Dip in chocolate mix made by melting in top of double boiler. Works best if eggs are frozen before dipping them in chocolate mixture.

Ladies Have You Heard?

Using Poisons? Wear Protective Clothing!

The point of using pesticides and other toxic substances is to kill the unwanted creatures or diseases on your plants – not to harm yourself! Yet the drift and spills which often accompany pesticide use may be a hazard to your health if you aren't careful. Pesticides can be harmful if consumer, absorbed through your skin, or inhaled. Therefore, wearing protective clothing is a Must.

Your first line of protection is to read the label carefully and follow the use and protection instructions. Then, before you put your protective clothing on, inspect them carefully for tears or holes – all skin areas should be covered. Here's a checklist of clothes to wear:

— Shirt. The fabric should be tightly woven, have long sleeves, and a collar that fits snugly when buttoned. Wear the shirt tucked into your pants and sleeves over or outside your gloves.

— Pants. The pants fabric should be tightly woven and pant legs should be worn outside your boots.

— Coveralls. If you are wearing coveralls instead of separate pants and shirt, the same requirements apply. They should have long sleeves and a collar that fits snugly. Sleeves should be worn outside or over the gloves, and pant legs outside or over the boots.

— Gloves. Select gloves that can be washed inside and out after every use and that are long enough to reach at least halfway to your elbow, and are free from holes and tears.

— Respirator. Read the pesticide lable carefully. Some chemicals should only be used if you are using a respirator. If one is recommended, use it and remember to change the cartridge as necessary.

— Boots. Select rubber or plastic boots which can be rinsed after each use and that are long enough to reach at least halfway to your knee. Keep these separate to use only when applying pesticides.

Once you've finished the job, always keep contaminated clothing away from all others. Wash them separately so they don't contaminate other clothing. Store in a plastic container until washing. Always shower and shampoo your hair before putting on other clothing. Once your protective clothing is clean — including boots and gloves — keep them separate and use them only when working with pesticides.

How To Shop For A Home Mortgage

The spring house buying season is just ahead and buyers need to be prepared. I advise home buyers to examine creative or flexible mortgage loans carefully to be sure what they're getting is what they can really afford.

Traditional fixed rate mortgages are nearly a thing of the past. Where there are available, they usually carry higher interest rate than do flexible rate mortgages and they may commit borrowers to higher total payments than they can reasonably afford.

If you are in the market for a home you and your lender must agree on the financing program. The more you know about the basics, the more easily you will be able to calculate the risks your mortgage presents in the future. The key concept to keep in mind is affordability now and in the future.

Current financing schemes involve greater risks for the buyer because payments may fluctuate according to a financial index. The most common indexes used are the rate on U.S. Treasury bills or notes, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board's national average mortgages contract rate, and the average cost of funds for savings and loans.

These reflect how much the U.S. Treasury is willing to pay on money it borrows, how much people are paying on new mortgages nationwide, and how much lending institutions are paying on the money they borrow. Fluctuations in these rates change the interest rate on your mortgage, change your monthly payments, mortgage lenght, or principle balance.

Ask your lender how the index affects your payments. For example, if the index changes monthly, is your lender also changing the rate on your loan monthly? Or are there limits on the number of times and the amount your rate can fluctuate? Ask whether you will get advance warning of rate or payment changes. Most current mortgages have some built in notification system but many do not.

Here is a list of questions to ask so that you can decide if a mortgage option is affordable:

— What is the sales price minus your down payment? This is the amount you must finance.

— What is the length, if maturity of the loan you are considering? There will be a significant cost difference between a 30 year and a 10 year mortgage.

— What is the size of your monthly payments? For most of us, this is the most important consideration. Be wary if this figure represents more than a quarter of your income. Once you have added utility and insurance costs, you could be faced with the prospect of spending close to half of your income on housing costs – can you afford that?

— Ask about the interest rate or rates. Will your payments or rates change from one month or another?

— If your payments or interest rates change, you can your lender give you any indication of how often and how much?

— Will your mortgage give you an opportunity to refinance the loan when it matures?

Lawns need proper spring feeding

LANCASTER — Spring feeding is essential for a vigorous lawn; late March or early April is the best time to take care of this task. If you do not have a fertilizer recommendation based on soil testing, follow this general prescription.

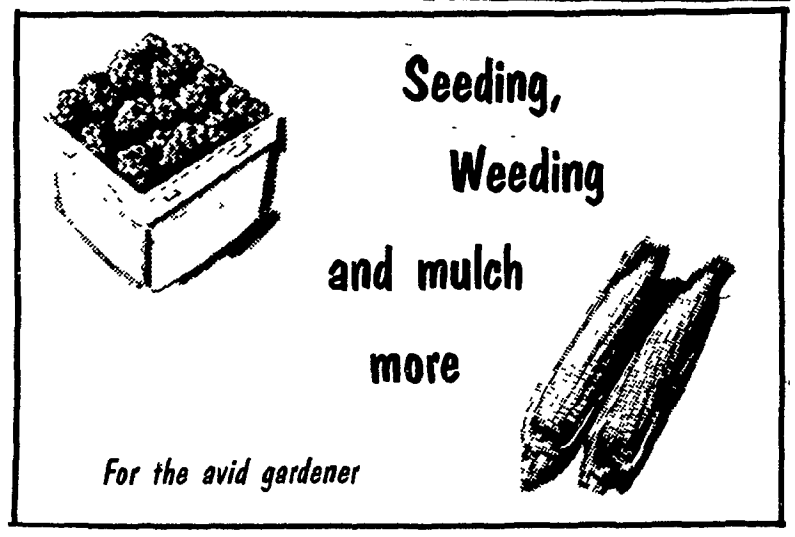
Apply a fertilizer that has a N-P-K analysis ratio of 2:1:1. (10-6-4 fertilizer for example). Apply the fertilizer at a rate that will provide 1 pound of nitrogen (N) per 1000 square feet of lawn. If you used a 10-6-4 fertilizer, you would apply 10 pounds of fertilizer per 1000 square feet.

The nitrogen in a commercial fertilizer may be in inorganic, organic or partially organic forms. Inorganic nitrogen is fast acting but must be used properly to avoid burning the lawn. Organic nitrogen is more expensive and slower acting but effective over a longer period of time and safer to use. Lawn fertilizers often combine the two forms of nitrogen, a fertilizer containing 50 percent organic nitrogen is a good choice for early spring lawn feeding.

A properly working and accurately calibrated spreader is important in obtaining correct and uniform application of the fertilizer. Careful spreading is necessary to avoid the "striped lawn" effect.

Pre-emergence crabgrass controls should also be applied soon if necessary. Henry Indyk, Extension specialist in turf management at Cook College, says that these products must go on the lawn by the latter part of April to be effective. Using forsythia bloom as an application guide is not accurate. In using these herbicides, correct rate of application is essential to obtaining good control of crabgrass. Since crabgrass does not proliferate in shady areas, save the herbicide for sunny areas. Keep in mind that Siduron is the only herbicide to be used if you need to do any seeding now or if your lawn is less than one year old.

For more complete and detailed information on your lawn care and pre-emergence herbicides, contact your Extension Service.



Seed Test

Before you stock up on flower and vegetable seeds, have you checked last year's leftovers? Many seeds germinate well the second year, especially if they have been properly stored.

The seed test is simple to do. From each packet you're testing, wrap several seeds in a moist paper towel and place them in a plastic bag — a separate bag for each variety. If most seeds in the bag germinate within two to three weeks, then last year's seeds are still good and ready to be used. Throw away the test seeds and plant those varieties that germinated well. Discard those that do not.

If you are buying new seed, plan now to use the leftovers next year. As soon as you've finished planting the seeds you need, store the leftovers in a closed container in a dry, cool or even cold location. A basement, unheated store room, or even the refrigerator are good location to try.

Not all gardens are large enough to accommodate all the seeds in all the packets you are using so get in the habit of saving the leftovers for next year instead of casting them to the four winds.

Flowering A Jade Plant

Jade, Crassula argentea, an extremely common and easy-to-grow house plant, seldom receives any notoriety for its showy flower - in fact, very few people realize that this plant blooms at all.

Growing Jade as a foliage plant is one thing, but in order to bring it into flower, additional requirements of light, temperature, maturity, and adequacy of root development must be met. Since Jade is a desert plant, the initiation of flower buds will only take place if we duplicate this natural environment by providing warm dry temperatures will cool, 50° nights.

High light intensity is also critical both for bloom and vegeative growth, contrary to the beliefs of some people that Jade can tolerate a low-light interior. A bright, sunny window facing south, east or west is essential. The maturity of the plant is another important factor. Young juvenile plants up to 3 - 4 years of age are not sufficiently matured to produce flower buds.

Keeping the plant pot bound, even to the point where it might look very much out of balance to the size of the container, will also favor bud formation. Although these requirements are essential if you wish to bring your Jade into flower, the plant on an overall basis will perform far better and provide greater decoration if grown in this manner than one grown under minimum standards. As with all succulents, keep watering and fertilization to a minimum and refrain from using chemical pesticides.

Members voted to contribute to the following organizations: the Terry Beard Fund, $400; the Reber Testerman Fund, $100; and Teen Challenge, $100.

Society 31 will be entertained by Society 5 at the Farm and Home Center on April 30; and will attend the annual Chester County Farm Women Convention, April 12 at the Oxford Methodist Church.

The next meeting will be held at the Mechanic Grove Brethren Church to entertain Society 24.

Berks Co. Society 8

Berks Society 8 met recently at the home of Viola Yost. Before the business meeting, members visited the ceramic shop of Debbie Adam.

Members made plans for the following events: ham on roll sale, April 9; Berks Heim Team, May 11; and Berks Heim Bingo, April 7.

Final plans were made for the 15th anniversary celebration scheduled for April 26 at the Shartlesville Grange Hall.

York Co. Society 26

York Society 26 met at the Newberrytown Plaza recently to discuss future plans.

Six members of the society signed up to work at the York Hospital Fete on May 20 and 21; and plans were finalized for a trip to Chambersburg.

Kutztown Grange

The Kutztown Grange plans an open house on April 7, 7:30 p.m. at the Grange Hall. Prizes will be awarded for 25-, 50- and 60-year memberships, granger of the year, community citizenship, and youth booster.

Entertainment will include a German Folk Dancing Band, a skit and several games.

The public is invited to this gayla event. For more information contact Debbie Berger at (215) 683-7500.

4-H cookbook is coming

LANCASTER — Pennsylvania 4-H will soon be publishing its very own cookbook.

Favorite Recipes of Pennsylvania 4-H Families: Appetite Pleasers will be a limited, one-of-a-kind edition with hundreds of home-tested recipes from 4-H leaders and members throughout the state. Favorite recipes from our more famous 4-H alumni will also be included.

The collector's item will include over 450 recipes in the following categories: salads and salad dressings; soups and sandwiches; breads; main dishes made with meats, poultry, seafood and vegetables; vegetables; desserts; side dishes.

In addition to American dishes, many different cultures will be represented to reflect the diversity of cooking in Pennsylvania. Each recipe will include a nutritional breakdown of calories, sodium protein, postassium, carbohydrates, total fat and cholesterol per serving.

This general, all-purpose cookbook will also include cooking charts, tips, information about the 4-H program and both color and black-and-white photos. The cookbook will feature a spill-proof cover and be spiral-bound for easy use.

Four-H Clubs will be selling this cookbooks after July 1. Cost is $5 plus tax with all proceeds to benefit the 4-H program in Pennsylvania. Presently, 4-H reaches more than 145,000 youth ages 8-19 in Pennsylvania.

To order your cookbook, please contact your local county Extension office.

Easy applique from print fabric

It's easy to applique a bouquet, especially when you start with a floral printed fabric. You simply cut out the flowers, arrange them in a bouquet and stitch them to a contrasting background.

For extra interest, you can make a vase, basket or bow from a contrasting fabric scrap. Machine stitches create all the stems you'll need.

The appliqued bouquet is ideal for a throw pillow. With matching print fabric for a ruffle, the pillow becomes even more beautiful.

Here are the directions for the ruffled, appliqued pillow:

MATERIALS: 7/8-yard print fabric for appliques and ruffle; 1/2 yard solid-color fabric for pillow front and back; 18 x 18-inch section of polyester fiber-fill; sewing supplies; zigzag sewing machine. Optional; fusible webbing.

CUTTING: 1. Cut one 18 x 18-inch square each for pillow front and pillow back. 2. Cut 18 x 18-inch square from batting. 3. Cut 18 x 18-inch square for backing. 4. From print fabric, cut three 7 x 36 inch strips for the ruffle.

APPLIQUES: 1. Cut several flowers from remaining print fabric. 2. Cut leaves, or anything else desired from print fabric. 3. If desired, cut a vase, basket or bow shape from contrasting fabric. 4. Optional: Using your shapes as patterns, cut corresponding shapes from fusible webbing.

ASSEMBLY: 1. Arrange flowers and other appliques on right side of pillow front. 2. Slide fusible webbing beneath appliques. 3. Following directions on webbing package, fuse appliques to fabric with an iron.

BASTING: 1. With right side of pillow front on top, sandwich batting between pillow front and backing. 2. Baste a large X-shape through all three thicknesses.

STITCHING: 1. Set zig-zag machine for a medium stitch. 2. Stitch around appliques, one at a time, with matching or contrasting thread. 3. If desired, for added interest, stitch extra lines on a vase, basket or bow. 4. Add lines of zigzag stitches as needed for stems.

RUFFLE: 1. With sides facing, stitch short ends of ruffle together to form one continuous circle or fabric. 2. Press open seams. 3. Fold ruffle in half length-wise, keeping seams inside. 4. Sew two rows of long, gathering stitches at raw edges of ruffle. 5. Gather stitching to fit around pillow front. 6. Lining up raw edges of ruffle with outside edges of pillow, baste ruffle to right side of pillow front.

PILLOW: 1. With ruffle inside and right sides together, baste pillow front to pillow back. 2. Machine stitch around pillow, leaving small opening for turning. 3. Clip corners, trim batting close to seam; turn pillow to right side. 4. Stuff pillow with polyester batting or fiberfill. 5. Sew opening closed with tiny hem stitches.

Use Easter eggs to stretch food dollar

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Collecting baskets full of brightly decorated hard-cooked eggs has become a traditional highlight of Easter for children across the country.

And once the celebration is over, those hard-cooked eggs, sporting their flashy combinations of color and design, can become a nutritious way to stretch the family food dollar, said Betsy Crosby, a home economist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service.

"Hard-cooked Easter eggs are a practical place to look for an important source of protein, vitamins and minerals in the family diet," she said.

"You can add your hard-cooked Easter eggs to sauces, salads, salad dressings and sandwich fillings for high-quality nutrition at low cost," said Crosby. "They also can become a pleasing addition to many family casseroles by combining them with chicken, ham, tuna, mixed vegetables, broccoli or carrots. Yet another idea is to turn them into deviled eggs or stuffed eggs."

Crosby said after the traditional Easter egg hunt, the decorated hard-cooked eggs should be refrigerated promptly for safe keeping.

"The eggs are perishable but will keep for over a month when properly refrigerated," she said. "If the shells are removed before refrigeration, the eggs should be stored in a tightly closed container or placed in plastic wrap to preserve freshness."

What about eggs that crack during hard-cooking? Are they still edible?

"Absolutely," said Crosby, " but they should be used within one or two days, or they may dry out."

She said eggs with a green discoloration between the yolk and the egg white also are safe for eating.

"The discoloration is caused by a chemical reaction during cooking between the sulfur in the white and the iron in the yolk," she said. "While unattractive, the discoloration is harmless. The eggs are still perfectly usable."

Crosby said clean, graded eggs that have sound, unbroken or uncracked shells are the best choice for hard-cooked Easter eggs. One way of getting the quality desired is to look for the USDA grade shield on the carton, she said.

Spring coming by degrees

LANCASTER — "Spring arrives by degrees," says James J. McKeehen, Delaware County Extension agricultural agent. If he meant temperature, most of us wouldn't be surprised, but McKeehen is talking about longitude and latitude, degrees of arc.

"On the 20th of March, the sun is directly over the equator at noon. It then starts its slow trip north, until on the 21st of June it reaches the fartherest point north — the Tropic of Cancer, which is about at Havana, Cuba.

Responding to the warmth and light of the sun, plants spring to life and animals resume their annual cycle. This spring activity follows a set pattern known as Hopkin's Law: spring comes northward at a rate of 15 to 20 miles a day.

In the mountains of Pennsylvania, the terrain complicates the movement of spring by a rate of 80 feet a day as springtime activity climbs upward.

York Co. seeks dairy princess contestants

YORK — York County's dairy princess and promotion committee is seeking county girls interested in participating in the annual pageant, scheduled for Saturday evening, May 28, at the 4-H Center.

Winner of the county's dairy princess crown will be eligible to vie for the title of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess in a pageant honoring the county winners.

Princesses serve as spokespersons for the dairy industry, through personal visits to schools, shopping malls, fairs, supermarket promotions and on radio and television.

Applicants for the York pageant must be residents of the county. Her father must be a dairy farmer, dairy farm manager, herdsman or dairy farm owner, or the contestant must own at least one dairy animal prior to May 1, 1983.

She should complete her junior year of high school in 1983 and not reach age 22 before December 31, 1983. Applicants must be single, never married, and not married during their year-long reign if they are selected the winner. Each contestant must have her parent or guardian's consent, and former winners are not eligible.

Winners must attend the state dairy princess training seminar, July 11-13, in order to participate in the September state pageant.

Pageant entry deadline is April 22. Entry forms are available from Anna Charles, 5350 Carlisle Road, Dover.

Proven Dependable Gutter Cleaning

Patz gives you strength plus reliable long-term performance.

Examine the Patz features that provide dependability. Choice of two link sizes to match your needs. Progression forging builds extra strength into hook-and-eye link contact points. Final heat treating increases hardness, strength and wear resistance. Patz links withstand corrosion for long chain life.

Select 2" steel angle flites for solid manure or 4-inch high flites for slurry manure. Flites are welded to Patz links, and steel wear shoes on the flites protect gutter and chain.

Four-tooth drive sprocket drives every link... not every other one or every third one... but, every link. Each sprocket tooth drives each link behind the hook, the link's thickest and strongest point. The 4-tooth drive sprocket reduces stress on the drive unit.

Three drive unit sizes match your gutter length, allow expansion. The 2, 3, 5 and 10 HP capacitor electric motors match one of three drive units for your requirements. You get versatility and flexibility.

V-belt and roller chain reducers start easily. Corner wheel top-and-bottom flanges guide chain around the corner. Examine the many Patz gutter cleaner features that add up to increased reliability.

Buy or lease: Leasing Patz equipment may be more profitable for you. Ask your Patz dealer for details.

USDA urges ham safety at Easter

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Ever wonder how ham became the traditional meat for Easter dinner?

In the days before refrigeration, hogs were traditionally butchered in the fall. People did this so the meat could be cured over the cold winter months when spoilage was less likely.

The first hams were ready, then, in early spring. A welcome change from monotonous winter fare, ham was often the cook's choice for the Easter menu.

Calorie-conscious consumers are choosing ham for their menus, too, as they discover the new low-fat lines. Labeled 93 to 95 percent fatfree, these lean hams compare favorably to lean beef, says Betty Murphy, a mutritionist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service.

But for all its fine flavor, high nutritive value and – in the case of the lean hams – lower calories, ham is a delicate meat, according to FSIS chief of microbiology Ralph Johnston.

"Ham requires careful storage to protect its quality and flavor," Johnston said. "There can be problems, too, with food-borne illness, such as that caused by Staphylococcus aureus, a type of food poisoning which frequently strikes ham, and trichinosis, a rare parasitic disease people contract from eating undercooked pork.

"Here are some shopping, storing and cooking hints, to help you avoid these difficulties and keep this a ham-safe Easter," Johnston said.

SHOPPING: Lean, cured ham, taken from the hog's back leg, should be a deep rose or pink color, Johnston says. Look for a fine, firm, dry texture. The fat cover should be firm and white.

STORING: "This is critical," Johnston says. "Place ham in the refrigerator as soon as you get home. It will keep in its original wrapper about a week. Although pre-cooked, most canned hams and picnics — smaller hams from the hog's fron leg — must also be refrigerated.

Leftover cooked ham must be tightly wrapped or covered and refrigerated within 1 to 2 hours after cooking. It will keep about 4 to 5 days.

Johnston says if you have a lot of ham left after your dinner and you need to freeze it, wrap it well in freezer foil and store it at 0 degrees Fahrenheit or lower. Because ham tends to lose flavor and texture in the freezer, however, you may not want to keep it frozen for over two months.

COOKING: Fresh ham must be cooked to an internal temperature of 170 degrees Fahrenheit to prevent trichinosis, a disease in which microscopic trichinae organisms, sometimes present in hogs, work their way into human muscle tissue. While trichinosis is rare — only about 100 cases a year in the United States — it can be painful but is rarely fatal.

When cooking a fresh ham, use a meat therometer. That's the only way you can be sure it has reached an internal temperature of 170 degrees F. For an accurate reading, insert the tip of the therometer in the thickest part of the cut, not touching any bone or fat.

Fully cooked hams, however, prepared in accordance with USDA processing guidelines, are ready to eat without further cooking. They have been specially processed to kill trichinae.

STAPH PREVENTION: "Like all meat," Johnston says, "ham frequently contains some bacteria. Staphylococcus aureus or 'staph' is the villian in most ham-related illness.

"Staph, which causes symptoms similar to intestinal flu, can begin to multiply and produce a toxin or poison when you leave raw or cooked ham at room temperature too long — toxin production jumps dramatically at the upper end of the 45-115 degree F. range in which staph grow.

"Staph is particularly troublesome since you can't smell, taste or see it in food, and, once the toxin is formed, no amount of cooking can destroy it."

Prevention, then, is the best approach:

— Don't leave ham at room temperature for more than 2 hours. Keep it cold — 40 degrees F. or lower in the refrigerator — or hot — 140 degrees F. or higher for re-heating.

— People with colds and sinus infections are prime staph spreaders, so use tissues to cover coughs and sneezes.

— Use gloves to handle foods if you have any kind of skin cut or infection on your hands.

— Wash utensils before basting or slicing ham.

— Keep pets, also potential staph carriers, and their belongings out of the kitchen. After you play with pets, wash your hands before you prepare food.

The Newest Idea In America For Cooling Milk...

MUELLER Refrigerated Receiver

"IT'S WORKING ON OUR FARM!"

The Leroy Howard Family of Oley, Pa. has installed this Meuller Refrigerated Receiver on their pipeline milking system to pre-cool the milk before storing in their 1500 Gallon Mueller Bulk Cooler.

They figure the receiver should save 700 hours of running time per year on their dual 5-HP units. "The blend stays below 42°", Leroy says, in his effort to produce a better quality product at a lower operating cost!

N. Lebanon FFA cites 5 Stars among top members

FREDERICKSBURG — Five members of the Northern Lebanon Chapter of the Future Farmers of America were granted "Star" status at the chapter's annual banquet held at Northern Lebanon High Sch Auditorium on March 11.

Randy Erb, a sen was named the school's chapte rmer; while Heather Hernley to.. star Farmer honors at the 11th grade level. Nelson Bomgardner and Wesley Harding Jr. were named chapter Star Farmers of the 10th grade class. Steve Murray, a ninth grader, was named Chapter Star Greenhand.

Speakers for the evening were Miss Deborah Miller, State FFA Reporter, and Miss Lisa Weikel, National Poultry Proficiency Award Winner. Lisa showed slides and told us about her FFA sponsored trip to Europe.

Steve Murray narrated the creed and Harvey Smith, area consultant, presented Keystone Farmer Degree pins to Randy Erb and Lisa Weikel. Ray and Brenda Reinbold, Frank Mohn, and Steve Murray received medals for participating in the State FFA band.

Honorary Membership was confered upon Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weikel, Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Erb Jr., Eugene Krall, and Thomas Rank.

Citation awards were presented to Cassandra Edris and Delmas Hernley. Hernley also received the Distinguished Service Award for his aid to chapter members throughout the previous year.

Tim Blatt received a trophy and watch for being the highest cider and candy salesman. Heather Hernley earned the trophy for being the highest citrus fruit salesperson, while Eugene Ditzler and Eric Sweinhart received trophies for selling more than 50 crates. John Rupp received trophies for selling the most flower bulbs. Tim Blatt also received the Edward A. West Memorial Tractor Driving Trophy.

FFA Foundation Medal winners were Heather Hernley, Dairy and Nursery Operations; Russ Wolfe, Horse Production; John Rupp, Ornamental Horticulture; Randy Erb, Farm Mechanics; Marlin Deaven, Dairy; Tom Miller, Beef; Nelson Bomgardner, Livestock; Patrick Piergallini, Soil and Water Conservation; Robert Hunsicker, Poultry; Randy Erb, Public Speaking; Wesley Harding, Crop Production; Mike Saphore, Outdoor Recreation; Dwayne Weaver, Sales and Service; Tim Blatt, Swine; Mark Long, Floriculture; Bill Beatty, Forest Management; and Ray Reinbold, Vegetable Production.

Members of the parliamentary procedure team, who placed first in the region and second in the state, were also honored with plaques and medals.

State Project Book contest winners were Robert Hunsicker, Poultry, Silver; Tim Blatt, Swine Breeding, Gold; Nelson Bomgardner, Dairy Heifer, second, Gold; Wesley Harding,Jr., Two enterprises, Silver, second; Ray Reinbold, Home Garden, Silver and Russ Wolfe, Bronzed; and Randy Erb, State Beekeeping award, Gold.

12 win tobacco awards

MILLERSVILLE — R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Production Awards were presented recently to 12 young Pennsylvania tobacco farmers during an awards banquet for the Manor Chapter, Future Farmers of America.

This was the first FFA tobacco production awards presentation in Pennsylvania.

The first place winner, Barry Geib, of Manheim Central High School, received a plaque and a cash award of $200. Tanya Green of Penn Manor High School won second place and a cash award of $150. The third place winner, Steve Main of Penn Manor High School, received $100.

In fourth and fifth place were Jay Frey and Jere Hoover, both of Penn Manor High School. Each received $75. Other winners, each of whom received $50, were Jay Waltz, Manheim Central High School, and Jim Musser, Gerald Frey, Merv Keagy, John Wiker, Jeff Gerlach, and Kevin Bauman, all of Penn Manor High School.

Penn Manor High School won the Chapter Award and $200.

Ms. Leslie S. Lewis, Agricultural R & D Coordinator at R.J. Reynolds, presented the awards. The company sponsors FFA tobacco production awards in eleven states.

Kettler visits Cedar Crest FFA

LEBANON — On Wednesday, March 16, Bruce Kettler, National Eastern Region Vice-President, visited the Cedar Crest FFA.

He is a member of the Anna, Ohio Chapter, where he was chapter president twice. He also earned his State Degree and the highest degree in the FFA, the American Farmer Degree.

Kettler attended a chapter meeting and presented an inspiring talk to the Cedar Crest FFA members. Harold Berkheiser, chapter advisor, and several members accompanied Kettler on a tour of the high school. Also, he toured two work experience projects—Rick Houser's project at Eugene Martin's Farm, and Heidi Peiffer's project at Layser's Flowers in Myerstown.

Kettler was impressed with the rural beauty of the Lebanon area. He will continue to visit FFA Chapters across the United States.

Twin Valley FFA Jr.'s win

ELVERSON — In heavily contested annual competition the members of the junior basketball team of the Twin Valley FFA emerged victorious at Conrad Weiser High School. The senior team upheld their perfect record by losing their first two games, and thus being eliminated from the contest.

Both contests, organized by the Berks County FFA and hosted by the Conrad Weiser Chapter included teams from each of the six Berks County schools.

Members of the winning Twin Valley team were Chris Werner, Chris Coblentz, Mike Snyder, Gail Raser, Glenn Stoltzfus, Mark Zerr, Chuch Reiff, Steve Plank, and Tammy Lush.

Adams Star Farmer

The FFA Battlefield Chapter vice-president, Ed Wilkinson, R4 Gettysburg, was presented the Adams County Star Farmer Award at the recent Adams County Degree Banquet. Wilkinson is a junior at Gettysburg Senior High School. He was one of ten Battlefield Chapter members who were Apple Degree recipients.

FFA visits Capitol

SCHNECKSVILLE — The Lehigh County FFA Vo-Ag students visited the state capitol in observance of National Agriculture Day. They were met by Representative Donald Snyder of District 134 who conducted them on a tour of the capitol.

Mr. Ken Hickey, Pa. Department of Agriculture, presented a slide program describing the various laboratories and their responsibilities. Later, small groups toured the Food and Chemistry, the Botany and Seeds and the Plant Pathology laboratories.

The students toured the William Penn Memorial Museum where they saw the influence of art, history, industry, natural science and ecology on Pa. agriculture.

Prepare food safely

LANCASTER — Has anyone in your family ever gotten sick or "had problems" from something you prepared for a meal? Food-related illnesses are largely a result of carelessness or lack of knowledge about proper food preparation and storage, says Gerald D. Kuhn, professor of food science Extension at Penn State. The preparer must take precautions to insure safety. Here's some advice from Kuhn:

— Potential health problems are related to the handling of raw meat, especially poultry. Take care not to handle raw meat in conjunction with other foods, because this could cross-contaminate them. Also, make sure that unprotected cuts on hands and fingers do not come in contact with raw meat. The cut could become a source of staphylococcal contamination in meat.

— In spite of popular belief and frequent energy saving tips, leftovers including cooked meat should not be left out to cool before storing in the refrigerator. Food left at room temperature for a long time provides a great environment for bacterial growth. Cool hot foods quickly by setting the container in ice water before refrigerating.

— Leftover meat and stuffing should be stored separately. When stored together, stuffing may become contaminated by bacteria growing on the surface of the meat. Besides stuffing, other foods that support the growth of dangerous bacteria include puddings; custard pies; salads made of meat, eggs, or vegetables; cheese pies or quiches; meat pies; pizzas and lasagna.

— A food preparer should also know that refrigeration does not stop the growth of bacteria in foods and that freezing does not kill them. Refrigerator temperatures of 40°F or lower will slow the growth of bacteria, but not stop it. Temperatures above 40°F will aid the growth of bacteria.

— Canned foods that have rust on the can, are bulging, or don't appear to be normal are good candidates for unsafe food. If a can is opened, do not taste the food to see if it is safe to eat. Test it by checking its appearance and smell.

Golden Guernsey Club elects officers

LANCASTER — The Golden Guernsey 4-H Club met at the home of Peter Witmer, recently, to elect the following officers:

Joe Rohrer, president; John Rohrer, vice president; Mary Witmer, secretary; Mary Lou Rohrer, treasurer; Janice Garber and Judy Rohrer, game leaders.

The next meeting will be held on April 12 at the home of Joe Rohrer.

Del. Extension names nutrition specialist

NEWARK, Del. — The University of Delaware Extension Service has named a new state specialist in food and nutrition.

Sue Snider has joined the Extension service on a two-year appointment while the former specialist, Marguerite Krackhardt, is on special assignment.

Snider earned a B.S. degree in home economics at Southwest Missoure State University, and an M.S. and Ph.D. in food science from the University of Missouri. She has taught home economics courses in the Missouri public schools, and foods courses at the University of Missouri.

For the past several years, coinciding with renewed public interest in food preservation, Snider has been studying the effects of various food preservation practices on the quality and appeal of the finished product. She will be working with county Extension home economists to update Delaware's food preservation recommendations.

"Some practices we used to consider safe are no longer recommended," Snider says. "No matter how long people have been preserving foods, they should pay attention to the changes in recommendations every year. That way their preserved foods will be safer and better tasting."

Sue Snider

Chester Co. to hold microwave cooking classes

WEST CHESTER — An Advanced Microwave Cooking course will be offered on Tuesdays, April 19, 26 and May 3 at two different times, 1 to 3 p.m. or 7 to 9 p.m. by the Chester County Cooperative Extension Service of The Pennsylvania State University.

Learn to create interesting and attractive appetizers, meals, and desserts. The course is designed for those who have completed a basic microwave course. A variety of microwave ovens will be used in the demonstrations.

There will be a fee for the course which will be held at the Extension office; 235 W. Market Street; West Chester. Pre-registration will be necessary by April 12. For further information call (215)-696-3500.

April welcomes spring and showers

LANCASTER — April, more than any other month, has been romanticized in poetry and song. William Shakespeare once wrote, "Proud-pied April, dressed in all his trim, has put a spirit of youth in everything."

Although this fourth month of the year is known best for its showers, April carries with it a feeling of relief as folks say goodbye to another cold, dreary winter and welcome a world of floral colors and beckoning sunshine.

Sadly, April also can be called the war month. The American Revolution began on April 19, 1775; the Civil War on April 12, 1861; the Spanish-American War on April 21, 1898; and the United States declared war against Germany on april 6, 1917.

Celebrations for April will include Good Friday and April's Fool Day, both on the first; Easter on April 3; and Arbor Day on the fourth Saturday of the month.

April probably sees more mending and clean-up around the farm than any other month as farmers prepare for the busy planting season. Gardeners usually keep in mind the venerable saying that April showers bring May flowers, and busy homemakers take advantage of a "spring cleaning" and a switch to more easily-prepared meals.

Despite it's hopeful beauty, April has suffered tragedy with the death of President Abraham Lincoln in 1865 and the sinking of the Titanic in 1912. The bandit Jesse James was also killed in April, 1882.

Presidents Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, Ulysses S. Grant and James Buchanan were born in April; but then, Adolf Hitler was too.

Yes April, with its showers of sunshine, rain and tragedy and dreams, offers a month of increasingly warmer days and a gradual step into May flowers.

Let's talk health care:

Are farm communities deficient in physicians?

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

LANCASTER — A recent study by the United States Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service reports that 138 counties in the United States — about 4.5 percent of all counties — lacked an active physician.

This means that about a half-million farmers and other residents of rural communities must leave their home counties to obtain professional health care.

This study, reported in the USDA's monthly publication Farmline, found that 86 of these counties have a sufficient population and income base to support a physician's practice but haven't yet enticed a doctor to set up an office there. The other 52 cannot do so without subsidies from the state, local or federal government.

Pa.'s situation

Pennsylvania is fortunate to have a least one doctor in each of its 67 counties. In fact, only one county — Sullivan — has as few as one doctor actively practicing within its borders, according to the American Medical Association's Physician Characteristics and Distribution in the U.S. report.

According to this report, five counties have less than 10 non-federal physicians practicing medicine in Pennsylvania. They are: Cameron, 3; Forest, 2; Fulton, 3; Juniata, 7; and Sullivan, 1.

In all, Pennsylvania has a total of 23,347 doctors, 22,098 of which are in active practice. But of these 23,347, only 3,219 have a general practice, making the idea of a family doctor seem close to extinction.

These statistics, when compared to the current Pennsylvania population, total 517 people for each physician. The national average is 515 for each physician.

Why low counts?

Though these statistics may seem alarming for many rural residents, it is wise to note that nonphysician and low-number physician counties, compared with other counties, tend to have smaller, sparser populations, with slower growth rates and lower per capita incomes.

Nearly all the U.S. nonphysician counties mentioned in the Farmline report above, are totally rural, with no towns exceeding 2,500 residents. In fact, 93 of these counties have less than 4,000 people in the entire county.

Interesting to note on the Pennsylvania study, is the drastic difference arising from one county to another in physician statistics. For instance, Wayne County in extreme northeast Pennsylvania with physician statistics of a low 32, is bordered by all of Lackawanna County's eastern border and yet this latter county supports 362 physicians. It seems impossible that two counties bordering each other could harbor such opposite statistics, but a closer look reveals that Lackawanna County is the home of Pennsylvania's fifth largest city — Scranton, with a total count of 91,503 residents.

The same difference occurs between the counties of Franklin and Fulton with physician statistics of 130 and 3 respectively. The reason for the difference? The foothills of the Alleghany Mountains lie in Fulton County. Once you climb these foothills and reach the level western plateau, you see physician statistics growing: Bedford, at 28; Somerset with 55; Fayette, 119 and on to Pittsburgh's home county of Allegheny with 4,018 non-federal, actively practicing physicians.

Youths to help plan 4-H's future

WASHINGTON, D.C. — More than 300 youths and adults will come to Washington, April 9-15, to exchange views and help chart directions the nation's 4-H program will take in the years ahead.

Delegates participating in the 53rd National 4-H Conference at the National 4-H Center, Chevy Chase, Md., will represent 5 million youths and some 600,000 4-H volunteer leaders.

"Delegates will meet in groups to discuss a broad range of topics before they make their recommendations on programs 4-H will emphasize in the future," said Eugene Williams, deputy administrator for 4-H youth programs in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Extension Service.

Williams said the agenda centers around this year's national theme - "4-H Pathways to the Future."

Allen A. Schmieder will make the keynote address on the first full day of the conference. He is the director for National Teachers Center Programs at the U. S. Department of Education.

Delegates will include teenage 4-H youths, adult volunteer leaders and Cooperative Extension Service staff members from 46 states, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the District of Columbia. As part of 4-H's international exchange efforts, delegates from Canada will participate.

Williams said the delegates will divide into 10 groups to analyze specific 4-H program areas and provide ideas on how to strengthen each. For example, one group will consider ways that 4-H can help create a greater awareness of agriculture in our country.

Another group will consider programs for teens which help them reinforce both their coping and communications skills.

Other topics to be explored are how to attract and use 4-H alumni in the program, 4-H and the family, intercultural programs, 4-H in urban areas, 4-H record keeping and awards, volunteer leadership and teaching roles, 4-H camping and the development of a strong corps of 4-H ambassadors to help tell the 4-H story.

Other highlights of the week include a Thrusday visit to the USDA, followed by a "4-H Day on Capitol Hill" when delegates will report on 4-H to members of Congress and watch lawmakers in action.

Cultural events of the week include theater and dance performances and a "night bus" view of Washington.

"After the conference ends," Williams said, "the 4-H members and leaders will return to their communities and tell the people back home about the work they did and what it can mean to local groups." Their recommendations will be studied closely at USDA.

Doctor Deprived

Various medical universities have recognized the need to place physicians in what has been termed "doctor deprived" areas. Temple Medical University in Philadelphia, for instance, has a list of 22 counties from which they have enrollment of only two or less medical students. According to Dr. Moses Williams, director of admissions, students applying to medical school from these counties get two extra points on their applications (Temple's entire application is based on a point system).

According to the Economic Research Service report, a physician requires about 8,250 patient visits per year at an average fee of $18 to cover such overhead as facilities, equipment, labor, insurance and supplies, as well as a reasonable income. This "reasonable" income, as reported by the communications division of the Pennsylvania Medical Society, is a national average annual net of $93,000 while practice expenses averaged $74,000 annually.

Nonphysician Counties

USDA's Farmline reports that most of the nonphysician counties mentioned earlier are located in 27 states. Most are found in a narrow band from Texas through western Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, and North Dakota. Texas leads with 22 nonphysician counties, but South Dakota has the highest percentage — 30 percent of its counties are without a doctor.

Dillner tends bumper crop of farmers

By Beth Hemminger
Staff Correspondent

SHIPPENSBURG — This area's young farmers are a bumper crop! Why? Probably because of Fred Dillner.

Dillner, Shippensburg's agricultural education teacher in the Young Adult program was recently recognized for his outstanding work during the past 20 years with the young farmers. He was presented an engraved plaque at the Annual Young Farmers Banquet at Penn State University that reads, "Outstanding Young Adult Instructor of Pennsylvania."

The highlight of this special moment for Dillner was when he saw members of the faculty and friends, totalling 32 in all, there to honor him at the awards ceremony. And he added, "It was an honor to receive an award that is directly related to my everyday job."

Fred Dillner of Shippensburg proudly shows his award of "Outstanding Young Adult Instructor of Pennsylvania" that he received recently at a banquet of Young Adult Farmers at Penn State University.

Dillner came to Cumberland County, and specifically Shippensburg, 22 years ago after receiving his agriculture education degree and master's degree from Penn State. Not only was he trained in the agriculture field, but he had first-hand experience. Fred grew up on a small farm in western Pennsylvania where hsi family raised beef cattle and grew numerous crops.

Fred decided on his career in agriculture education early in life. He said he made the decision to serve the community in his work — and he has done so for over 20 years.

The excitement this man finds in his job shows in his eyes and smile. He said, "It is an enjoyable challenge everday that is a fulfilling and satisfying part of my life."

Fred is responsible for the Young Adult Farmers Association in the Shippensburg School District where 75 full- and part-time farmers are enrolled. And, where Fred is on call at all times.

Over the years, Fred has conducted much of his training and teaching on the farm as well as in evening classes at the school. The evening classes for the Young Adult Farmers are organized and planned so that they (the classes) meet the needs of the group. For example, during one session, the class might be learning about welding in the shop area at the high school, and the next session they could be studying crop management, record keeping and so on.

However, he noted that one of his year-round teaching responsibilities is farm management. "That is really what the young farmers want and need to know about," stated Fred.

In the farm management curriculum, Fred teaches record-keeping, partial budgeting, crop management, etc. And most times

Native plants popular for landscaping

LANCASTER — Ecology-minded Americans are showing an increased interest in native plants for their home landscaping. While native plants have the advantage of being well-adapted to climate and weather conditions, local soil and exposure conditions in which they grow best vary greatly.

The American holly, for example, does not normally grow in open fields, nor does the swamp magnolia inhabit dry, parched soils.

Many of our best native plants have been used in landscaping for years, including the flowering dogwood, American holly, and red swamp maple. However, many others are overlooked which could add interest and beauty to Pennsylvania home gardens.

One such plant is clethra, or summer sweet. It normally grows in wet shaded thickets along the edges of wooded areas, but will also grow in normal soil and full sun. Summer sweet blooms in midsummer with erect clusters of fragrant white flowers.

Another excellent native plant is bayberry. In fact, no other shrub will tolerate more varied soils and exposures.

The fringe tree forms a small tree or large, multi-stemmed shrub that, in full bloom, is as attractive as a flowering dogwood, although quite different. It grows to a height of about 15 feet, a size well suited to home landscapes.

The red choke cherry is one of the best shrubs for fall fruits. In the wild it is often found in wet thickets, but will do well in any ordinary soil.

Native plants can be dug up and transplanted from the wild, however, buying them from a nursery is easier and chances of success are much greater.

he works on an individual basis with each farmer, planning a management system to suit the farmers needs.

Fred remarked, "It is very satisfying to work with a young couple, help them develop a management system, or discuss ways of expansion and improvements and then see their operation blossom and grow." That is just one reason why this ag teacher enjoys the young adult program compared to classroom teaching. He said, "With farming couples, you aren't working with hypothetical problems, you're working with the real thing. And these real agriculture problems need real answers, so it is quite a challenge."

Fred's learning never ends. He remarked that he has to keep abreast of the new equipment, new farming techniques, the money market, and the list goes on and on. "I am here to help the farmer and that means knowing as much as I can about factors that will effect the farmer whether it be good or bad."

To keep on top of everything, Fred attends numerous in-service training sessions at Penn State. He also works with agri-business people in Cumberland County and attends workshops they talk about new products and methods of farming. And Fred also reads informative manuals and professional magazines for current news and updates about the industry.

In addition to his job, Fred is devoted to community work. For 18 years he has been treasurer of the Shippensburg Fair, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, past director of the Soil Conservation District, and, along with his wife, Rose, has organized a Shippensburg Farmers Market that has now been open for four years.

At the state level he is on the Agriculture Farm Management Advisory Council and an active co-chairman of the Co-op Couples Program.

Other awards he has received over the years for all his community services are a Master Educator Award of Farm Cooperatives, Conservationist of the Year, and Conservation Educator of the Year.

Fred remarked that his family has been a supporting force behind his involved career. He said that Rose, has been a great help in encouraging young farm couples when they needed that little nudge and knowing that someone cared. And his sons, Jim and John, now both working away from home, were always encouraging and helpful, as was daughter, Jodi, who is a sophomore at Shippensburg High School.

Fred hasn't deviated from his love of the farm life much, even in his and his wife's hobby of antique collecting. Rose collects all types of household antiques while Fred collects and restores early American and primitive farm tools. And all of these farm antiques fit very nicely into their old stone home, built in 1754 by one of the first 15 settlers of Shippensburg who was a tax collector for the Queen of England.

The Dillners have restored the home to its original appearance, inside and out, and it is now registered with the National Historial Registration Association.

DeBoer to speak in Hunterdon

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Roy DeBoer, Cook College professor, will address the Hunterdon County Conservation District's annual gathering on Friday, following a 7 p.m. dinner, at Quakertown Fire House.

His topic will be "Housing, Growth and Farmland Preservation."

Professor DeBoer has a deep interest in the area of "more realistic zoning," also in the preservation of our good agricultural land and agriculture, as well as, being an advocate of "balanced housing".

In his presentation, he will discuss growth in communities, the need for housing to accommodate this growth, respect for the physical environment as an area develops, and the need to retain a viable agricultyure. He will show how his concept of balanced housing can be compatible to farmland preservation efforts.

• Fewer Moving Parts Than Any Other Mixer • Stainless Steel Mixing Drum • Reliable Mechanical Beam Scale System (electronic scale optional) • Bolt Together Construction • Standardized Component Parts • Easy Maintenance and Lubrication

Advanced Design Makes The Difference!

As feed enters the loading hopper and into the stainless steel mixing drum the mechanical beam scale system weighs all ingredients to the pound for the precise diet your herd needs The tilted rotating drum and stainless steel mixing paddles create a tumble-mix effect that quickly blends the feed ingredients in 1 to 3 minutes Due to the tilted position of the mixing drum, the feed is moved to the rear of the mixing chamber where the return paddles scoop the feed into the return auger. The return aguer than moves the feed to the loading end of the mixing drum where the tumble mix cycle is repeated To unload the blender no reverse rotating of the mixing drum is necessary Simply lift the discharge deflector control to the unload position The feed is then deflected from the return auger into the discharge chute for quick unloading The stainless steel construction of the mixing drum and mixing paddles resists unwanted forage material from building up inside the mixing chamber and insures a long rust free operating life. Bolt together construction allows for quick installation of the blender into existing feed rooms without widening doorways or removing standing walls Few moving parts along with standardized components allows for easy lubrication and quick maintenance; all critical for a successful T M R feeding system

Chester Co. plans Homemaker's Day

WEST CHESTER — The Family Living Advisory Committee of Chester County Extension Services invites all those who are interested to come to Homemakers' Day.

This event will take place on Thursday, May 5, at the Thorndale Inn, located on Bondsville Road (Route 340) between Route 30 by-pass and business Route 30 from 9:30 a.m. until 2:15 p.m.

Pre-registration will be necessary by April 27. The fee covers the program costs, coffee and danish in the morning and a luncheon. The menu will include fruit cup, roast beef, baked potato, vegetable, beverage and dessert.

The program committee will present Barbara Howard, department head of the adult library program, with the Chester County Library. She will discuss the challenges this program faces in meeting the needs of many Chester County residents.

The Folded Pointed Star will be demonstrated by Lynn Rankin of "A Stitch In-Time," Russellville. The technique of folding fabric and tacking it using a color scheme and various fabric designs create dramatic and effective wall hangings, vests, and pillows.

Complete written instructions will accompany the demonstration.

A visit by Tillie the Blabbermouth, a humorist from Lancaster County, will add an air of lightness and fun to the day's program. For further information call 696-3500.

USDA OK's in-plant labeling

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Beginning June 1, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will streamline the approval of meat and poultry product labels by permitting the chief USDA inspector at the plant level to approve over half of all labels.

USDA now processes some 120,000 labels a year, nearly all at Washington headquarters.

"A number of benefits will flow from this new reliance on the field staff," said Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service. "By cutting red-tape and eliminating the delays encountered when label requests are mailed to Washington, significant time and money savings will accrue to both government and industry.

The new system creates three categories of labels:

— Routine labels which will be approved by the chief inspector, such as those for products with a single ingredient, and labels for which headquarters has already approved a preliminary sketch.

— Minor label changes which need no specific USDA approval. Examples are a change in packaging material or a change in the net weight claim for a product.

— Complex label issues, such as labels not previously approved carrying nutritional claims or quality guarantees. These will continue to be approved in Washington.

The new system grew out of a successful pilot study conducted in 1981 which showed that on-site approval reduces the average time required to approve a single label from three weeks, which can elapse when label applications are mailed to Washington, to less than an hour, Houston said.

While most food processors will probably want to use the new procedures, they are voluntary, Houston said. Packers can opt for in-plant approval or apply directly to Washington. Even if they choose in-plant approval, they can resubmit denials to headquarters.

Pa. is high risk moth area

WASHINGTON, D.C. — USDA plant protection officials are revising the areas regulated for the tree-stripping gypsy moth, to keep it from moving to new areas of the country.

Gary Moorehead, a plant protection officer with USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said the revisions reflect changes in the spread and distribution of the gypsy moth during the 1982 summer season when gypsy moth caterpillars defoliated about 8 million acres, down from the 13 million acres stripped in 1981. The changes also reflect suppression efforts on infestations distant from the generally infested northeastern states.

Moorehead said gypsy moth regulations designate areas as "high risk" and "low risk." The level of rish reflects the moth population and the possibility of people carrying gypsy moth egg masses, caterpillars, pupae or adults to uninfested areas on certain products or articles.

Because egg masses have reached a level of 50 per acre, areas in Delaware, Maryland, New York and Pennsylvania that were low-risk areas have been redesignated as high-risk. Also, some low-risk areas in Maine, Michigan, Virginia and Washington have been expanded.

Under USDA rules, regulated articles may move freely between high-risk and low-risk areas, and, unless determined otherwise by an inspector, between low-risk and unregulated areas. However, regulated articles and products must be inspected, treated if necessary, and certified free of the pest if they are moved from high-risk to unregulated areas.

Public comments on the regulations may be submitted until May 20 to the Regulatory Coordination Staff, APHIS, USDA, Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Md 20782.

Winter was easier on Md. bees

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The past winter was a kind one to the state's bee colonies says I. Barton Smith, Jr., Supervisor of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Apiary Inspection Program.

This is in sharp contrast to the previous winter which killed off as many as 20 percent of the state's honey bee colonies. In addition to milder winter weather this past season, the Fall "honey flow" in 1982 provided a much better food source for the overwintering bees than did the drought-reduced honey flow of Fall, 1981.

Proof of the good honey flow comes also in the form of increased honey production for 1982, which is now believed to be well up over the 1981 honey crop of 390,000 pounds, according to Smith.

Beekeeping for fun and profit is an expanding industry in Maryland as Smith's registration figures for 1982 show a 6 percent increase in the number of colonies registered. Figures show that there were 2,106 registered beekeepers in Maryland during 1982 and they had some 14,691 colonies of bees.

Maryland law requires that all beekeepers register their apiaries (locations where bees are kept) and colonies of bees. In return, they receive inspections of their colonies by experts, assistance with renting their colonies and assistance with protection, against pesticide damage to the colonies.

This latter service comes about from Smith's office knowing where bee colonies are so that this information can be taken into consideration when it comes to gypsy moth and other spray programs.

UNMATCHED CUTTING EFFICIENCY

Hesston/Field Queen SP Forage Harvesters!

Hesston/Field Queen Self-Propelleds feature a power-efficient 6-knife cutting cylinder. This cutter design gives more room between knives to get more crop in for higher capacity. The helical knives slice with "scissor-action" producing smooth, uniform cutting that requires less horsepower and less fuel!

Plus, exclusive Flo-Vanes (standard) reduce crop bunching inside the cylinder for even greater capacity!

Models 7650 and 7600 feature responsive, efficient diesel engines with 257 hp and 210 hp respectively. Hydrostatic drives give infinite ground speed control through three torque ranges. And both models are standard equipped with a big, comfortable Command Post cab.

KRAUSE

BEFORE YOU BUY A DISC HARROW
COMPARE A KRAUSE

KRAUSE

Krause Rockflex Discs are unequalled in the field.

COMPARE

TIE RODS AND SPOOLS

Alloy steel tie rods are 1¾" in diameter on heavy duty units (1½" on medium duty). There's a nut on both ends for easy servicing. Krause spools are ductile iron and weigh 20-30 lbs. each. Precision machined with large diameter bells to fit snug against disc blade. SPOOLS ARE KRAUSE MADE.

COMPARE

FRAMES
Engineered of super strength steel tubing with cross braces and gussets at major stress points.

WING HINGES
Krause uses big 1¾" diameter bolts on HD units (1½" on medium duty) with over 10" of wear surface area.

COMPARE

"ROCKFLEX" BEARING ARMS
Krause invented the Rockflex" arm in 1965. This C-shaped arm flexes over obstacles. It helps protect disc blades and spools from breakage.

We have over 400 rockflex discs in the fields of PA, MD, NJ and DE. These Krause owners continue to prove daily that the Krause disc levels and cuts better than any other disc they've ever owned.

COMPARE
PRICE: $ PER lb. KRAUSE DISC HARROWS ARE CHEAPER THAN THE MAJORS

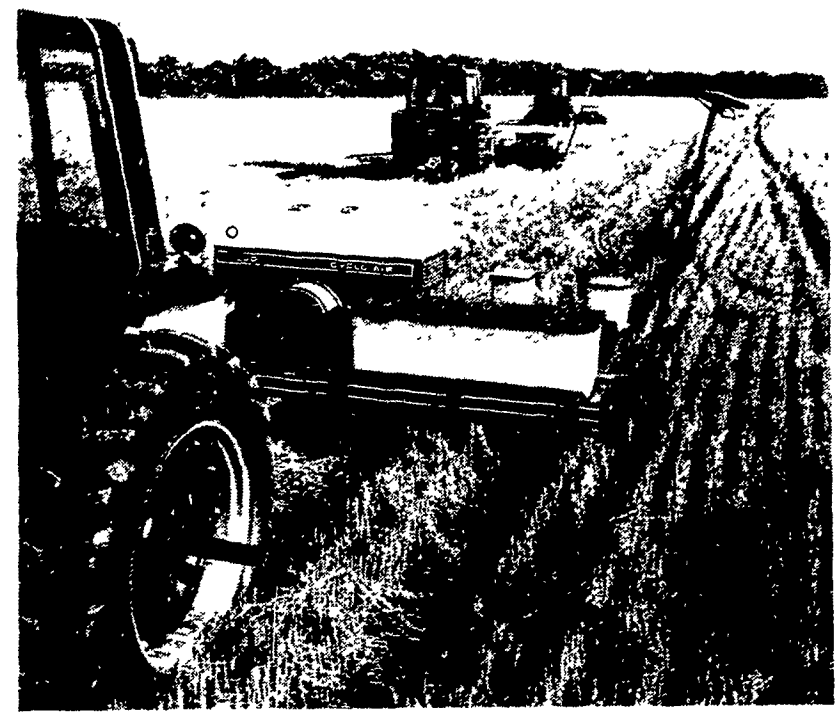
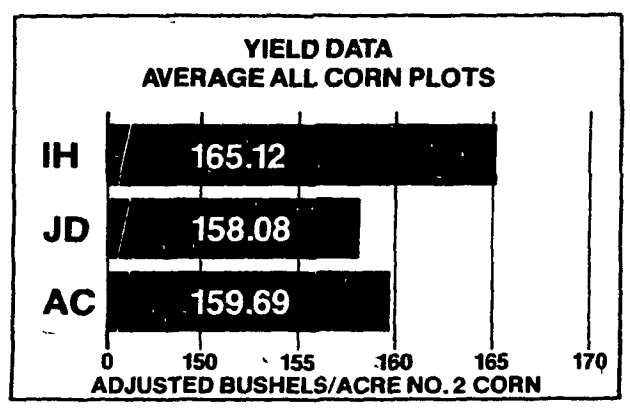
PAY FOR THEMSELVES IN EXTRA YIELDS

Early Riser Outyielded Deere and Allis-Chalmers Planters in Independent Side by Side Tests...

Fourteen on-farm tests in five states conducted by an independent test firm confirmed that the International® 800 Series Early Riser planter can outperform the John Deere Max-Emerge® 7000 Conservation and Allis-Chalmers 333 No-Til planters in both emergence and yield.



THE FACTS BELOW SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES



Corn yields were based on hand harvested samples that were weighed, moisture tested and then adjusted for No. 2 corn at 15.5% moisture.

TORQUE AMPLIFIER, CLUTCH & TRANSMISSION PARTS & SERVICE

Complete TA assemblies for 706-1586 are priced at $595 and come with a Dana Co. Heavy Duty Sprag instead of the usual IH sprag. The Dana sprag is guaranteed for 2 years against failure. Sprag kits (includes sprag gear, Dana sprag, and piston carrier) and all items for rebuilding your own TA are available to qualified persons. Ramps and carriers for the older style TA's (as in SMTA, 340, 560) are priced at $150 each and carry a 90 day guarantee. We have all the parts needed to rebuild your TA in stock at prices that will save you money. We also have a shop available for complete TA installation Or, you may split your own tractor and bring the center housing to us, which we can rebuild while you wait (approx. 4-6 hrs.). We also stock New and Rebuilt Water Pumps, Dynlife Clutches, Pressure Plates, and PTO Drive Gears, (Spline-fit into pressure plates) for most IH tractors and combines.

— INTRODUCTORY LISTING OF NEW ACCESSORIES —

Easy-Shift Trans-Brake Control - fits 06, 56, 66, 86 and 2+2 tractors. Eliminates grinding, eases hard shifting, reduces wear, and installs easily in approx ½ hour. Will work on tractors with or without TA. Priced at $189, shipping included.

New 3 pt. Hitch assemblies - Now available for SMTA, 400, 450, 560, 544-656, 666, Hydro 70, 706-806, 1206, 56, 66, 86 & 2+2 tractors Also available for cat. II & III models. Prices start at $450.

Drawbars - O.E.M. replacement. Fits 06, 56, 66 & 86 tractors Standard - $125, Telescoping - $200. Center extension available for $85

Top-Link Anchor Bracket - with oil fill & dipstick. Eliminates pouring oil through cab & platform. Available for cat II & III tractors Priced at $90 and $100

Front Weight Brackets - For IH suitcase weights, fits 06, 56, 66 & 86 tractors 10 wt. capacity - $90, 12 wt. - $100, 16 wt. - $125, spacer blocks - $18.

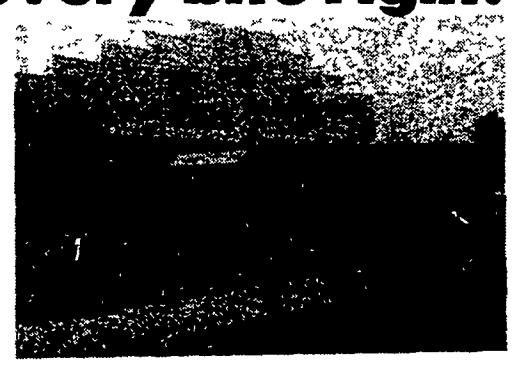
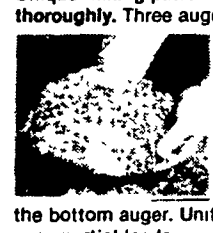
Make every bite right.

Combine Ensilmixer® feed mixer, with scales, and a Jamesway® TMR system.

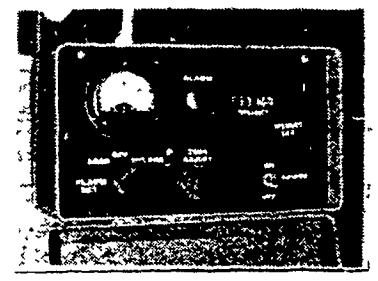


You can increase production. Reduce feed costs And improve labor efficiency All, when you use an Ensilmixer feed mixer, with scales, by Oswalt® to round out your Jamesway Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system (including silage distributor-unloaders, conveyors and cattle feeders). Or, use it with any mechanized feeding system. Whether you prefer the stationary, trailer-mounted or truck-mounted model, it's a real profit-building management tool

Unique mixing pattern blends feed thoroughly. Three augers move feed from front to back and side to side. Reverse flighting at both ends lets feed fall freely for recirculation or discharge by the bottom auger. Uniformly mixes even partial loads.



Precisely weighs ingredients. Accurate weighing means consistent, balanced rations; eliminates waste. Lets you calculate the amount of feed needed and mix that much. Weigh bar system is standard, electronic scales optional.



That's why the Ensilmixer feed mixer, with scales, and TMR feeding system are right for you as well as your cattle. And, can help make farming just a little bit better. Ask your Jamesway Power Choring dealer.

THE BIGGER, TOUGHER SPREADERS

Imagine spreading 10 tons of manure in a single trip! That's possible when you have the Avco New Idea Model 245 Spreader.

Built with a 375-bushel all- wood box, the 245 lets you make far fewer trips to the field. And the 244 is nearly as big, with 8.5 tons or 325 bushels.

The 243, a 250-bushel spreader, is available with either a single or tandem axle. All have the same lifetime warranty on wood and full-year warranty on parts and workmanship as the rest of the Avco New Idea spreader line.

The big ones are available only from Avco New Idea. Stop in and see us for all the facts today.

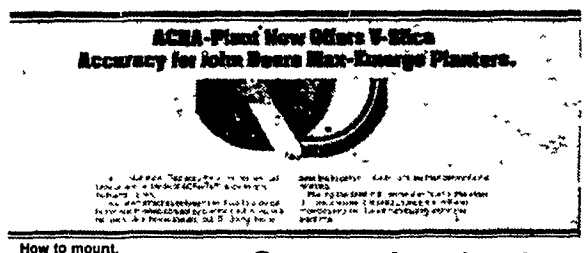
FARM EQUIPMENT

MAKE A GREAT PLANTER A LITTLE BETTER!!

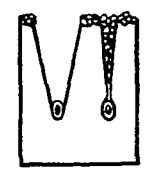


ACRA-Plant Insert

Seeds tightly in contact with firm moist soil for fast germination and higher plant survival

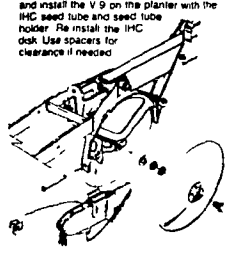
Better plant distribution within the row due to precise seed placement in the V-slice

Seeds at a uniform depth



How to mount.

The V-9 Slicing Attachment takes the place of the IHC Firming Frog. Remove the right-hand IHC disk. Remove the IHC frog and install the V-9 on the planter with the IHC seed tube and seed tube holder. Re-install the IHC disk. Use spacers for clearance if needed.



Conventional or less-till — our team of planting tools could easily be your cheapest investment for a good stand and grain in the bin.

Our Trash Whipper™ System does what coulters can't do — provides a smooth, level path for accurate seed placement — in the roughest trashy or cloddy fields! New Tandem Blade and V-9 Openers out-perform standard disks. They provide precise planting in firm, moist soil which can increase germination 20%. Get a better stand with less seed.

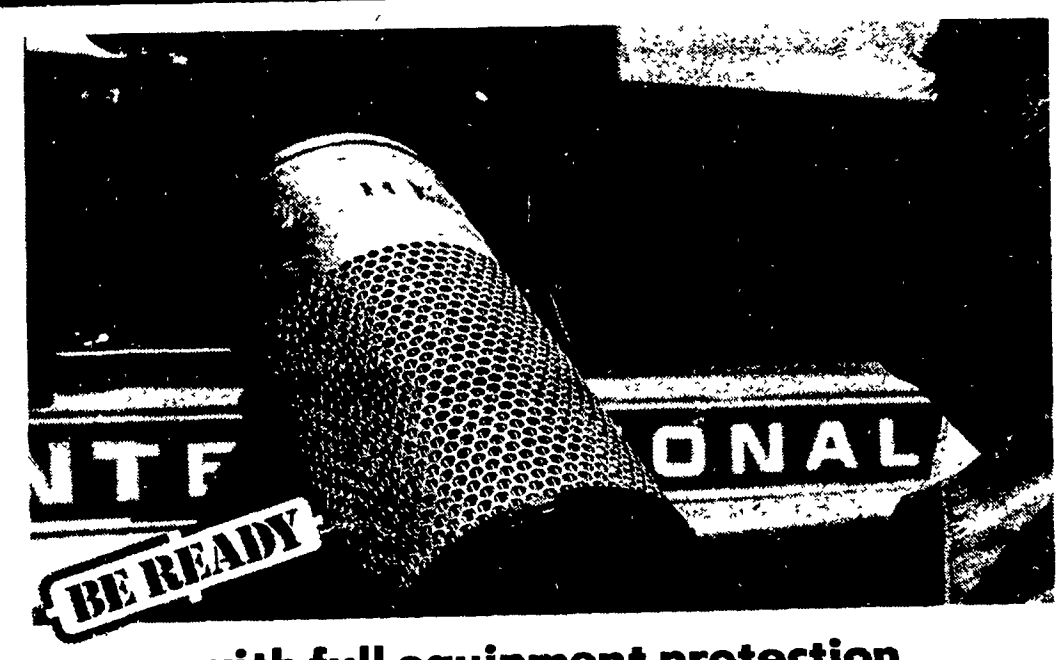
IH SUPER SAVING TIME

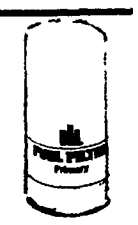


...with full equipment protection.

Air cleaner elements that fit precisely

When your air cleaner clogs, exhaust temperatures rise and efficiency plummets.

Fuel filter elements prevent costly damage

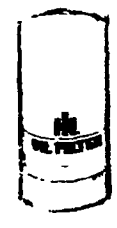


When a fuel filter fails, your diesel engine misbehaves. If you get misfiring and loss of power, it's probably time to change your fuel filter.

Hydraulic filters to keep your system working

Don't neglect your hydraulic system. Even tiny particles that slip by an exhausted filter can mean big trouble.

Oil filters to protect your investment



Change the lube filters regularly to be sure your engine will operate at peak efficiency.

GUNITE Silo Relining & Repairs

Extensive tests have been conducted on Gunite. Below are some of the properties of Gunite:

1. Excellent bonding
2. High Density
3. Extreme strength and hardness
4. High resistance to absorption

The excellent physical properties of the material are due to the water content being only the amount needed to satisfy chemical hydration.

WHY PAY UP TO $900 FOR 150 TON CAPACITY SILAGE BAG???

If you put up 4 bags a year, it could cost you a smuch as $3600 for 600 tons storage. A 20x65' silo will hold 600 tons at 65% moisture.

You can lease this silo for around $294 per month or only about $3529 per year. No more than you may pay for 600 ton storage in silage bags per year. And at the end of 8 years, you still have a 20x65' silo.

All you pay down is the first $294 monthly payment and the last $294 payment or you lay out less than $600 with the order for the BEST wet cast Stave silo complete with redwood doors, Stave chute, roof and safety ladder.

WHEN IT COMES TO UPRIGHT STORAGE, NOBODY BUT MADISON CAN CLAIM SO MANY "FIRSTS."

Madison structures have been going up on American farms for 65 years. Today, in spite of competition from many other companies, one out of every four silos in America is a Madison! Here are some of the reasons.

FIRST Madison was first to offer a concrete stave, bottom-unloading, atmosphere-controlled feed storage and processing system.

FIRST Madison developed the Vibra-Cor® stave for greater load-bearing capability and better insulation.

FIRST Madison pioneered the fiberglass sealed roof for atmosphere-controlled structures.

FIRST Madison developed the double-rafter silo roof.

FIRST Madison was first to develop its own silo accessories, each designed to be the best available.

FIRST Madison pioneered the fiberglass chute cover and skylight.

FIRST Madison pioneered the safer high-back platform filler stand.

FIRST Madison offered the first industrial-type caged ladder for better protection.

FIRST Madison pioneered the "hoop tensioning follow-up program" to assure maximum structural integrity by torque-testing each hoop, after installation

FIRST Madison pioneered the use of Gunite for better inside finish in all atmosphere-controlled structures.

Before you buy upright storage, talk to your Madison dealer. He's first in a lot of ways and he wants to prove it to you.

LAWN & GARDEN

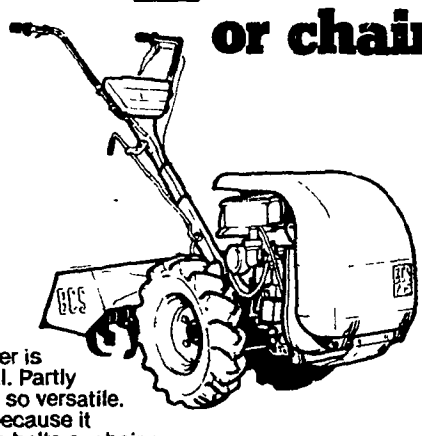
The Most Versatile Tiller has No belts or chains



The BCS tiller is very unusual. Partly because it's so versatile. And partly because it doesn't have belts or chains.

Its versatility lets the BCS do much more than an ordinary tiller. For example, it can mow your lawn, or clear your walks and driveway of snow.

The BCS performs efficiently and with very little maintenance. It has no belts, no chains, no friction discs. Its transmission is all-gear drive. Which is far more mechanically sophisticated than other tillers.

Come try a BCS tiller. It's the most versatile tiller around, and doesn't have belts or chains.

Jo Jo wishes to wish everyone a Happy Easter especially his childhood friends Jonas and Ivan Miller, Mikey Hook, John Rutt and Menno B. Stoltzfus. As you know, I am a personal friend of the Easter Bunny!
I need 227 pups on Tues., April 5. I also need turkey coops in good condition - paying $10 each.
Attention! The person who came the farthest to sell me pups on Mar. 29 was Mr. Dale Paul Hannus, RD 3 Box 126, Jersey Shore, PA

JO JO THE DOG MAN
I need nice Shepherd, Collie & Terrier pups. Also - cute Peek-A-Poos, Cock-A-Poos and anything cute & shaggy.
I need good healthy, clean pups, pure & mixed breeds, to 8 weeks old. Offering extra high cash prices. Baskets of cash waiting for you! Paying up to $75 for extra cute mixed breeds.
See Me At
Root's Farmer's Market
RD 1 Manheim Every Tuesday 5 PM - 8 PM (no phone calls)
Attention Farmers: If you have little mixed Terriers, Spaniels or Dobermans please bob their tails before you bring them over. It makes them worth more money. Do this when they are 10 days old. Just cut the tail in half. Also, please clean them up to make sure there are no bugs or fleas on them.

Farm Business News

Holloway heads Md. Farm Bureau

RANDALLSTOWN, MD. — The Board of Directors of Maryland Farm Bureau has appointed Henry Holloway of Darlington, Harford County, as president, following the resignation of Leon Enfield.

Enfield, who left the position for personal reasons, has been re-elected for a two year term in December, 1982.

Holloway was first vice president, and has served as a vice president of the largest farm organization in the state during the past eight years. He is a former president of the Harford County Farm Bureau.

In addition to currently serving as a director of the Maryland State Fair & Agricultural Society, he has been a member of the Maryland Ag Commission, Chairman of the district Soil Conservation committee, and legislative committee chairman and director of the Harford County Chamber of Commerce.

Holloway and his brother, Richard, farm 850 acres near Darlington, with 80 beef cows and 80 brood sows. They feed out 250 head of cattle and sell about 1,000 feeder pigs each year.

Holloway and his wife, Barbara, have been 4-H leaders for many years, and each of their four children are active in the youth organization. Henry Jr., 23, is a graduate of V.P.I. and serves as fieldman for the Hampshire Swine Association. Teresa, 20, is a student at Loyola College in Baltimore, while Judy, 18, and Andy, 11, are high school and elementary students, respectively.

Kubota announces 4 new ag tractors

LOS ANGELES, Ca. — Four all-new M Series agricultural tractors, ranging in PTO horsepower from 47 to 76, are being introduced to the U.S. market by the Kubota Tractor Corporation.

Designated the M4950, M5950, M6950 and M7950, respectively, the new models feature improved engine efficiency in the widely-acclaimed Kubota diesel engine. These engines are characterized by increased torque rise alond with fuel efficiency and reliability. Fuel tank capacities of 13.5 and 26.4 gallons allow operators to go a full working day without refueling. Two-wheel-drive (2WD) or four-wheel-drive (4WD) is available on all four new models.

A new transmission fully synchronized in each range gives 12 forward and four reverse speeds. Kubota's long-established 4WD, producing up to 35 percent more pulling power than a comparable 2WD, features a bevel gear system assuring smooth, full power transfer to the wheels at all steering angles and provides a very tight turning radius. A center drive system and front final drives provide better crop clearance, while a one-piece axle case assures great durability.

A large operator's floor deck, simplified controls and a deluxe seat improve operator comfort. A tilt steering wheel with power steering is featured, while a fully-enclosed cab is available on all four new models, with optional air conditioning on the top three.

Kubota's new M5950DT features improved engine efficiency and shift-on-the-go transmission.

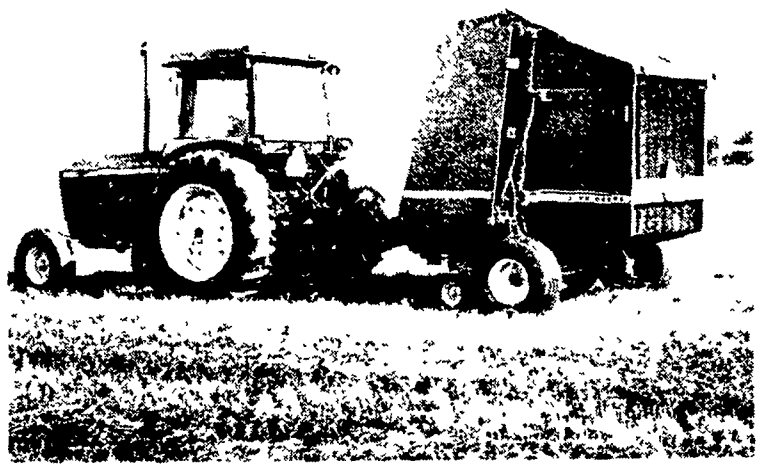
Deere develops round baler monitor

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has developed an exclusive Bale-Trak monitor on new 430 and 530 Round Balers.

A green light on the monitor tells the operator the rear gate is closed, latched and ready for baling. Two dials help direct the driving course along the window. One monitor senses belt slack on the right side of the belt chamber caused by a lack of material and the other performs the same function on the left side. Both dials have needle indicators which report the amount of material on either side and, by so doing, indicate whether the operator should feed to the right or left ot even the bale. By keeping the needles lined up even with each other when finishing the bale, uniformly shaped bales are produced.

The monitor also tells the operator when the forming bale approaches a pre-set size. At this point, a yellow light flashes, telling the operator the bale is within 6 inches of the pre-set size. The yellow light turns solid when the automatic twine wrap has been activated. If the operator fails to stop, a red light flashes on and an audible warning sounds.

Both the 430, which produces 4-foot-wide bales, and the 530, which produces 5-foot bales, are adjustable to produce 39 inch to 72 inch diameter bales.



New John Deere 430 and 530 Round Balers feature an exclusive monitoring system as standard equipment.

Fire detection system designed for ag

HARRISBURG — A fire detection system has now been devised specifically for agricultural buildings, according to Ag-Vance Controls, Inc., of Darien, Wisc.

The Ag-Vance System is specifically designed to withstand the dust, moisture and ammonia found in many barn environments and remain sensitive to heat.

The system features two types of fire detection. Rate-of-Rise Detectors are particularly sensitive to spontaneous combustion and flash fires and respond to a five-degree rise in temperature in just 20 seconds.

The system also has Line Heat Sensing Cable that detects electrical overheating around service panels, fans or motors.

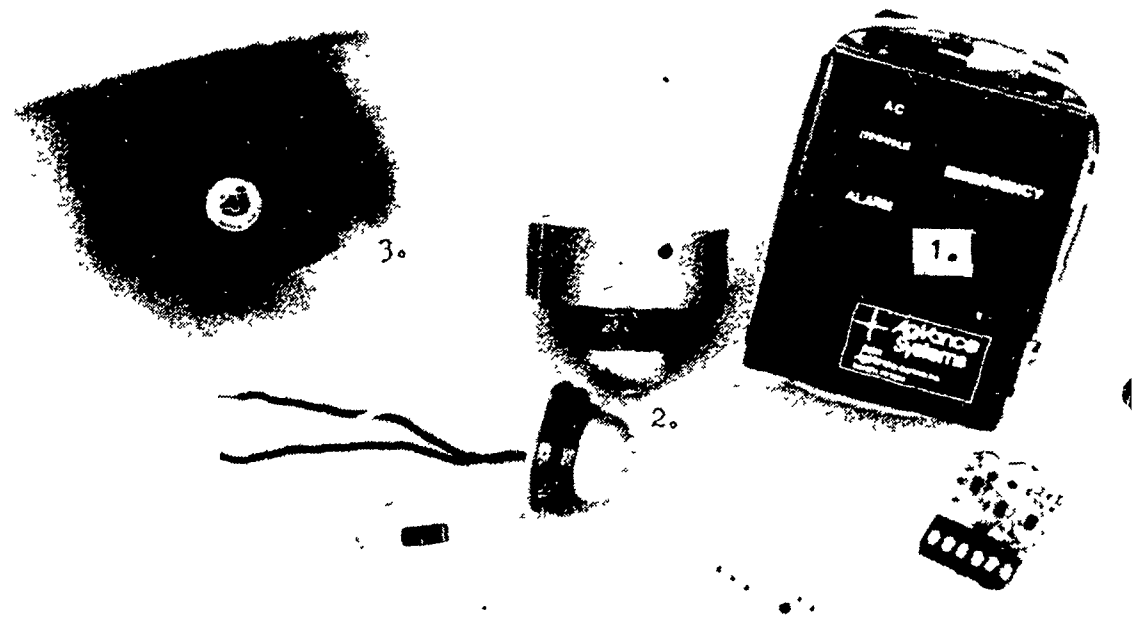
The system's control panel includes solid state circuitry and protective gaskets to seal out dust, moisture, gases and insects. Circuit breakers, fuses and lightning suppressors protect against power surges. In case of power loss, batteries provide emergency power for up to 40 hours and when power is restored, the batteries are recharged

The rate-of-rise detectors can monitor up to 2500 square feet of space. The system can also be equipped with an all-weather siren for exterior mounting and a plug-in remote home alarm.

Approximately 700 systems have been installed in the Mid-West, according to Timothy R. Bliss, president of Ag-Vance.

One of the systems is contained in the Arthur Glatfelter operation in York County.

Ag-Vance representatives in Pennsylvania are Badger Associates, of New Brighton.



Major components of the Ag-Vance fire detection system include 1. Sealed Control Unit; 2. Rate-of-Rise detectors; 3. Outside Siren; and 4. In-home remote alarm.

Improved plastic mulch cited

FORTY FORT — A new thinner, stronger and less expensive product for plastic mulching vegetable operations has been announced by Penn State Seed Company, a major distributor of plastic mulch in Pennsylvania.

The new product is called LLPDE, Linear Low Density Polyethylene, which is manufactured by Union Carbide.

The LLPDE film is one mil thick, as compared to one and one-half mil low density plastic mulch, which has been in use. The new product is not only one-third lighter but is superior in strength and conforms to the soil profile much better.

Rufus Martin, of Port Treverton, used the linear low density film last year on a trial basis and found it much improved.

"It is much stronger," Martin said, "and I had no problem taking it up."

Costs of the Linear Low Density film is also about one third lower than the previously used plastic mulch.

Jim Harkins, of Penn State Seed, cautions growers about making certain they are getting the proper new thinner and stronger film.

"There is a lot of plastic coming on the market, which is not up to quality standards," he said.

"It is recycled plastic and tears easily causing a lot of problems."

Some companies are attempting to make LLPDE mulch, but it is not a true LLPDE film and is reported to be inferior in strength.

Thus, it is best to know your supplier, advises Harkins.

The thinner, stronger LLPDE is also much easier to handle. While the conventional low density mulch weighs 115 lbs. in 4,000-foot rolls for sweet corn growers, the new LLPDE weighs only 77 lbs. per roll.

Since plastic film is priced by the pound and both the LLPDE and the low density film cost the same, the half-mil thinner yet stronger LLPDE amounts to a one-third saving for the grower.

York pesticide meeting

YORK — A pesticide license update meeting will be held on Wednesday, at 7:30 p.m. at the York County Extension Office Meeting Room.

If private applicators license has expired in 1981, 1982 or will expire in 1983, attendance at a crops meeting or an update meeting is required to renew the license.

Freeze-damaged silage retains feed value

UNIVERSITY PARK — Last year a hard freeze in late August and dry weather in some areas has focused attention on the feeding value of corn silage under such stress.

Richard S. Adams, Penn State Extension dairy specialist, says that since the total digestive nutrient (TDN) on energy content of whole-plant varies only from 60-70 percent on a dry matter basis according to maturity and even grain content, most weather-affected silage retains reasonable good feeding value.

Problems may result from abnormal fermentation due to a moisture content over 70 percent or under 60 percent. At high moisture levels more acidity and and abnormal acid pattern may develop that reduces dry matter intake from silage. At a low moisture content, too little fermentation may occur. More mold and other problems as well as increased spoilage may result.

Early harvesting due to frost damage may reduce yields of TDN per acre by 36 percent of more on some farms due to lower dry matter yields and somewhat lower digestibility for corn harvested at the milk or earlier stages.

Adams says that more problems from moldy feed and mycotoxins may be expected. Some ears and even forage portions were moldly when ensiled. Moldy feed often is higher in estrogen content and lower in feeding value than usual.

These may be produced before or after ensiling. Cows may lose appetites, drop in production and be afflicted with a black or bloody diarrhea.

Corn grain in dry or high-moisture form is more susceptible to mycotoxin problems than whole-plant silage. Mycotoxin screening tests are available for suspected feeds. Some corn silage may contain relatively high amounts of hemp dogbane and horse nettle. These may reduce feed intake and sometimes result in toxicity.

When silage pH fails to fall below 4.8 - 5.0 botulism, entertoxemia, (pulpy kidney disease) listerellosis (circling disease) or mycotoxins may be encountered. Nitrate poisoning seldom occurs but is more prevalent in drought-stricken corn silage. Reproduction may suffer when nitrate in level reaches 2 percent in the total ration dry matter. Toxic symptoms and deaths may occur at a 3 percent nitrate ion content.

Silage that does not drop normally in pH may give off dangerous nitrogen oxide gases.

Corn silage that is too finely chopped may depress milkfat test and adversely affect animal health. Average particle-size should be between 3/8 - 3/4 inches with 15 percent of the particles up to 1 - 1½ inches long. Ensiling whole-plant material when the grain is too hard may reduce digestibility by as much as 6 percent. Adams says that this depression cannot be overcome by fine-chopping or use of re-cutters.

Excessively coarse chopped silage may result in more adnormal fermentation, greater dry matter losses and unloading problems due to poorer packing and sorting. Frequently cows will not eat large sections of stalk or sizable pieces of cob resulting in inadequate fiber intake as well as feed wastage.

Cutting stalks at higher levels or harvesting just ears and husks from some rows will not appreciably increase the feeding value or energy content of corn silage. Ears and husks have approximately the same energy content as good whole plant silage.

Nonprotein nitrogen (NPN) additives such as urea and liquid anhydrous ammonia may be added to whole plant corn silage to increase protein content. While some recommend that NPN be added to attain levels of crude protein as high as 15 - 17 percent on a dry matter basis, Adams advises that NPN additions increase protein levels to only 12 -13 percent to avoid possible adnormal fermentation or excessive amounts of soluble nitrogen in rations.

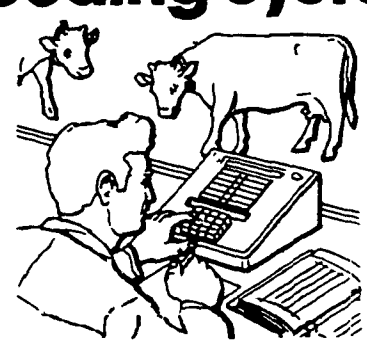
DE LAVAL

RationMaster™ Feeding System



De Laval technology enables you to place the dairy herd's grain feeding program under computer control. With the RationMaster Feeding System, each cow gets only the concentrate needed for optimum milk production. Components include neck-worn transponders...single-stall feeding stations where grain is dispensed automatically...and a Computer Command Center where a micro-processor stores and retrieves data on individual animals.

Reduced labor, more milk, less wasted feed, healthier cows, and shortened calving intervals are typical benefits. Let us explain more about the RationMaster Feeding System — Module One of the advanced De Laval® HerdMaster™ Management System.

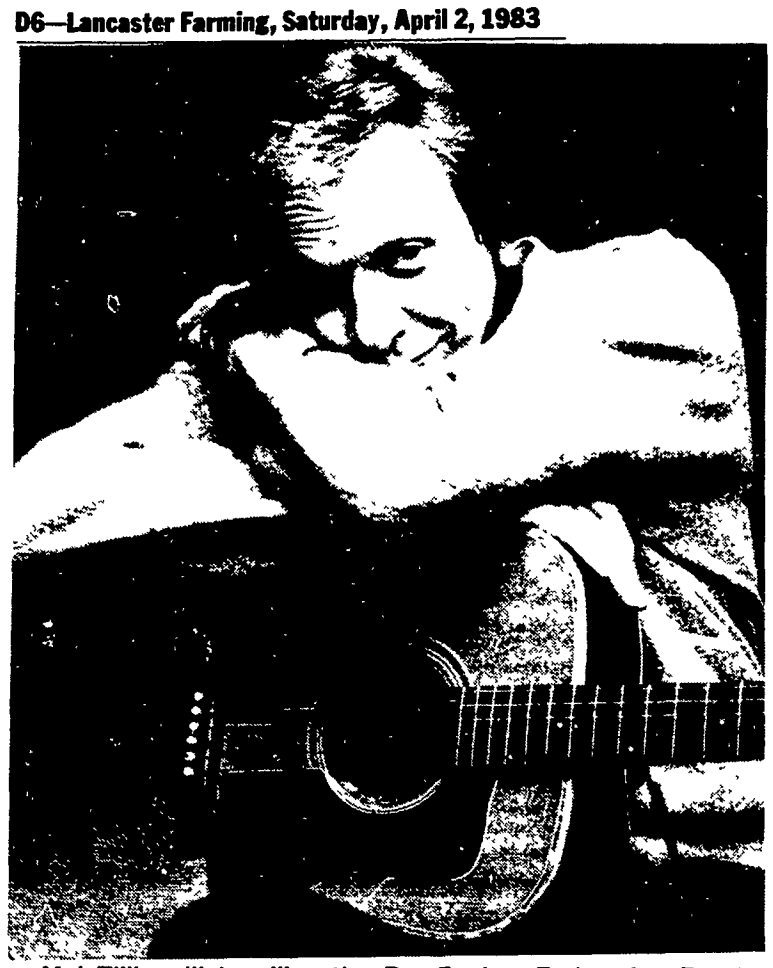
Comedian joins Mel Tillis for Pa. poultry banquet



Mel Tillis will headline the Pa. Poultry Federation Fund Raising Banquet on April 14 at the Hershey Convention Center.

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Poultry Federation has announced that comedian Charlie Slavin has been added to the entertainment bill of their Fund Raising Banquet to be held April 14 at the Hershey Convention Center.

Born in Brooklyn, Slavin had performed as a comedian, master of ceremonies, and all-around delightful raconteur at leading supper clubs and hotels all over the world. He has headlined with such stars al Al Martino, Sergio Franchi, Judy Garland, Marlene Dietrich, and Lawrence Welk. Slavin joins Mel Tillis, this year's featured entertainment, at the annual Federation banquet.

The Federation has announced a list of sponsors who have contributed toward the Federation's Fund Raising Banquet.

Big Dutchman and Favorite Manufacturing of Atlanta, Ga. and New Holland will be sponsoring the social hour and Hershey Equipment Company, Lancaster, will be sponsoring the program. These represent the largest contributions to this year's banquet. American Bank and Trust Co. of Pa. is also a Level I sponsor, designating a contribution of $2,500 or more.

Level II sponsors, contributors of $1,000 or more, include Seaboard Foods, Inc., Hy-Line International, Hy-Cross Company, Commonwealth National Bank, Victor F. Weaver, Inc., and Round Hill Foods, Inc.

Level III contributions of $500 or more were received from the Pennsylvania Farm Credit Associations, Shaver Poultry Breeding Farms LTD, DeKalb York Hatchery, Melhorn Sales and Service, Hubbard Farms, Inc., Agway, Inc., Horace W. Longacre, Inc., Farmers First Bank, ISA Babcock Breeders, Inc., Hamilton Bank, Indian River International, and Greider Farms.

All sponsors will receive recognition in the banquet program in accordance with their level of contribution.

For further information or tickets to the banquet contact the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, 500 N. Progress Ave., Harrisburg, Pa. 17109 or call (717) 652-7530.

Grange names student intern

HARRISBURG — Karl D. Strause, of West Lawn, Berks County, has assumed the position of student intern in the Pennsylvania State Grange office for the Spring term.

Strause is currently a junior at Penn State studying environmental resources management with an emphasis in economics and environmental policy. The major falls under Penn State's College of Agriculture.

This is the second year that the State Grange has participated in an internship program with Penn State.

"The program has been a very successful venture for the State Grange," State Grange Master Charles Wismer said. "It's a learning experience on both sides. Students gain insight into the legislative process and the workings of a large rural farm organization and we gain the benefit of new and fresh approaches."

Strause has another year to complete at Penn State before graduation, but after that he plans to become an environmental lobbyist.

At the Grange, Strause's duties include legislative research and reporting, representing the Grange at various meetings, and keeping a close watch on the movement of state and federal legislation in which the State Grange has an interest.

Hack heading PGBA is family tradition

BY TRISH WILLIAMS

BERWICK — When Albert Hack was elected to preside over the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders Association, at its annual meeting, it was somewhat of a family tradition. The election represents the third generation of Hack's to be elected to serve as president of the Guernsey Association. Hack's father, Clarence served as PGBA president in the 1950's. His grandfather, George Walter Hack, more affectionately referred to as 'GW', served during the 1940's. The Hack's have served the breed well through their work with purebred Guernseys and the association.

As the newly elected president, Hack has announced his plan to get the breed association involved in milk promotion. He proposes that a 15 cents deduction per hundred weight, taken out by milk handlers be turned over to a national breed organization for promotion and education. Hack would like to see cooperation among all of the breed associations on promotion and believes that they should become more involved in milk promotion.

"I see no reason whatsoever, why our national breed associations couldn't handle such a program," said Hack. "I have already addressed the state association with the idea."

Realizing the small numbers the Guernsey breeders represent in terms of the whole dairy industry, Hack seeks support of the Holstein breeders.

"The Holstein breed association is the one we really have to do the selling point with, because they make up over 90 percent of the cow numbers, and volume of milk," Hack claimed. "First we have to see what happens in Congress with the pending legislation, then go from there."

No matter what proposal is finally approved by Congress for correcting the dairy surplus problem, Hack will be aggressive in promoting milk.

Last year Hack and his wife Marian, hosted a dairy day at their Columbia County farm, solely for the purpose of promoting the dairy industry and dairy products. Over 500 people attended the event day, that lasted from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Helicopter rides of the surrounding farm country were popular, as were young calves for the children to pet, and of course there was plenty of dairy products to try.

Albert Hack, newly elected president of the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders Association, represents the third generation of Hack's to serve as president.

Being situated on top of a hill, in the midst of rolling farmland, the vantage point has earned the farm the name, Grand View. The Hack's bought the farm in 1960, from Marian's father, but did not start farming there until 1966. From 1960 to 1966 Hack's father rented the farm from them.

In 1966 the Hack's bought a herd of 45 purebred Guernseys from Christian Wolff Sr., and left Hack's home farm to strike out on their own. At that time they built a new staunchion barn, since then they have replaced all the original buildings on the farm, except for one garage.

The Hack's own 150 acres, with 120 of it being tillable. They rent another 250 acres nearby to raise the crops to feed their herd. They raise 170 acres of corn, 150 acres of alfalfa, and 30 acres of wheat. The herd recieves a ration of alfalfa haylage, high moisture corn, soybean oil meal and minerals.

With 75 head in the milking string the rolling herd average is 11,557 pounds of milk at a 4.7 percent test and 544 pounds of fat.

His interest in purebred Guernsey was nutured very young, by his father and grandfather. He purchased his first Guernsey when he was a 4-H member. Hack recalls his disappointment as a 4-H member, when he was unable to show his cattle because their herd became infected with Bangs disease. This did not diminish his enthusiasm for the breed, at age 16 he joined the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders Association and has been a member ever since.

Hack's interest in cattle breeding reaches beyond his own herd. For three years he worked for American Breeders Service as a technician, breeding cattle. He no longer breeds for ABS but continues to sell semen. He does all the breeding of his own herd.

"Marian is very active in the farm," said Hack. "She grew up on this farm and is a real farm girl. She can run a diesel tractor and do almost anything I can do, she is especially good with the cattle."

The Hack's have no children of their own, but say they always have young people around to help on the farm when they need them. Presently they have one hired hand, Brian Hess, who enjoys working with the cattle, and farm machinery.

Penn State observes Ag Day

UNIVERSITY PARK — For Penn State agriculture students National Agriculture Day on March 21 turned into a full scale, extended event.

Celebrations began with a weekend of seminars, tours, and parties at the University Park campus, March 18 and 19. More than 150 agriculture students from Penn State's 22 campuses joined in weekend activities sponsored by the Ag Student Council.

Students then continued their day with club sponsored tours of agricultural departments and facilities, a banquet at the Penn State Meats Lab, and a party hosted by the Alpha Zeta, the national honorary fraternity for students in agriculture.

"The weekend is a terrific introduction to life and work in agriculture at University Park," said Jim McCoy, coordinator of Commonwealth campus relations for the College of Agriculture.

Del. has crop pest hot line

NEWARK, Del. — The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service has installed a toll-free crop pest hot line for use by Delaware farmers. The new 24-hour information service will begin April 1. The number to call is 1-800-345-7544.

The service will use a code-a-phone system like that of the National Weather Service in order to provide growers with the latest information on pest activity, and predictions affecting the major commercial crops grown in Delaware. Users calling the toll-free number will receive a report based on current black-light and pheromone trap data and field scout observations.

Initially, information will be updated once a week. After the growing season gets under way, reports and recommendations will be changed two or three times a week to reflect the latest findings on economic crop pest activity.

According to University of Delaware extension entomologist Mark Graustein, the hot line replaces Delaware's portion of the Integrated Pest management Guide–a weekly report mailed to subscribers last summer. He and extension pest management specialist Joanne Whalen will interpret data collected. The phone service will enable them to update reports more often and get them to farmers faster.

MADE TO LAST WITH FIBERGLASS — from FIBERDOME

Fiberglass is practically dent-proof Stands up to long periods of hard use • Contents stay fresh because fiberglass absorbs little or no heat • Because there is very little condensation on the inside moisture cannot alter the contents of material being stored • Fiberglass is rust resistant Acids and salts can t hurt it

Economical to Use • Simple to Install • Easy to Operate • Eliminates Dirty Chutes • Directs Flow of Feed • Saves Wear on Silo Chutes • Adapts to Any Make Silo

The only all-fiberglass feed cart • Buff exterior white gell-coat interior • 14 bushel capacity (4 93 Hectoliter) • Immune to silage acids does not rust • Easy to load unload and sanitize

Insulation value provides warmth in winter while remaining cool in summer • Hutches may be nested for compact storage • Hutches are easily moved by use of firmly imbedded I-bolts • Studies show respiratory problems, disease and calf mortality are reduced when hutches are properly used

Get a cool, clean and constant water supply using no energy.

With the MIRAFOUNT Waterer from Fiberdome you'll have the finest-operating lowest cost energy and money saving liv estock waterer on the market today The thermal engineering and special design of the seal corks enables MIRAFOUNT to work in all kinds of weather

Ag-Bag System

"It's in the Bag" is more than a catch-word on the Flynn farm. The Flynn brothers, Gene, Tom and Adrian, use a two-ply plastic bagging system, called the Ag-Bag, to store haylage and silage.

Advantages of the bag system. Several plus factors are cited for this bagging system. It is effective, economical and helps the dairyman get maximum utilization from forage crops. Mix rations as you feed.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SWITCH

- Alfalfa Silage
- Ground Ear Corn
- Corn Silage
- Haylage
- Two Ply Bags White Plastic
- Outer Covering and Black
- Plastic Inner Lining
- Black Plastic Underneath
- Absorbs Suns Rays Prevents Freezing
- Enables Farmers to Reduce Cost of Grain Capacity per Acre 60% Total Digestive Nutrients

Farmer, the tool you need is the Ag-Bagger. No other silage storer can you profit from by doing custom work Ag Bag Machine more than pays for itself. Look around and talk to your neighbors. Farmers with more than one farm having the Ag-Bagger do not have to haul feed back and forth from farm to farm. Place bags anywhere you please.

Ag Career Days held

UNIVERSITY PARK — The first annual Ag Career Days Tuesday, March 22, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the College of Agriculture, and Alpha Gamma Rho agricultural fraternity drew 21 ag-related employers.

Agway, Sperry-New Holland, Dow Chemical, Ralston Purina, the Pennsylvania Red Meats Board, the Peace Crops, and the Pennsylvania Farmer were only a few who participated in the all day event entitled "Meet Your Future Employer." More than 600 students talked with representatives about prospects for employment.

"The Ag students are really impressive." "What a great turn out – I'm glad students aren't leaving their careers to the last minute!" These were just two of the many favorable comments from business representatives at the end of the day.

In addition to talking with employers directly, students attended seminars on careers in agriculture: Equal Opportunity in Agricultural Careers, The Importance of Internships in Education, and Who is a Qualified Graduate, which were conducted by sponsors and representatives.

Farm Talk

by Jerry Webb

Delaware Extension

Zoning Alarm

Farmers have good reason to be a little alarmed over some of the zoning stories that are making the rounds these days. More and more pressure is being applied for farmers to clean up their operations and to meet hitherto unheard of standards. These efforts, carried out by citizens' groups and various levels of government, are causing farmers to give considerable thought to the future of agriculture in the urbanized East.

The time may be at hand for some farmers to pack up and head west. It's a tough decision, but it may be the only logical one for a swine producer or other odor-intensive agricultural entrepreneur who must daily face the harassment of governmental sleuths and irate neighbors.

There was a time when farmers could simply say, "We were here first. Our agricultural enterprises have always smelled about like that, and there's nothing much anybody can do about it." But those days are truly gone. As sad as it may be, farmers are having to comply with standards set by nonfarm people with little understanding of agriculture. Existing operations are being forced to clean up and deodorize, and farmers are finding it more and more difficult to obtain the necessary permits for new agricultural enterprises that may provide sight, sound, air, water or odor pollution.

Trench silo landfill

Examples of these hassles abound throughout the urban areas as farmers struggle to modernize and expand at the same time their nonfarm neighbors seek to improve their own quality of living. It's not hard to understand why a downwind neighbor would object to a large confinement hog operation on a piece of land that used to grow corn or perhaps provide a pasture for a few beef cows. And it's not hard to understand why a nonfarm neighbor wonders about the runoff from a feedlot and the quality of his downriver drinking water.

Farmers are being told they must build new livestock buildings many yards from the nearest neighbor — in some cases unreasonable distances that cannot be met on existing land tracts. So without saying it, local zoning rulings are forcing farmers out of certain enterprises or at least are keeping them from expanding.

One tale brought to my attention involved an illegal landfill on a farm. Further investigation showed that landfill to be a trench silo. It's an inexpensive way to store a large amount of livestock roughage and it makes very little contribution to any kind of agricultural pollution. But technically, it probably does fall under the bounds of some governmental unit that's involved with landfills.

Where will it end

Where will it all end? That's anybody's guess. But it's a pretty sure bet that farming in the urban fringe is going to become more and more difficult. The rural residents just keep coming, vacating the cities and suburbs for life in the country. They come seeking fresh air, open space, and a place to keep a pony. They bring with them urban standards that are sometimes completely incompatible with rural life-styles.

An urban dweller who was raised with the constant stench of an oil refinery in his nostrils can get downright nasty about the occasional whiff of hog house essence that is carried on a gentle summer breeze. Like it or not, farmers are going to have to listen to this kind of a guy because he lives in the neighborhood, he pays taxes, and he's involved in the community. He wants a better place to live, and the elimination of barnyard odors is high on his list of community betterment projects.

The best hope farmers have right now, it seems to me, is an intensive educational effort to at least make the nonfarm rural residents understand why there are occasional bad odors, and also it would behoove farmers to do everything in their power to cut down on those sorts of problems.

There are plenty of examples of intensive livestock operations successfully maintained in close proximity of nonfarm residents. They require some extra effort and some give and take. Meanwhile, the farmer who ignores this situation and goes about his business with the attitude that he was there first is headed for a disappointing surprise.

WRAP UP YOUR FLY CONTROL PROBLEMS ON THAT OLD EARTAG

With the new ECTIBAN® Insecticide Tape, existing eartags can serve for both identification and fly control. Even last year's insecticide tag can be reworked. No more double tagging or cutting away old tags.

This unique device provides proven season-long control of horn flies and face flies. Through the natural movement of the head, cattle spread the insecticide directly to their shoulders and backs.

ECTIBAN Tape contains two ampules of ECTIBAN, the most effective fly control product on the market. ECTIBAN provides quick knockdown—you see results the same day you apply the tape. ECTIBAN gives long residual effect—kills flies up to five months and is low in toxicity to animals.

You simply wrap the ECTIBAN Tape around an existing eartag—either identification tag or last year's insecticide tag. With one squeeze of the thumb, the ECTIBAN is released, and the eartag is reworked, as easy as one, two, three, four.

Choose the planter fertilizer carefully

NEWARK, DEL. — There are many differences among fertilizers and good reasons why one may be a better choice than another for planter use in a given situation. Take nitrogen sources for example.

Some folks still think these are all the same. "A pound of nitrogen is a pound of nitrogen and only the price is important," is a common assumption among farmers and industry representatives. But it's no longer very apt.

"In a less competitive world this might have been good enough," says University of Delaware extension agronomist William H. Mitchell. "But today's farmers are on a fast track and they can't afford a casual view of an input that's as critical to the success of their operation as nitrogen."

Nitrogen sources are not all alike in the way they perform, he says. Some cost less than others. Some are more stable. Some contain other valuable nutrients in addition to N. Some have a greater acidifying effect than others or are more likely to cause seedling or crop injury. Different materials vary in nitrogen content as well as form — ammonia or nitrate. Also, some sources are wet while others are dry.

In other words, each nitrogen source has special characteristics which must be considered when choosing a planter fertilizer.

Ammonium nitrate, for instance, contains about 34 percent nitrogen — half as ammonium and half as nitrate. This material is stable and effective whether placed in or on the soil. However, because of its unique properties and demand for use outside of agriculture, in the future it's likely to become increasingly expensive compared to other dry nitrogen sources.

Urea is another option. Containing 45 percent nitrogen (all as ammonium), this is the most concentrated dry nitrogen source. But on breakdown some free ammonia will be released which can be lost in the atmosphere if this material is not soil incorporated. It is highly soluble and moves readily into the soil under rainfall or irrigation.

UAN is a liquid blend of urea and ammonium nitrate. It contains 30 percent nitrogen and is a useful carrier for herbicides or micronutrients. It can be broadcast, dribbled, banded or applied with irrigation water. It is often mixed with other liquid nitrogen sources to achieve desired nutrient ratios. Since UAN contains urea, it, too, produces free ammonia on breakdown. Some of this may be lost unless soil incorporated. Mitchell does not recommend using this material for no-tillage systems.

All ammonium sources of nitrogen are acid-forming, but ammonium sulfate is the most acid of all. On the other hand, it contains 20 percent nitrogen and is an excellent source of sulfur, so it is useful for band application to solve specific problems.

MAP, DAP and 10-34-0 all contain ammonium phosphate, which makes them excellent planter fertilizers. On breakdown, DAP releases ammonia and can be toxic if placed too close to germinating seeds. For this reason, the agronomist recommends placing it 2 inches from the seed row. Of the three, 10-34-0 is the only liquid. It can be placed closer to the row than most other nitrogen sources and is an excellent carrier for micronutrients. It can also be mixed with UAN and potash to make a range of complete liquid fertilizers.

One consideration in choosing a planter fertilizer is whether to go with a liquid or dry form. Being a liquid doesn't make a fertilizer more available to plants. More important considerations are its local availability, convenience of handling and uniformity. A farmer who is renovating a planter and equipping it with fertilizer attachments will also want to know the relative cost of going wet or dry.

Mitchell suggests growers also consider ease and speed of loading the planter with fertilizer. Liquids generally do better on this point; however, improvements have been made in dry handling equipment, and with highly concentrated materials on the market, application rates are often low. This tends to minimize the handling advantage of liquids.

As carriers for micronutrients, liquids have a definite advantage. Very small amounts of boron, zinc and manganese are often needed in planter fertilizers. These can be mixed and applied more evenly in liquid form. But again, the difference is relative. With care, an adequate job can also be done with dry products.

During bulk blending, dry components in a fertilizer mix often become segregated. With

Roy L. Miller, chairman of the Cumberland Conservation District, was honored for his 17 years of service to the district at recent annual banquet.

CARLISLE — The Cumberland County Conservation District gathered last week to honor members for their years of service to the conservation program.

Receiving an award for 17 years of service was Roy L. Miller, who has served the Conservation District in numerous capacities and now holds the office of Chairman of the District.

David Rider received a plaque for 15 years of dedicated work and service to the Conservation District. And, a 10-year service award was presented to Donald Basehore as a committee member and office holder.

A District Director Service Award was presented to Roy E. Snoke. Snoke has served the District as past chairman and director and has held numerous other offices during his terms as director.

Every year, the Cumberland County Conservation District sponsors a Conservation Poster Contest in elementary and high schools throughout the county. In planter fertilizer it's essential that the material be uniform. Generally, liquids blend better.

Evenness of field application depends to some extent on uniformity of mixing, but a poor application technique can make even a good product look bad, the agronomist says. Sometimes a less uniform material, well spread, is the best choice.

One other important consideration — liquid fertilizers generally cost more per pound of plant nutrient than dry sources. This must be balanced against their advantages in handling and uniformity, when deciding which material to buy.

Charles Hogan, District Director, highlighted events of the Conservation District activities during 1982.

In 1982, the District distributed revisions to the Cumberland, Dauphin, Perry County Erosion and Sedimentation Control Handbook. This handbook is part of Cumberland County Conservation District's continuing commitment to the prevention of accelerated soil erosion of Commonwealth waterways, as well as the preservation of overall environmental quality.

The Cumberland County Conservation District's fifth annual seedling sale was held in April, 1982. Over 22,000 tree seedlings were sold and planted throughout the county.

In 1982 in the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, 14 farms entered into the Long Term Agreement contract of 3 to 10 years to complete the installation of qualifying conservation practices as determined by the Soil Conservation Service.

The Cumberland County Planing Commission in 1982 reviewed 248 subdivision and land development plans advising developers and municipalities that erosion and sediment control plans must be reviewed by the Conservation District. And, in this regard, the Commission is evolving a policy that will help to direct development and eliminate random building on agricultural land.

In 1982, one rapidly growing service has been the Bureau of Forestry in relation to the gypsy moths. Approximately 9,400 acres are proposed for spraying in the 1983 cooperative county-state spray program.

Other activities of the District have been the distribution of materials during Resource Stewardship Week, co-sponsor of an environmental education workshop with the Whitetail Environmental Center, sponsoring two students to the Cumberland County Junior Conservation School, the sponsor of a student to Penn State's Youth Forestry Camp, promote energy conservation workshops sponsored by the Pa. Energy Center Region VI.

Montgomery plans terrace plow demo

LIMERICK — An Amco Terrace Plow demonstration will be held near Limerick in Montgomery County on Tuesday, April 12.

The demonstration will begin at 10 a.m. on the Clarence Reifsneider farm. To reach the farm, follow Rt. 422 east from Pottstown, continue through Limerick, and turn right on Royersford Rd. It is the first farm on the right.

Rain date is April 19.

The terrace plow is considered an economical way to build terraces, diversions and waterways at a reduce cost for conservation. The demonstration, sponsored by the Montgomery County Conservation District and Hamilton Equipment, of Ephrata, will continue from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Dunn traces potato production drop

UNIVERSITY PARK — The average American eats more than a hundred pounds of potatoes every year – less than half are fresh. That is a dramatic shift from even 1960 when most of the potatoes we consumed were fresh.

The rise in processed consumption has been almost entirely in frozen products, particularly french fries, while consumption of potato chips and dehydrated potatoes has remained largely unchanged.

The changes in consumption have encouraged a substantial shift in the location of production. Most of the facilities for the expanded processing portion of the industry are now located in the Northwest.

Over the last 30 years, changes in the structure of the U.S. potato industry have had a negative impact on the industry in Pennsylvania. Potatoes are still the major vegetable crop in the state, with production valued at $35 million.

In 1950, Pennsylvania was the sixth largest potato-producing state in the nation and in 1981, it was 13th. Acreage dropped from 60,000 in 1955 to 22,000 in 1981, a decline of 63 percent.

Other northeastern states shared this decline in production. Whereas in 1950 Northeast produced approximately 30 percent of the U.S. potato crop, in 1980 it produced only 15 percent.

Several factors combined to precipitate the decline in the Northeast and to shift production westward, according to James W. Dunn. "Despite an increase in market price from $1.78 to $6.50 per hundred pounds in the last three decades, potato production has not been as profitable as other uses of the resources involved," said Dunn.

"Farm input prices and production expenses rose just as rapidly as did potato prices. Increased yields required more intensive use of fertilizer and pesticides, and thus expenses increased."

This decrease in profitability affected producers in the Northeast more than it did those in the Northwest. The varieties of potatoes grown in Pennsylvania and throughout the Northeast are round white potatoes best suited for eating, tablestock or potato-chip portions of the market, neither of which has been expanding. The premium potato used for tablestock and for making french fries is the predominantly western variety, the Russet. This variety grows poorly in the relatively rocky, disease — and pest — prone soils of the Northeast.

Dunn says that continuation of the present production patterns seems most likely for the near future, but he makes some suggestions for improving the industry's competitive position in the state and the region:

Find new uses for the product;

Major technological changes in growing practices;

Growers should strive to market only top-of-the-line potatoes, which means finding alternative uses for culled potatoes.

Hog inventory up 3 percent

HARRISBURG — Inventory of all hogs and pigs on March 1 in the 10 states conducting quarterly hog surveys is estimated at 41.6 million head, three percent above last March, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. This number is eight percent below March, 1981, and is the first increase in the March inventory level since 1980. The 10 quarterly states are Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina and Ohio.

Breeding inventory at 5.91 million head, was six percent more than a year ago but nine percent less than March 1981. This is the first increase in the March breeding herd since 1979. Market hog inventory at 35.7 million head, is two percent above last year but eight percent below two years ago.

The December 1982-February 1983 pig crop was 15.5 million head, 10 percent more than last year but two percent below two years ago. There were 2.08 million sows that farrowed during the past quarter, an increase of five percent from a year ago but five percent below the same period two years ago.

Sows farrowing averaged a record high 7.44 pigs per litter compared with 7.11 last year and 7.24 two years ago. The litter rate was the highest on record for a December-February quarter and second highest overall for the 10 quarterly states. The highest litter rate on record is 7.54 in March-May of 1981.

Hog producers in the 10 quarterly states intend to farrow 2.58 million sows during March-May of this year, eight percent more than during the comparable period in 1982 but six percent less than two years ago. Farrowing intentions for June-August are 2.35 million head, seven percent above the same period last year but five percent less than two years ago.

Part-time farm booklet available

UNIVERSITY PARK — A growing trend in Pennsylvania is part-time farming–a situation where a farm operator receives a substantial portion of his income from off-farm sources.

For any family interested in part-time farming, the Cooperative Extension Service has a booklet that explores all aspects of this way of life.

"Farm Management for Part-Time Farmers" outlines the advantages and disadvantages of operating a farm and discusses the pros and cons that a family must consider before making the decision to farm.

The booklet stresses the importance of farm management and the importance of information on farm records, taxes, and insurance coverage.

Also covered are factors involved in deciding what type of farm enterprise–livestock, crop, or a combination of both–is best suited to a family's goals and talents, as well as the costs, labor, equipment and income for the various crops and livestock.

Single copies of this booklet are available free from Cooperative County Extension offices. Just ask for Special Circular 203.

2 livestock scholarships available

BOSTON, Mass. — The New England Livestock Conservation, Inc. has two $350 scholarships available.

Their purpose is to foster increased interest in the proper handling and production of domestic livestock, to stimulate outstanding youth activities towards these goals, and to provide some financial assistance to students who desire to further their education in this special field.

Any resident of the New England States who has been admitted to a recognized two-year or four-year post-high school institution in New England, and planning to major in the animal science is eligible. The student may be entering as a freshman or already actively enrolled in the institution.

A Scholarship Committee will evaluate and select the two winners. Guidelines will be background, experience, academic performance, financial need, and interest in livestock and/or animal products industries.

For more information and application write to New England Livestock Conservation, Scholarships, Box 265, Boston, Ma. 02117.

Just how smart are those trout?

UNIVERSITY PARK — When it comes to conserving energy, wild trout are among nature's smartest creatures. Wild trout know how to save energy and only the most efficient ones grow year by year.

For example, says Robert Bachman, fisheries biologist at Penn State, smart trout save their energy by intercepting food as close as possible to their feeding sites. Then they drop quickly to the stream bottom, where there is less current, in returning upstream to "home base." Most food is in the drift, meaning it drifts with the current.

Over three seasons, April through November, Bachman discovered that wild trout spent over 85 percent of their time in "sit and wait" feeding sites. He studied free-ranging wild brown trout from camouflaged towers at the Spruce Creek Fisheries Research Area in central Pennsylvania.

World Record

Bachman's studies set something of a world record in observing a single group of wild trout – over 100 of them – without handling or marking the fish. He was supporting in his studies at Penn State by the Cooperative Fishery Research Unit, now merged into the Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit.

He claims the speed of a trout's growth, and how big it gets, depends on the difference between the energy gained from the food and the energy spent in catching it. He noticed that hatchery trout, brought into the research site, used up more energy than they gained – mostly due to wasted movements. Thus, they didn't survive well in the wild.

Feeding sites used by any one trout, typically six to eight for each fish, changed very little with time of day, season, or even as the trout grew, he affirmed. The area enclosing the trout's home range averaged less than 200 square feet. These sites usually were established when the trout were six months to a year old.

"Home ranges of different individuals overlapped," he said. "and we often found four or five trout using the same feeding site on a time-sharing basis. Such feeding sites became the focus of fights."

Fight for Feed

Bachman explained that a trout usually tries to chase away another trout approaching its feeding site. It appears that each trout knows its neighbors, he added, since fighting between them is brief and not very costly in energy. But fights between strangers or neighbors of nearly the same age and size are often long and burn off energy.

"Trout seem to know instinctively that energy costs can be reduced by quickly driving away competitors or by occupying less busy feeding sites," he stated.

"Trout usually take only about one second to intercept food floating downstream but often take as long as eight to ten seconds in returning upstream," he added. "Then once again they take up energy-saving sites provided by rocks sheltering them from the current, where they can watch for oncoming food."

Feeding rates were found to decline as the fish grew older. The larger trout gradually omitted more and more of the smaller food items from their diet. Bachman said the trout apparently were able to judge when a food item was large enough to warrant the energy needed to catch it. In general, the wild trout were very good at balancing their energy budgets.

One in Thousand

Growth stopped, or continued very slowly, when trout reached a size where the energy from food balanced the energy spent getting it. One such trout, named "Yellowfin," was seen in the same area six consecutive summers. "Yellowfin" grew only two inches in a 50-month period – but was the most dominant trout in the study area during that time.

Bachman said only one trout in a thousand grows to trophy size. He thinks that certain special areas of a stream provide a place where a trout can ambush small fish as they pass by. Such areas tend to grow big fish. However, most trout are drift feeders for all of their lives and never attain trophy size, regardless of their age.

The hatchery trout brought into the stream were much less "cost conscious" than the wild ones. Hatchery trout changed position more than three times as often as wild trout and used energy-saving sites less often than wild trout.

Moreover, hatchery trout were less likely to return to feeling sites after an encounter with another trout, wild or hatchery. As a result, hatchery trout failed to become part of the established "pecking order" and did not settle into a permanent home range.

"With all their moving around, one might assume that the hatchery trout were seeking food more diligently that the wild trout. Our results showed, however, that hatchery trout fed only one-fourth to one-half as often as wild ones. So they use up more energy than they gain," he added.

Egg production rises

HARRISBURG — February, 1983 egg production in Pennsylvania totaled 367 million according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. This was up seven percent from the 343 million eggs produced in February 1982.

The February average of 18.1 million layers was seven percent above a year ago. Egg production per 100 layers was 2,032 compared with 2,034 in February 1982.

The nation's laying flocks produced 5.35 billion eggs during February 1983, up fractionally from a year earlier. The number of layers on hand during February 1983 was 281 million, compared with 288 million a year earlier. Egg production per 100 layers during February was 1,899 compared with 1,850 a year earlier.

Diagnosis important in treating swine

NEWARK, Del. — Antibiotics were first used in swine feed during the early 1950's. Since then researchers have sought ways to improve the effectiveness of penicillin, streptomycin, chloratetracycline and oxytetracycline in swine feeding programs.

These antibiotics are used in human medicine as well, and some people would prefer that they be used exclusively for that purpose. However, livestock producers have found that medications sometimes improve gains and feed conversion in animals.

"While the debate goes on, one point remains clear," says University of Delaware extension livestock specialist Richard Fowler. "The search must continue for new antibiotics or effective combinations of existing ones for animals."

Efficient production is critical to the pork industry, he says. The loss of antibiotics for swine use would cause a severe setback. There would be less product and more cost to consumers. Neither producer nor consumer can afford this, he says.

The University of Nebraska recently evaluated the effects of antibiotics on swine in a series of three experiments. The results can be instructive for Delmarva producers, the specialist says.

In the first study, pigs fed chloratetracycline (CTC) during the grower phase gained the same as pigs fed no antibiotic, and required 3 percent more feed per pound of grain. Although CTC nearly always gives a response, this time it didn't. In the same study, Tylosin resulted in a 2-3 percent improvement in gain and feed conversion when fed during the grower phase. However, the advantage was lost or reduced during finishing.

These results may seem surprising, says Fowler. But the fact is, not many producers know what kind of response antibiotics give on their farms. Continual use of the same antibiotic results in a lower response than when it was first used. Some observers believe this lowered response is due to increased bacterial resistance to the antibiotics, or to improved microbial cleanliness of facilities.

The lack of responsiveness to an antibiotic may not be permanent, the specialist says. Virginiamycin did not produce much response as a feed additive until recently. Yet Nebraska research shows it improved gains and feed efficiency 10.3 percent and 4.5 percent, respectively, during the grower phase and 5.2 percent and 4.6 percent during the finisher phase.

A third experiment evaluated the effect on gains and feed efficiency of Carbadox and a worming compound, pyrantel tartrate, fed alone or in combination. Carbadox, a chembiotic, can be fed only up to 75 pounds of body weight. Pigs fed this gained 12 percent faster on 7 percent less feed per pound of gain than those not treated. The advantage disappeared by the time they reached market weight, however. Continuing the pigs on 50 grams per ton of oxytetracycline during the finishing phase was not effective in maintaining the gain and feed conversion advantage obtained earlier.

There was no improvement in gain or feed efficiency from feeding pyrantel tartrate. Although it is regarded as an excellent dewormer, the parasite load on the confined pigs was low in this study.

A separate Nebraska experiment evaluated water medications for stressed feeder pigs. Results indicated that routine water medication of transported purchased feeder pigs is not always of benefit. There was no improvement in performance or decrease in death loss with the addition of either a sulfa-electrolyte or electrolyte-vitamin solution to the drinking water for five days after arrival.

If producers decide to medicate routinely, Fowler says it is best to use a separate water medication system to permit treatment either of single pens or the whole barn.

"Research like this shows that general medication for nonspecific symptoms has questionable value," says the specialist. "Water medication of sick pigs for a specific set of symptoms does work well in my experience. The key is to get a diagnosis and treat promptly. Sick pigs often drink before they will consume dry feed."

Since 1928 our company has been treating homes for termites.

We know what we're doing.

And we've seen just about everything in over 50 years of termite control work. So today, Ehrlich can truly offer you the benefits of experience. We know what not to do, what to do, how to do it, and when to do it. Much of this know-how can only be gained by experience. So when you have a termite problem in your valuable home, you can depend on Ehrlich to eliminate the problem. We've done it often enough to know what we're doing. Call us.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Why are some farmers able to make more profit than others in similar circumstances? I suppose the answer is the same as why one man can hit more home runs in a year than anyone else? Or why does one college football hero command millions of dollars for his services while others fade into oblivion? Some people just have a greater talent than others in a given area.

However that is not the only reason nor is it a true answer. There is more to it than sheer talent. The best is also the most dedicated, have more desire to succeed, the best at decision making and the one most apt to study ways to constantly improve. This is a factor in any area of life. No dedication, hard work, and desire do not take the place of talent but it can bring that talent to the nth degree.

As examples look at some ball players from the past - Eddie Stanky, Leo Durocher, Pee Wee Reese. They were mediocre in relation to some of their team mates. If all scientific factors were applied to them they would never had made a high school team, let alone be a major leagurer. Yet dedication, desire, and work did magnify their talent into star quality.

Let's look at some of the factors that help make a top crop producer good.

1. Soil quality - there is no question that soil quality is important. It is easier and cheaper to produce high yields on Hagerstown silt loam than on Edom soil. Yet some farmers were able to overcome low quality soils with soil improvement techniques such as drainage, contours, good liming, and good cultural practices.

2. High yields - this has been one of the more surprising factors as I have been reviewing my enterprise analyses. Some farmers with quite high yields also had very high expenses. Their returns were not what may have been expected. The top operators appeared to have been able to strike a balance between costs and returns. One of the most variable items was cash machine costs. Apparently some farmers can operate equipment more efficiently than others. This is not real surprising since an energy servey I did a few years ago indicated the same thing.

3. Crop records - many but not all good crop producers keep crop records. None of those at the other end of the spectrum kept crop records.

4. Careful cost control - in practically every case the top crop money makers had average or better yields on all crops and average or below expenses. In addition to the wide fluctuations of machine costs, it was a surprise to see the variation in lime and fertilizer costs per acre. Not knowing all the farms, it was hard to tell whether this fluctuation was due to a variance in selection of brands, careful shopping for the best price, better use of soil tests, quality of soils or past liming and fertilizing practices.

I do feel that most farmers could do a more efficient job of producing crops if (1) they had more knowledge of soil chemistry and the use of nutrients by plants, (2) used soil test results, (3) set priorities on fields on which to spend the fertilizer dollar, and (4) paid more attention to nutrient balance.

Keep peanuts away from small children

READING — One of the many health hazards that beset growing children involves that common food most of us enjoy: the peanut.

It's extrememly dangerous to let any child under ten eat peanuts, especially while playing or running. He or she could very easily, during the excitment, aspirate, or inhale, the peanut into his windpipe and lungs. After the age to ten, when molar teeth have appeared, he can chew them more thoroughly and the risk is lessened considerably.

Most objects that a child might choke on are not particularly irritative, but this is not so with peanuts. They contain a special oil that irritates the lining membranes of the lungs. Once the peanut gets lodged in the lungs or tracheobronchial tree, it sets up a rapid inflammation and swelling that chokes off that part of the lung beyond the peanut. Frequently, pneumonia or abcesses will develop in that area.

Children will usually inhale small pieces of peanuts when they get a mouthful of them, start running, laughing or screaming, and then suddenly take a deep breath. When this happens, the peanuts go directly down into their lungs, usually on the right side. The child will usually cough or choke for a few seconds and the cough stops. However, portions of the peanuts may still be lodged within the lungs.

The child may develop a mild temperature rise or abnormal chest X-ray showing small areas of what appears to be pneumonia. Usually, at this point, it is necessary for an otolaryngologist (ear, nose and throat specialist) to perform a bronchoscopy to remove the peanut.

During this procedure, a long hollow tube is inserted through the mouth, down the windpipe to the distal part of the lung. Under magnification, the peanut can be identified and removed with long forceps.

To repeat this very vital piece of medical advice: Under no circumstance leave any kind of peanut unattended if children are near. There are too many statistics to prove the very high element of risk.

For instance, 75 percent of patients who have inhaled foreign objects into their lungs are under three years of age. Again, the reason is the same: an excitable child eating peanuts inhales suddenly for breath and the peanuts are inhaled. The worst thing to do is to punish a child who has filled his mouth with peanuts; he could very easily aspirate them during the excitement.

It is also extremely important to remember that even though the child has recovered from his choking or coughing bout, he still should be checked as soon as possible. A study revealed that in 10 percent of patients who had to have a bronchoscopy, the choking had occurred more than a month earlier. The prolonged period of irriation and pneumonia created a more advanced condition.

Some year ago, a breakfast cereal was developed containing whole peanuts. Realizing how real the health hazard was to small children, medical societies petitioned and successfully persuaded the manufacturer to stop putting peanuts into the cereal.

And finally, there are extreme cases that require major surgery. Where peanut fragments had remained a long time and created abcesses in the lung, it was necessary to actually open the chest and remove a part of the lung.

USDA post to Leard

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block announced today he has named Robert E. Leard to be administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service.

Leard has served as acting administrator since January and as associate administrator for the previous year.

"Mr. Leard has shown that he is both willing and quite capable of serving in this capacity," Block said. "I am confident that he will provide strong administrative leadership to the Food and Nutrition Service, one of USDA's largest agencies."

Leard completed graduate studies at the University of Southern California after his graduation from West Point. He succeeds Samuel J. Cornelius, who served as administrator until being named special assistant to Block in January.

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service administers the food stamp program and other nutrition assistance programs.

Harkin calls for PRV funds

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Citing $35 million in annual losses to pork producers, U.S. Rep. Tom Harkin (D-Iowa) this week called for federal funding of pilot projects for the control and eradication of pseudorabies in hogs.

In testimony before the Subcommittee of Agriculture, Rural Development and Related Agencies of the House Appropriations Committee. Harkin said, "Pseudorabies, commonly called PRV, has become a major problem for hog producers."

Harkin asked for an appropriation of $2.7 million for the 1984 fiscal year, noting that the expenditure would "develop the tools necessary for controlling and eventually eradicating the disease."

Iowa has been designated as one of five states in which pilot projects would be conducted.

Harkin, who led House efforts to win authorization for the pilot projects, is the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry of the House Committee on Agriculture.

Lebanon plans PFU chartering

LEBANON — Pennsylvania Farmers Union has set Tuesday, April 12, as the date for the chartering Lebanon County. Members in Lebanon County are urged to attend the ceremony/meeting at the Whispering Pines Restaurant on Route 422 east of Lebanon.

State Executive Director Carl L. Kaufman indicated the strides taken by Pennsylvania Farmers Union since its chartering date of February 4, 1982, including PFU's role in defeating the state proposed promotion assessment milk of 10 cents/cwt. last year and now lobbying in Washington over the proposed federal milk tax of 50 cents and $1.00/cwt. to become effective April 16.

Christmas tree meeting Tuesday

LEESPORT — A Christmas tree growers meeting will be held on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Berks County Agricultural Center.

The program includes "Christmas Tree Insects, Life History and Control Measures," Paul Heller, Penn State Extension entomologist; and Dave Shetlar, Penn State entomologist; and "The Future of the Christmas Tree Industry In Pennsylvania," discussed by a panel of growers.

Pesticide Applicator will also be scheduled so bring pesticide license.

NFO head says ag needs dramatic changes

BY HAROLD SHELLY

PLUMSTEADVILLE — An overflow crowd of almost 250 people packed the Plumsteadville Fire House last Saturday night for the 17th annual dinner-meeting of the Bucks County Chapter of the National Farmers Organization. The group consisted of members, guests and local agri-businessmen, who gathered to hear national representatives of the N.F.O. speak on problems in agriculture.

National Delegate Richard Hoffman, a dairy farmer from Delanson, N.Y., told the gathering that if the U.S. Department of Agriculture is successful with its proposed milk tax, 15 percent of the dairy farmers in Bucks County will be out of business by this time next year.

He said that the N.F.O. has instituted a law suit to get a permanent injunction against the tax which will deduct 50 cents per hundredweight from the farmer's milk check effective April 16, and another possible 50 cents later.

"The cheap food policy of the Federal Government is going to hurt the producer, Hoffman said. "If the USDA is successful with the milk tax, then beef, grain and hogs will surely follow."

He finished his remarks by saying that the farmer is being penalized for producing an abundance of food and fiber.

"This is the only country in the world where you can eat all you want, three times a day," he said.

Attending 17th annual NFO dinner meeting at Plumsteadville Fire House are, from the left, Dawn Yerkes, Bucks County dairy princess; Rosemary Garges, William Garges, Bucks County NFO president; and DeVon Woodland, National NFO president.

Lindsay Leiser, Regional Representative of the N.F.O., said that the surplus in dairy products that has led to the proposed milk tax was brought on by the butter, cheese and powdered milk plants selling to the Federal Government.

"The surplus is not the farmers' fault," he said.

"The government buys as much product as is offered, and it makes good economic sense for the plants to sell to it. The government guarantees a market, a profit and a check."

Leiser closed his remarks by saying that compared to the rest of the economy, the true figure for the cost of production for the dairyman is $21.00 per hundredweight.

The featured speaker of the evening was DeVon Woodland, National President of the N.F.O.,

Wool Pool meets

BUCKINGHAM — The annual meeting of the Bucks-Montgomery Wool Pool was held recently at the Tyro Hall Grange.

The 35-year-old cooperative is a non-profit organization, which pools wool grown by farmers in Bucks, Montgomery and Chester Counties.

The wool is sold at the Penn State sale in April. Buyers who are familiar with the type and quality of wool produced by the various pools throughout the state submit sealed bids for wool they are interested in buying.

The actual physical shipment of the wool takes place on the first Tuesday in June in Doylestown. All the producers bring their wool which is graded by graders from Penn State.

Eighty-five persons of the 185-member co-op attended the meeting. The Board of Directors consists of President, Warren Landis, Montgomery; Jane Cox, Vice President, Bucks; Rod Gilbert, Secretary, Bucks/ Fred Haentze, Treasurer, Montgomery; William Rockafellow, Bucks; Homer Schwenk, Montgomery; Phil Rodell, Bucks; and Dean Morey, Montgomery.-H.S.

Directors of the Bucks-Montgomery Wool Pool include, from the left, Rod Gilbert, secretary; Jane Cox, vice president; Warren Landis, president; Bill Rockafellow and Homer Schwenk.

Lambs are collected at Middletown Grange Fairgrounds for third annual Bucks-Montgomery Co-op Pool. Lambs are graded and weighed for Easter holiday market.

Easter lamb pool held

WRIGHTSTOWN — The Bucks-Montgomery Wool Co-op held its third annual lamb pool at the Middletown Grange Fairgrounds last Sunday.

The event was coordinated by Mike Fournier, Bucks County Extension Agent, who said that 24 lots of lambs totalling 205 animals were shipped to Catelli's in Richboro.

The lot sizes ranged from one to 30 lambs, with 30 being the maximum number accepted from one producer. Fournier said the packer will accept a maximum of 300 lambs. The weight range is restricted to a minimum of 25 pounds and a maximum of 55 pounds. The lambs were one month to three months old and will be readied for the Easter Holiday market.

The majority of the producers who participated were small operators who would normally ship only five to eight lambs per year. The animals were delivered to the Fairgrounds in pick-up trucks, family cars, station wagons, and even a VW bus.

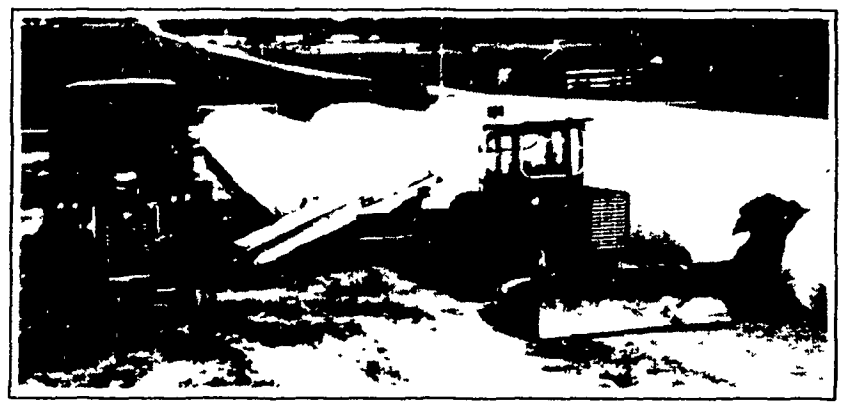
The lambs were graded into three categories as they were unloaded. "Thick," "average" and "thin" were each designated by a different colored chalk stripe on the lamb's back.

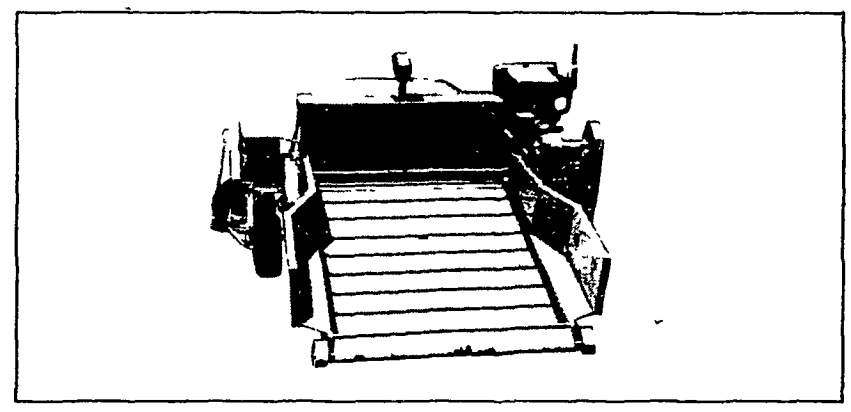
The prices paid would be set on the average of prices at the Lancaster Market on the day after the lamb Pool. This pooling of the animals would ensure the producer getting the benefit of the Lancaster Market without the expense of transportation. The Co-op gets a one percent commission for grading and weighing.

MORE FOR LESS.

The Storage System for the future. Here Now!

THE AG-BAG SYSTEM





MORE FEED. MORE STORAGE. MORE HIGH QUALITY TDN & PROTEIN.

Select from three models of AG-BAG Machines. Motorized, Hydraulic, and Gear-Driven. AG-BAG lets you match the machine to your job. Big or small. Whether you're DAIRY or BEEF AG-BAG will store More For Less. The AG-BAG System. Air-tight storage with more versatility than any other system. Just look at these AG-BAG ADVANTAGES:

1. UNLIMITED oxygen-limiting storage
2. Storage for ALL forages & grain
3. Transportable
4. Easy to use and little maintenance
5. NO dangerous silo gases
6. Silo fires WON'T occur
7. Higher moisture forage
8. NO unloader to break down
9. Extra income and potential from custom bagging
10. THE Forage System for the 80's

JUST LISTEN TO WHAT THESE AG-BAG BELIEVERS HAVE TO SAY:

Kenneth Popham of Floresville, Texas

Kenneth runs a 465 cow Dairy and said this about AG-BAG: "At today's interest rates you can't afford any other type of storage... Even with the yearly cost of bags it's still inexpensive storage... a whole lot cheaper than building barns and hiring help. I put up 13 bags last year and after seeing the results, I'll put up 25 bags this year. The bags are a good thing."

Don Carter of Parkdale, Oregon

"The best move I ever made"... says Don Carter in reference to his switch to bagging silage on his dairy near Parkdale, Oregon.

"I get 18% more feed from the same acreage and the feed lasts three times as long. I used to clean my bunks after three days, now I only need to clean them after 10 days."

Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

"In addition to everything else, it's a management tool"... says rancher, Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska.

Roland farms 350 acres west of Blair, Nebraska, and fattens about 650 cattle from 600 lbs to finish.

"By labeling every bag as to date and kind of feed, I can mix my feeds and eliminate the guess work in making a ration. I feed alfalfa silage, corn silage and ground ear corn stored exclusively in the bags, purchasing only my minerals and vitamin supplements."

"The AG-BAG system has enabled me to increase carrying capacity per acre at a reduced cost of gain."

Bert Anderson of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"At least 30% more feed... I can guarantee at least that" ..says rancher, Bert Anderson, of Sceptre, Saskatchewan.

"I've been able to cut my grain feeding costs in half since converting to the bagging. It's just like feeding grass. I've also eliminated the need for a liquid supplement that we always fed before going to the AG-BAG System..."

HERE'S WHAT THE AG-BAG SYSTEM CAN DO FOR YOU

1 BAG	150 TONS
6 BAGS	900 TONS
12 BAGS	1,800 TONS
24 BAGS	3,600 TONS

who opened his speech with the question, "Is agriculture taking tha shape you want it to?"

The Blackfoot, Idaho, farmer-rancher said that there must be "dramatic changes in agriculture. There is a need to strengthen markets, and farmers and ranchers cannot go it alone."

A major goal of the organization is to attract young people into agriculture, Woodland said.

"Any industry without young people coming back into it is going to die. The owners of land and livestock have got to make it attractive of young people."

He said the American people have received many food products so cheaply because the American farmer has borrowed against his assets and depreciation to produce cheap food. In the last ten years, farm debt has increased from $50 billion to $200 billion. Last year, farmers paid $22 billion in interest payments, while net farm income was $19 billion. Farmers paid more for the use of borrowed money than they earned from the sale of their products, he said.

The N.F.O. philosophy is that the producer has the right to determine the value of his produce. This is the way it operates in industry, but in agriculture it operates in reverse. Industrial producers predetermine the prices for their goods, but the farmer offers his goods and then asks what the market will pay him for them.

The present system of marketing farm products has not served the needs of the producers, Woodland said.

"There is no free market in agriculture. Export markets are not serving the needs of agriculture. The farmer is exporting at a price below the cost of production. There are more foreclosures today than there were during the Great Depression."

He continued that since its founding in Corning Iowa, in 1955, the N.F.O. has concentrated on group negotiations. Believing that they have power and strength as a collective bargaining unit to negotiate more than an individual, the organization does not buy or sell anything, but negotiates contracts for its members.

Regarding the recently enacted USDA-PIK program, Woodland called it, "A welfare program administered by the government."

"Farmers are too proud to apply for food stamps, so the PIK program was developed," he said. "Fifty-two percent of the farmers signed up to put 39% of corn-growing land and 35% of wheat-growing land; a total of 83 million acres, out of production."

In an impromptu press conference following the meeting, Woodland told reporters that farm implement dealers are saying the fastest moving items in their inventories are tractors under 100 horsepower.

This is an indication that the "bigger is best" philosophy which saddled farmers with high-priced machinery and high interest debt has started to decline and the farmer is willing to spend more man-hours on the job with smaller machinery at a smaller investment, he said.

When questioned about the size of the N.F.O., he said that the membership figures, both nationally and for Bucks County, are confidential.

American Cattle Club plans annual meeting

WOOSTER, Oh. — The American Jersey Cattle Club and National All-Jersey Inc. will hold their annual meetings June 20-22 in Wooster, Ohio. The national conventions will coincide with the 100th year anniversary of the Ohio Jersey Breeders Association.

The AJCC-NAJ convention plans include visits to area farms, special programs for the ladies and youngsters and other events planned by the Ohio Jersey Breeders Association.

The NAJ and AJCC will hold their respective boards of directors meetings beginning June 18. Registration starts at 10 a.m. Sunday, June 19, in the lobby of the Ramada Inn, Wooster, Ohio.

Sunday's program includes tours of the Ohio Agricultural Development and Research Center's (OARDC) Dairy Research Facility at Wooster and evening entertainment at the Ramada Inn.

Monday is tour day, with visits planned to area Jersey farms and a barbeque dinner scheduled for that evening along with time to review the 70 consignments to the 26th Annual National Heifer Sale and the Ohio Centennial Sale.

The National All-Jersey breakfast begins the day on Tuesday. There will be a ladies program while the 25th annual meeting of NAJ, the Jersey milk marketing organization, convenes.

Tuesday afternoon will see the 26th Annual National Heifer Sale and the Ohio Centennial Sale with Merlin Woodruff as auctioneer. The Annual Jersey Breeders Banquet that evening will honor Master Breeder Stanley N. Chittenden, New Lebanon, N.Y. and Distinguished Service Award winner Ray Chamberlain of Wyoming, N.Y.

Wednesday morning is the AJCC Awards Breakfast at which seven outstanding Young Jersey Dairymen will be recognized, with the 115th Annual Meeting of The American Jersey Cattle Club following the breakfast.

Inter-State local to meet

SOUTHAMPTON — The Trappe local of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative District 1 will hold its annual dinner meeting at noon Tuesday at Moorehead Restaurant, Fist Ave., Trappe, according to Director Curtis N. Kratz.

James E. Honan, secretary of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative, will be the guest speaker.

Elections of local officers will be held.

Grandpa Snavely Says...

"We Make
FARM BUILDINGS

Designed to Your Needs...to Your Specifications"

- Pole Barns
- Poultry Houses
- Dairy Barns
- Horse Stables
- Riding Arenas
- Utility Buildings
- Hog Houses
- Cold Storage
- Equipment Sheds
- Storage Buildings
- Work Shops
- Residences

To help you plan your building and write your own specifications, a professional Snavely field representative is ready and willing to assist you. He can help with everything from selecting the site, determining the size, and drawing the plans, to selecting materials, figuring costs, and scheduling delivery.

Snavely's has been doing business for over 100 years and has satisfied thousands of area farmers. And their factory fabricated panels, walls, trusses, etc. not only make erection easier and faster but also save you considerable money. For a no-charge, no-obligation consultation on your building requirements, phone, visit or mail the coupon below.

Delmarva poultry banquet April 26

SALISBURY, MD — "Three On A String" will be the featured entertainment at the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI) Booster Banquet to be held in Salisbury, Md. on April 26.

This multi-talented musical trio comes from Birmingham, Alabama and has been performing as a group since 1971, covering major conventions, radio, TV and college concerts throughout the United States and Canada. Their programs include a wide variety of music and comedy from folk music, classical, Dixieland, country, bluegrass and more.

Over 2,500 "investors" and guests are expected to attend this annual $100-A-Plate Dinner climaxing DPI's 1983 drive for funds. This year's goal is $290,000. The fund drive chairman is Gerald B. Truitt, Jr., vice president of Equitable Bank of Salisbury, Md. Truitt is also first viced president of DPI.

Highlights of the banquet, in addition to "Three On A String," include the announcement of the funds collected by Truitt and his team of volunteer workers, as well as recognition of the 1983 outstanding poultry growers, hatching egg producers and breeder pullet growers. Funds collected will be used by DPI to continue to work for the progress of Delmarva's poultry industry through research, educational activities, legislative and public affairs, consumer information and the promotion of chicken.

Three on a String will be the entertainment at Delmarva Poultry Industry Booster Banquet on April 26.

Livestock dealer gets suspended sentence

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A three-month prison sentence issued by a Federal court for David (Bucky) Edwards, of Nicholson, has been suspended provided Edwards pay a $3,000 fine, a U.S. Department of Agriculture official said today.

B.H. Jones, head of USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration, said Edwards purchases livestock throughout Pennsylvania and central and southern New York.

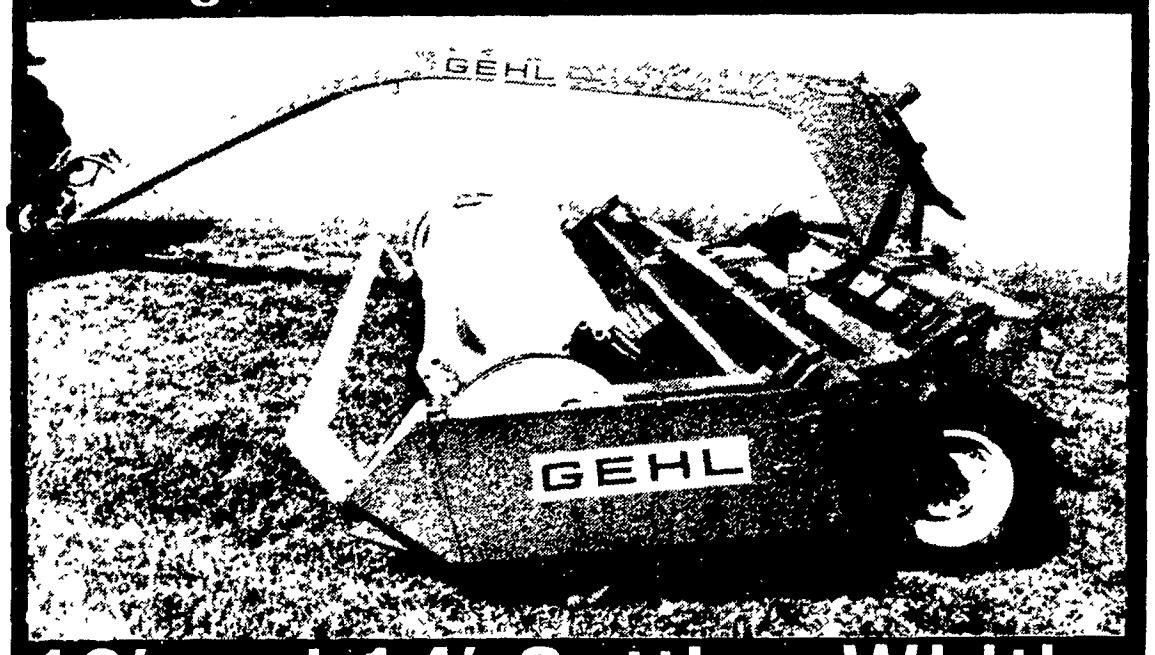
U.S. District Judge Richard B. Conaboy issued the sentence after finding Edwards guilty of contempt of a 1980 court order enjoining him from operating as a livestock dealer without being registered and bonded.

Livestock dealers are required under the Packers and Stockyards Act to register with USDA and to file a bond.

The P&S Act is an antitrust, trade practice and payment protection law. It is designed to assure integrity in the livestock, poultry and meat markets, and the market place.

NEW! GEHL®

Swing-Frame Mower Conditioners



12' and 14' Cutting Widths

Now you can get into high capacity haymaking with new swing-frame center pivot mower conditioners from Gehl. Our new 2230 has a full 12' cutting width while the 2262 offers a 14' cut AND high speed double sickle cutting action for faster cutting and increased capacity.

Both of these new mower conditioners feature totally hydraulic drive with high torque and smooth operation -- no mechanical main drivelines for reduced maintenance and parts.

These new swing-frame units pivot at the center of the frame for positive, easy positioning of the header. You can cut from the left side or right side of the tractor, or tow directly behind for roading. The result to you is reduced cutting time and fuel costs with nearly infinite manueuverability.

Both the 2230 and 2262 feature a 20" auger to feed the crop into the 57" wide conditioning rolls for thorough crop conditioning.

Now you can get into high capacity haymaking at self-propelled speeds and convenience, without the cost of a self-propelled. The NEW 2230 and 2262 swing-frame mower conditioners from Gehl.

Chester Conservation District offers crown vetch seed

WEST CHESTER — The Chester County Conservation District announced that sample amounts of Crown Vetch seed will be made available to non-profit and public agencies, gave support to a demonstration program for the use of a no-till planter by Chester County farmers, expressed concern about excess drainage from the Pa. Turnpike damaging farm land and accepted new cooperators at its recent meeting.

Limited amounts of Crown Vetch seed will be available to non-profit and public organizations on a first-come, first-served basis. The seed was obtained through a cooperative effort with the Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation and PennDOT. Two, four, or six-pound packages of the seed will be available by placing an order and paying $3.75 per lb.

Retail quantities of the Crown Vetch seed are normally available in only 50 and 100 lb. quantities.

"These smaller quantities will permit schools, churches, watershed associations or townships to seed critical areas," Harold R. Kulp, Pottstown, Chairman of the District, said.

"Municipalities should be using vegetative protection when they rebuild highways. The highway departments should be using Crown Vetch and other mulching methods to protect road shoulders during and after the construction period," Kulp said.

A no-till corn planter is being made available by Stoltzfus Farm Service of Cochranville, for farmer's trial use this spring, Marshall Haws, Executive Conservationist, told the Directors.

"This will permit farmers to try no-till planting on 25 acres or less," he said. They will be able to judge for themselves whether or not they will want to plant additional acres next year."

Farmers are invited to a meeting at the Stoltzfus Farm Service at 7 p.m. Monday to learn more about no-till, study the planter and reserve its use.

The Conservation District is advocating the use of no-till and minimum-till conservation systems to reduce the amount of soil movement on a farmer's fields as well as reduce or eliminate the soil loss to neighboring property.

Kulp appointed a committee of Elbert Wells, Harry Barnett, Robert Hodge, Charles Harris and Ralph Heister to select a county farmer that has an outstanding conservation program on his farm.

"We want to recognize those farmers who exhibit resource stewardship for their property," Kulp said.

Kulp reported that Paul Hannum's property in West Pikeland Township is being damaged by run-off from the Pennsylvania Turnpike. He said that this is only one example of water damages caused by the Turnpike, as well as PennDOT roads. Directors recommended that other counties traversed by the Turnpike be contacted. problems would be compared and, hopefully, by combined effort, corrections can be made. Property owners along the Turnpike should contact the District to determine how many run-off problems exist in the County.

Grange offers Muncy seed

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania State Grange has entered into an agreement with Muncy-Chief Hybrids of Muncy, to sell Muncy brand corn, oats, wheat, barley and soybean seed through the Grange's Farm Supply Service.

The seed will be offered through Grange farm supply agents in Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Cambria, Clarion, Clearfield, Crawford, Elk, Erie, Fayette, Jefferson, Lawrence, Mercer, Potter, Venango, Warren and Washington counties. Agents will also be enlisted in the remaining Pennsylvania counties to sell the seed.

"This is a big step for the Grange's Farm Supply Service," State Master Charles Wismer said. "We feel that Muncy has a quality product, and we are pleased to be able to offer it to our members through the farm supply network we established in February. I think the product will go over big in our Grange counties."

The Grange's Farm Supply Service also markets baler twine, fertilizer, and farm chemicals at discount to Grange members in the 17-county area in western Pennsylvania. Members order their supplies through local agents appointed in each county.

Wismer said he expects the service to be expanded throughout the state if it is successful in western Pennsylvania.

Milk production increases

HARRISBURG — Milk production in Pennsylvania during February, 1983 totaled 752 million pounds, up four percent from a year earlier, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The number of milk cows in the Commonwealth during February averaged 737,000 head, up 7,000 head from a year ago. Milk production per cow averaged 1,020 pounds in February, up 25 pounds from a year ago.

Milk production in the nation during February 1983 totaled 10.6 billion pounds, two percent more than February 1982. Total milk cows averaged 11.1 million head, slightly higher than a year earlier. February production per cow averaged 962 pounds, 19 pounds above a year earlier.

31 years of leadership in the swine industry
31 years of winners - SHOW RING - CARCASS - TEST STATION
It is not what we say - It is what the record of proof says.
THE PA SWINE TEST STATION IS 16 YEARS OLD.
OUR 16 years of TESTING at this station in competition with other breeders were good ones.
OUR pigs hold the all-time record for Ham-Loin % for pen average.
OUR pigs hold the all-time record for Loin-Eye Area for pen average.
OUR pigs hold the all-time record for Length of pig.
OUR pigs hold the all-time record for Most Superior Sires Tested.
OUR pigs hold the all-time record for the Most High Indexing Tested boar winners.
OUR records prove more pounds of gain from less feed per day.
